Reds Pouring Through Pohang Defenses; Navy Shoots Down Russian Plane, Pilot

13 Killed, 10 Hurt in Utica, N. Y., Plane Crash

Baltimore Family Of 5 Among Dead; DC-3 Afire Minutes After Taking Off

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP). A DC-3 airliner cartwheeled into a pasture and burned today carrying 13 persons to their death—including a family of five and the three-man crew. Ten persons were injured.

Twenty holidaying passengers—filling all but one seat—were aboard when the Robinson Airlines plane ripped through treetops shortly after takeoff and ploughed across a field.

The dead included Mr. and Mrs. Seymour E. Epstein of Baltimore, Md., and their three children.

The pilot, Capt. Harold Carter, 28, of Freeville, N. Y., and the steward, Merwin M. Kindig, 24, of Ithaca, were killed. The co-pilot, Capt. Frank A. Llewellyn, 30, of Ithaca, died tonight in a hospital.

The accident occurred several minutes after the plane left Oneida County Airport. Witnesses said that the plane was trying to make an emergency landing. One witness said one of the airliner's engines was dead "and the plane seemed to be wobbling."

Four of the survivors were hurled out by the impact, three more left by escape hatches, and others were pulled out by passersby.

Ray Jadwizyc, on whose farm the plane crashed, said he heard a "thumping and clanging" and looked up to see the plane hit the ground and burst into flame. Jadwizyc said he could see persons running, outlined against the flames. He flagged down cars and helped dazed passengers into them.

Before the take-off, Army Recruit J. R. Hoff, jr., 18, of Clinton, N. Y., said goodbye to his father and boarded the plane to return to Fort Dix, N. J. The father saw the plane plunge into the trees, drove to the scene and took his son to a hospital at Griffiss Air Force Base in Rome. The receiving officer at the hospital was the boy's mother. Young Hoff suffered minor burns.

The passenger dead, besides the Epsteins, were: Joseph E. McGrath, Paterson, N. J.; Sergt. Charles Jones, 31, Oriskany, N. Y.; Mrs. Alice Hoerner, Freeport, L. I.; C. Sheard Parker, 45, Baldwin, L. I.; Mrs. Eba Anderson, 53, St. George Hotel, Brooklyn.

Forest Fires Rage Out of Control In California

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4 (U.P.)—Forest fires, at least 40 of them started by a spectacular electrical storm, raged out of control in parts of California today. Rangers appealed for volunteers.

The brilliant storm made many think they were under bombing attack. Lightning killed a boy in Los Angeles and a woman in Long Beach. It also set 12 buildings afire in Long Beach and destroyed a supermarket.

There was hardly a forest or park in California that did not have a fire. In Shasta County, the small town of Ono was saved by 185 firefighters after the blaze ringed the town and crept to within 400 yards. The fire burned over 800 acres of commercial timber.

Mediator's Plea Postpones GE Strike Called for Today

By the United Press

The International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO) agreed yesterday to postpone today's scheduled Nation-wide strike against General Electric Co., to permit new Federal mediation efforts.

It acted less than half an hour after Federal Mediation Chief Cyrus S. Ching appealed to James B. Carey, union chairman, and management officials to maintain production in the interest of the Korean war effort. Ching invited both parties to meet with him here Wednesday morning for new bargaining talks on the union demand for a 10 cents hourly wage-pension package.

Lemuel R. Boulware, vice president of General Electric, promptly denounced Government intervention in the dispute as an attempt to "save face for Carey in a situation that would be disastrous to him and his union."

He asserted that the strike call already had "proved a complete flop" before Ching stepped in. That apparently was a reference to the refusal of some IUE locals to join the walkout.

Boulware did not make clear whether the company would attend the mediation conferences.

Carey said the union accepted Ching's invitation to new peace talks, and has called its negotiating committee and General Electric conference board to meet here Wednesday.

Asked whether it would be possible to notify all locals in time to avert a walkout this morning, the spokesman said:

"We certainly hope so. We'll do everything in our power to comply with the Government's request."

He emphasized that the union's

Florida Told To Prepare For New Storm

All Precautions Urged As Twister Turns Toward Northeast

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 4 (AP).—A growing gulf hurricane loitered off the Florida West Coast tonight, then began a turn toward the northeast.

The storm had remained almost stationary during the afternoon, growing in intensity. Winds increased from 115 to 125 miles per hour near the center.

Hurricane warnings flew from Tampa Bay to Apalachicola. The Atlantic Coast from Daytona Beach northward was alerted. Southeast storm warnings were up from Vero Beach to Charleston.

Chief Storm Forecaster Grady Norton said the hurricane had begun a movement to the northeast at about 10 miles an hour and its present course would bring it inland near the Cedar Key area.

Gainsville, Ocala and other central Florida cities lay in the storm's projected path.

At 10:45 p. m. (EST) the center of the hurricane was located near latitude 28.1 north, longitude 83.7 west or about 75 miles northwest of Tampa.

The Tampa Bay area was warned to expect high tides and very rough seas in the wake of the hurricane. Norton said tides might go to eight feet above normal in the Tampa area.

At least a part of the area where the storm was expected still was recuperating from the effects of a small tropical storm last week.

State highway patrolmen moved swiftly into the tiny fishing villages along the cost to spread the alarm. There are few telephones in the area.

Residents in the low area at the little oil barge terminal town of St. Marks already had taken refuge to higher ground.

The commercial fishing fleet along the entire coast had been moved to landlocked creeks

Friend's Auto Kills Couple Lying in Field

District Couple Die During Picnic; Woman Fatally Hurt By Car

A Washington man and wife were killed instantly in a tall grass field in Vienna, Va., last night when they were run over by a friend driving through the field in search of them.

Police identified the victims as Gordon C. Cox, an employee of the Washington Gas Light Co., and his wife, Hilda, of 4012 Q st. se.

Vienna Town Sergeant Kenneth Corbin said the couple had been attending a birthday picnic party on the Fentress Farm in Vienna and had apparently strayed from the party to lie down in the tall grass field.

Charles Fentress, of 4015 Q st. se., a brother of the farm's owner, went looking for them. He didn't know he had found them, Fentress told police, until his wheels had crunched over the two bodies.

Cox suffered a crushed chest while his wife suffered a broken neck. The bodies were taken to the Moneyking Funeral Home in Vienna where Fairfax County coroner began an immediate inquest.

Later in the evening, an Arlington pedestrian was fatally injured at 22nd st. and So. Glebe rd., Arlington.

Mrs. Truxie Day, 35, was struck

Nationwide Toll Less Than Expected

The Nation's Labor Day highway death toll—316—lagged behind a National Safety Council prediction of 435 as the holiday weekend drew near its close. Deaths from all types of accidents totaled 427.

The toll may fall short of the all-time-high mark for the holiday—410 deaths in motor traffic a year ago.

Ford Grants 19c an Hour In Benefits

To Meet Increasing Costs of Living; 126,000 Affected; Old Pact Scrapped

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co. tore up an unexpired contract with the CIO United Auto Workers today to grant an immediate 8-cent-an-hour cost-of-living increase in wages.

The addition of Ford's 126,000 hourly-rated employes brings to almost one million the number of auto workers riding a new wage spiral in the industry.

The new contract is for five years and in addition to the immediate 8-cent hike grants workers an annual 4-cent-an-hour raise, beginning next June 1.

UAW President Walter Reuther estimated the total benefit to Ford workers at 19.4 cents an hour and placed the cost to the company between 45 million and 50 million dollars.

A cost-of-living escalator also was written in. It permits wages to go up or down 1 cent an hour every three months for every 1.14 advance or drop reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. They can keep on rising, but cannot drop more than 8 cents an hour, and the 4-cent annual increase will not be affected.

Announcement of the new agreement came dramatically at 4 a. m. after three days and nights of almost continuous company and union negotiations. Each side claimed credit for instituting the move, but both agreed it was the biggest labor news of this mid-century Labor Day.

In junking the old contract that had until January to run, Ford agreed to raise old-age pensions from $100 to $125 monthly, including Federal social security, and added another 5 cents hourly for 16,000 skilled tradesmen.

The company said it soon would announce adjustments for the 30,000 salaried employes "in line with the new agreement" with hourly-rated workers.

A Ford statement said the "impact" of the pay increases on car prices "cannot be clearly established now." Others granting recent wage boosts have expressed hope prices would not have to be raised.

The UAW-General Motors contract, long containing a cost-of-living escalator, set off the new spiral. A gain registered in the three months ending July 15 shot the wages of GM workers up 5 cents an hour, effective September 1.

Chrysler shortly announced a 10-cent cost-of-living increase outside its existing contract. Packard, Hudson and Briggs Manufacturing Co. followed with raises ranging from 5 to 7 cents.

Current hourly pay of the average auto worker is estimated to approximate $1.75. Rates for skilled tradesmen, such as tool and die makers, run around $2.50 an hour.

Dewey Seeks Third Term As Governor

Withdraws Decision To Retire; Insists Senate Nomination Be Given to Hanley

By The Associated Press

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York changed his mind yesterday and said he would accept the Republican nomination for Governor again. It answered one of the biggest questions as three States entered a week of candidate choosing.

Dewey, who earlier had planned to retire from the political arena, is figured certain to be handed the party's nomination for a third four-year term at Wednesday's State convention.

Elsewhere on the Nation's political horizon, Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and a veteran of 17 years in Congress, faced a fight for renomination in Nevada's Democratic primary election today.

Opposed by Attorney

McCarran, who has not gone home to campaign, is opposed by George Franklin, jr., Las Vegas attorney, who served as a bomber pilot in World War II. A defeat for McCarran would be rated an upset.

In Utah, Republicans will choose today between Wallace F. Bennett, former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, and State Senator Rue L. Clegg. The winner will become the November opponent for United States Senator Elbert Thomas. Thomas is unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Dewey's announcement that he would accept the GOP gubernatorial nomination in New York marked an about-face from his June 17 statement that he would quit politics and return to private law practice at the end of this year.

Ill health was said to have been a contributing factor in his decision to retire.

Prompts Speculation

His announcement yesterday prompted speculation that he might again be willing to throw his hat into the ring for the prize that has twice escaped him—the White House. He was the GOP presidential nominee against the late President Roosevelt in 1944 and against President Truman in 1948.

New York's voters will learn this week what choices in both parties they will have in the November elections.

The Republicans will pick their slate of candidates at Saratoga Springs on Wednesday, with Dewey regarded as a standout choice for the gubernatorial nomination. Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley stepped out of the Governor race to make way for Dewey. The latter asked Hanley yesterday to be-

Fight Rages For Kyongju, Road Center, And Angang

Regrouped Forces 'Unable' to Stop Advance, 8th Army Communique Admits

TOKYO (Tuesday), Sept. 5 (AP).— Korean Red Forces poured unchecked today through a gap at the northeast end of the United Nations defense line and menaced Taegu from a new direction—the east.

That advance American supply base with its network of highways and railroads already was under Red pressure from the northeast, north, northwest, west and southwest.

Associated Press Correspondent Leif Erickson reported that a flying column of Communist tanks and soldiers was headed toward Taegu from the vicinity of Kyongju, important road junction 35 miles to the east.

Breakthrough Near Kigye

A U. S. Eighth Army communique frankly acknowledged that the Reds were pouring "through" the crumbled South Korean Capital Division south of Kigye and regrouped forces "have been unable to stop the advance."

The break was achieved yesterday near Kigye, nine miles inland from the port city of Pohang which still was in United Nations' hands today. But the South Korean Third Division, defending the port on the north, was heavily attacked at dawn by Red soldiers and tanks.

Meanwhile Red columns streamed south of Kigye through the shattered South Korean Capital Division. The U. S. Eighth Army communique said the Reds have "crossed the Pohang-Yongchon road in force."

Town Changes Hands

That East - West road goes through the town of Angang, six miles south of Kigye. The communique said the town changed hands twice yesterday and its status today was "unconfirmed."

But other Red forces bypassed it in a two-pronged push that carried one spearhead 12½ miles to the vicinity of Kyongju. From there highways and railroads lead west to Taegu, northeast to Pohang, and southeast to the United Nations' lifeline port of Pusan.

Bitter fighting raged behind the point where the Reds broke through the South Korean Capital Division. This fighting north and northwest of Pohang was in a sector defended by the U. S.

Fire Bombs Sear Fresh Division of Reds Near Masan

ON THE MASAN FRONT, Korea, Sept. 4 (AP).—A fresh North Korean division west of the Nam River tonight was seared by flame bombs dropped by light B-26 bombers. Results were described officially as excellent.

The new Red division—believed to be the North Korean Fifth—was in foxholes beside the river near Uiryong, about 10 air miles northwest of Haman. It presumably intended to reinforce the battered remnants of seven enemy regiments still fighting the United States Twenty-fifth Division which stopped the Communist offensive of last Friday.

A briefing officer said the Twenty-fifth had killed or wounded at least 13,000 of the enemy in four days. Survivors who infiltrated to the rear—about 1000 men in groups ranging up to 300 were causing some trouble.

United States Engineers and ordnance men, fighting as infantry, have begu an attack against the band.

Tanker Disabled

In Alger Hiss Case

Chambers Says His Testimony Knocked Out 'Big Conspiracy'

By Frank Eleazer
United Press Staff Writer

Whittaker Chambers said yesterday his testimony against Alger Hiss knocked out a "big conspiracy," of which Hiss was only a small part.

Chambers, addressing a National Exchange Club convention at Hotel Statler, said that "actually, 40 or 50 men and women were engaged in the activities which I exposed."

But he said the real significance of the Hiss trial "was not the espionage which it revealed, but the way in which it separated the sheep from the goats."

In general, he said, it was the common people who sat back and looked at the evidence and "the big people, the nice people," who rushed "hysterically" to the defense of Hiss.

"The people for whom Alger Hiss was a symbol were neither all Democrats nor all Republicans," said Chambers. "They formed an exclusive party—the party of betrayal.

"In the future they will be the party of appeasement."

Hiss, former State Department official, was convicted of perjury in denying the testimony of Chambers, a confessed former Communist agent, that he gave Chambers State Department papers for transmission to Russia.

Hiss' appeal is pending.

"The Hiss case was a small, dramatic episode in a struggle that will determine whether life will be worth living at all," Chambers said.

The Korean war, he said, is the first battle of the "final struggle."

Chambers' speech was recorded and was broadcast last night on a National Broadcasting Co. network. It was one of the few public statements he has made since retiring to his Maryland farm after the second Hiss trial. He formerly was an editor of Time Magazine.

Alfred Kohlberg, New York importer of Chinese textiles, told the convention that the press, radio and higher education have been "infiltrated" by pro-Communists.

Big business in many cases is afraid to speak out he said.

"Our country must be saved," he asserted, "by (small businessmen), by the veterans, and by the farmers."

Kohlberg, who has said he furnished to Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) some of the materia' the Senator used in his campaign against the State Department, said we are fighting in Korea because this country failed to arm anti-Communist Chinese and Koreans.

During yesterday's session, E. Russell Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., was elected Exchange Club president.

The club's annual convention will be held at Miami Beach, Fla., in October, members voted.

Eisenhower Says Conflict Is Not Limited

Launches Crusade For Freedom, Assails Bondage Under Reds

DENVER, Sept. 4 (AP).—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said tonight that "the die has been cast in Asia, but we are in no limited conflict. Free Europe, struggling for moral and economic recovery, is still a tempting target for predatory military force."

He added:

"We must give real support to all aspects of the military aid program and re-examine, at once, our troop strengths in critical areas."

Eisenhower spoke in a prepared address launching the Crusade for Freedom movement, which is headed by his friend, Gen. Lucius Clay. The speech was for broadcast over the four major radio networks.

Prime aim of the movement is to establish a "Radio-Free Europe," with a network of stations pledged to battle propaganda broadcast by powerful Communist stations.

Said Eisenhower:

"The people behind the Iron Curtain have no conception of a free press or of free discussion . . . This is what the Soviet planners contemplate for all the world, including America.

"The Crusade for Freedom will provide for expansion of Radio-Free Europe into a network of stations. They will be given the simplest, clearest charter in the world: 'Tell the truth.'

"For it is certain that all the surface-bright, but core-rotten promises of communism to the needy, the unhappy, the frustrated . . . cannot stand against the proven record of democracy . . .

"Most of us have been enjoying a long weekend, terminating in this day dedicated to free American labor.

"How depressing it is to realize that on this Labor Day, 1950, one-

State Department Announces Soviet Flier's Body Found

By The Associated Press

The State Department announced early today that a twin-engined bomber "bearing a red star" attacked United Nations' ships off Korea yesterday and was shot down.

The body of a Russian flier was recovered by a United Nations destroyer from the wreckage of the bomber, the department added.

He was identified as a Russian air force lieutenant from papers on his body.

This is the text of the message in which the United Nations was formally notified of the incident:

"On Sept. 4, 1950, United Nations naval forces were operating off the west coast of Korea at approximately the 38th parallel on missions in pursuance of the resolution of the Security Council of June 27th, 1950.

"At 13:29 o'clock, Korean time, a twin-engine bomber identified only by bearing a red star passed over a screening ship and continued toward the center of the United Nations formation in a hostile manner. The bomber opened fire upon a United Nations fighter patrol which returned its fire and shot it down.

"A United Nations destroyer succeeded in picking up the body of one member of the bomber crew. Identification papers indicated that the body was that of Lieut. Mishin Tennadii Vasileblu, of the armed forces of the U.S.S.R., Serial No. 25054."

Ernest Gross, deputy to Senator Austin, U. S. representative to the United Nations, delivered the message to Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the U. N., at 12:30 o'clock this morning and 15 minutes later to Sir Gladwin Jebb, president of the Security Council.

Brig. Gen. Jefferson Kean Dies; Aided in Yellow Fever Fight

Brig. Gen. Jefferson Randolph Kean, 90, who, with Walter Reed, helped launch the fight against yellow fever in Cuba, died early last night at Walter Reed Hospital.

Brig. Gen. Kean

General Kean, whose home was at 2804 N st. nw., had been ill about 10 days.

He was born in Lynchburg, Va., the great-great grandson of Thomas Jefferson. General Kean received his medical degree from the University of Virginia, and in 1884 joined the surgeon general's office. He retired in 1924.

During the Spanish War, he was assigned to duty in Cuba as deputy chief surgeon. When Walter Reed—then a Medical Corps major—arrived in Havana to discover the cause of yellow fever, he found Kean—a major then, too—ill of the disease. It was Reed's first sight of yellow fever.

General Kean helped fight yellow fever with Reed. In 1902, he established Cuba's department of health.

Later assigned back to the United States, General Kean was instrumental in establishing many Medical Corps measures, including the creation of the Medical Reserve Corps.

His activities during World War I included that of director-general and organizer of the Department of Military Relief of the American Red Cross; chief of the United States Ambulance Service with the

Urges Civil Defense Fund Hike

D. C. Unprepared for Attack, Medical Society Points Out

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

The District of Columbia Medical Society has described Washington as "sadly unprepared" for either enemy attack or serious disaster and urged Congress to meet the threat by voting more money for District civilian defense.

Ten days ago the House voted only $30,000 to protect the District from possible enemy attack, though the Commissioners, with backing of the National Security Resources Board, have insisted $290,000 will be needed to implement local preparedness plans.

Hope for restoring some of the District defense funds rests with the Senate. Its appropriations committee is expected to act on the local item sometime this week.

The doctors' demand for an "adequate" civil defense program in Washington was presented in a weekend letter to Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) from Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the District Medical Society. Hill is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on District Appropriations.

Similar letters, it was learned yesterday, were sent to Representative Joe E. Bates (D., Ky.), chairman of the House subcommittee on District Appropriations, and Engineer Commissioner Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young.

The communication said, in part: "Medical men of Washington are only too aware of the dangers inherent in unpreparedness should there be an attack or serious disaster in the Nation's Capital.

"The city is sadly unprepared for either one, from a medical

Labor Chiefs Pledge Fight Against Reds

By The Associated Press

Labor celebrated its annual holiday yesterday with a strong anti-Communist theme running through most formal observances.

From labor unions, there was a pledge to work for the defeat of Communist aggression everywhere. That was the prime goal stressed in messages from AFL President William Green and CIO President Philip Murray.

From Secretary of Labor Tobin, there was a reminder of the American workingman's advantages compared to the plight of those under communism. Tobin told a Boston audience the Russian worker has to toil five to seven times as long as the American worker to buy the same amount of food.

"All that communism can offer workers is slavery and chains," he said.

CIO Wants No "Super-Profits"

In Birmingham, Ala., President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations promised labor will give maximum support to the Nation's fight against Red conquest, but declared there must be no "super-profits" gleaned from the war.

Murray demanded that prices and profits be rolled back at least to pre-Korean war levels, and he declared:

"Let me warn the agents of special privilege—American workers do not intend to be the goat onto whose shoulders big business will pass its rightful share of the common burden."

In Chicago, Senate Majority Leader Lucas (D., Ill.) told a labor rally at Soldier Field:

"There is not going to be profiteering in our program of rearmament."

Lucas denounced advocates of the "trickle-down theory," who, he said, operate on the principle that, "if you make people at the top of the heap rich enough, some of the blessings of life will trickle down to those on the botton."

Global Struggle Forecast

"I want to serve notice here and now that as long as I am majority leader of the United States Senate, anybody that attempts to apply the 'trickle-down' theory as far as war profits are concerned is going to have a real fight on his hands," he said.

Lucas is running for reelection.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor told the Soldier Field crowd the Korean war is "merely the opening skirmish of a global struggle which may break out into open warfare at any time."

Pledging "full support" to the Government, Green declared:

"Our army of production at home must stand and fight with the military forces abroad until the victory over communism and totalitarianism is clearly and decisively won."

Despite Strike

Chrysler May Exceed 1949 Output

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP).—Despite more than a normal amount of labor trouble, Chrysler is going to make a substantial production showing this year.

If its various divisions can continue their present production rate, Chrysler will wind up 1950 with a total output topping last year's record volume of 1,267,470 vehicles by something like 150,000 units.

Most companies are headed for records in production this year, but Chrysler apparently will set another high mark despite the 103 days' strike that idled its factories earlier this year. Smaller disputes preceding Chrysler's recent wage boost also interfered with production.

The Chrysler divisions have been rolling out around 40,000 cars and trucks a week.

So far this year, Chrysler's output totals 753,396 passenger cars and trucks. At this point last year, the total was 851,263 vehicles.

Some time next month, if there are no further production stoppages, Chrysler's Plymouth Division should get back into third place in the production standing. General Motors' Buick Division took that position over during the prolonged Chrysler strike.

Right now Buick's 1950 output to date tops that of Plymouth by about 44,000 cars.

The industry will have fewer working days this month than it had in August. For that reason, a drop of something like 136,000 cars and about 27,000 trucks from the August output is probable. Automotive News put August assemblies at 681,641 cars and 135,510 trucks.

It said the flow of materials at many plants "is way out of balance, but this situation stems from ambitious scheduling rather than from real scarcities."

action does not mean any "retreat" in its demands "particularly as regards pensions."

Ching said in identical telegrams to Carey and GE President Charles E. Wilson that a strike would be a "most serious threat" to the Korean war effort.

GE plants "are engaged in production vital to the effective prosecution of the national defense program," he said.

Expressing confidence the dispute can be settled through mediation efforts, Ching said:

"I urgently request that both parties take no action in the interim that will result in any further interruption of work, production and operations."

Boulware said there was "no sense" in calling on GE not to interfere with its own production.

"It was the union that had called the strike to take advantage of military production and Mr. Carey has now simply had to run to the Government to fish him out," he said.

60,000 Workers in 51 Plants

The IUE, formed after the CIO expelled the left-wing United Electrical Workers on charges of Communist domination, claims to represent 60,000 workers in 51 plants, including the vital Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory at Schenectary, N. Y.

Boulware said that so far as the company can learn, "there was a possibility of only four small locals totaling 1285 employes answering the strike call.

"We feel the Government, by reason of the CIO's influence, is stepping in to save face for Carey," he said.

Egypt Charges Israel Expulsion Of 2000 Arabs

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt., Sept. 4 (AP).—Egyptian Defense Minister Mustafa Nosrat Bey tonight said Israeli forces have driven 2000 Arabs out of Israel into Egyptian territory.

Nosrat Bey told newsmen "Egypt will ask the United Nations to stop such atrocities. Otherwise, it will consider itself free from truce restrictions."

Egypt is one of the Arab nations that signed a truce agreement with Israel in 1949 under U. N. auspices.

Symington Sees Red Timetable Carried Out

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP).—W. Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board, said today that everything seems to be going according to Russia's timetable for world conquest.

The man who is charged by President Truman with assessing and collecting the Nation's stockpile of critical war materials said of the USSR:

"The Soviets are steadily increasing the power of their own army, navy, and air force, as well as their stock of atomic bombs and equipment to deliver the latter. With relatively minor exceptions, everything would now seem going according to their schedule for world conquest."

He spoke at the annual dinner of Labor's League for Political Education (AFL).

He said the Communists, "in carrying out their often repeated intention to rule the world," have taken the following steps:

Communist controlled people 10 years ago numbered 188 million persons and now number over 800 million.

In nearly every country of importance the Communists have a well trained, militant minority, taking advantage of democratic tolerance, which might be used for sabotage at the start of any general war.

"If Korea has taught us anything," said Symington, "it is that peace-loving democracies cannot afford to wait for an additional aggression before mobilizing to meet that aggression. We must build, now, a defense sufficient to enforce with our allies, those decisions of the United Nations made in the interest of world peace."

Senate Expected to Approve Red Control Bill, Up Today

Senator Karl E. Mundt (R., S. D.) predicted yesterday that the Senate will rebuff President Truman by giving overwhelming approval to the McCarran catch-all Communist-control bill.

The measure comes up for Senate debate today and backers estimated not more than 12 Senators will vote against it. The House passed similar legislation last week 354 to 20.

Mundt predicted the Senate will pass the long-disputed bill by an "overwhelming" margin after defeating scheduled Administration efforts to "water it down."

Sen. Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) heads an Administration bloc which is drafting a milder substitute more in line with Mr. Truman's proposals for combatting spies and saboteurs by tightening present laws.

If that drive fails—as seems inevitable—Kilgore may offer a last-minute proposal for a mass round-up of Communists. They would then be screened and dangerous Reds would be clamped in concentration camps. Kilgore claims his plan is far less drastic and more constitutional than the registration requirements of the McCarran measure.

Mr. Truman has warned against public "hysteria" in dealing with the Communist problem and there have been persistent reports he will veto the measure. Political considerations, however, would seem to weigh heavily against such action now.

The McCarran bill combines a half-dozen measures which have been pending two years. Its major provisions—aimed at the Nation's estimated 55,000 Reds and their sympathizers—were taken from the Mundt-Ferguson-Johnston Red curb bill.

It would force the Communist Party to register its members individually with the Justice Department. Red fronts would have to list their officials. It also would forbid Communists to hold Federal jobs, deny them passports and make them label their propaganda.

Other provisions would permit the suspension of diplomatic immunity for second-string foreign diplomats considered security risks. Tighten security checks on immigrants and permit the jailing of deportable aliens whose native countries refuse to take them back.

A semi-independent bureau of visa and passports also would be established within the State Department.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath has opposed the registration features as "unworkable" and likely to drive the Communists further underground.

The State Department also has opposed some of the immigration provisions on grounds they would hamper foreign policy.

House Red Probers Due To Return to Hawaii

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee has decided to send a subcommittee to Hawaii to hear eight once-defiant witnesses who now want to talk.

Representative Walter (D., Pa.), who headed a subcommittee which conducted hearings on communism in Hawaii last April, declined yesterday to name the witnesses who, he said, have changed their minds.

A total of 39 refused to answer the subcommittee's questions at the earlier hearing and were later cited by the House for contempt of Congress.

Walter told reporters that the group, of which he will be one, plans to leave here Sept. 12. The final make-up of the subcommittee has not yet been determined, but at least one Republican committee member will go, he said.

Pope Criticizes 'Phantom Men' Of Idle Minds

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 4 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today deplored the attitude of those he called "phantom men" with nothing in their minds save keeping themselves amused.

The Pope addressed by radio thousands of working youth from 50 nations meeting in Brussels, Belgium.

"There are phantom men never tired of going to movies and sporting fields, night and day full of futile notions, provocative illustrations, light music—internally too empty to be interested or occupied in themselves," the Pontiff said. "One can say that they live in the world, but outside it, adrift in the world's current like inert cadavers."

The Pope urged young Christian workers to be apostles for Christ in the ranks of labor, but warned them against "the classification of souls in categories."

Rayburn Asks That Texans Back Truman

McKINNEY, Tex., Sept. 4 (AP).—House Speaker Sam Rayburn told fellow Texas Democrats today they must unite behind President Truman and that "the campaign of knock and smear must cease."

The veteran lawmaker declared of the Chief Executive:

"He is our leader, or we have none. He is the voice of America, or America has no voice. Position and circumstances have made him not only our leader, but the leader of the democracies of all the earth."

"I tell you truthfully, I think this country is in safe hands," Rayburn said in a brief Labor Day address prepared for a selected group of Texas party members.

His forthright advice came only a week before the Texas State Democratic Convention, at which pro and anti-Truman delegates are expected to battle for control.

Paul Griffith Defends Johnson's Policies

Made Counter Buzz

Australia Reports Big A-Ore Find

DARWIN, Australia, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Discovery of huge deposits of radioactive ore for the production of atomic bombs near Katherine, in the Northern Territory, was announced officially today.

Northern Territory Administrator A. R. Driver described the find as a "massive formation." An area of 100 square miles surrounding the center of the lode was immediately declared a mining reserve.

The find was of such strength that it set the clicks of a Geiger counter, used to locate radioactive material, off into a "long continuous buzz," one engineer said.

The deposits were discovered near the Ferguson River, about 40 miles from Katherine and less than 100 miles from a lodge found at Rum Jungle less than a year ago. Sydney Tennyson, resident engineer of a meat plant at Katherine, said the discovery was made by two workmen.

The Australian government offers a maximum reward of 25,000 pounds Australian ($56,000) for the discovery of uranium.

JOHNSON CITY, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP).—Secretary of Defense Johnson and the military policy for which he is responsible were warmly defended today by Assistant Secretary of Defense Paul G. Griffith.

Griffith, a close personal friend of Johnson's, said some comments on the war in Korea were nothing but "the great American game of finding a goat."

Johnson is under attack in Congress and elsewhere for his economy cutbacks and the condition of the armed forces at the outbreak of the Korean war.

Griffith, in a speech for the Endicott-Johnson Corporation Labor Day observance, called Johnson "our great secretary of defense" and said he is "the most sincere, honest and capable executive that can be found any place in the world."

As for Defense Department policy, Griffith said it was based not on crushing South Korean invaders but on being ready "to heap dreadful retaliation on any enemy which might attack us."

"It is true, of course," he said, "that nothing about the Korean affair has made it necessary for us to demonstrate our state of readiness to deliver a paralyzing retaliatory blow at any foe who may attack this country.

"By the same token, there is nothing about the Korean affair to suggest that we cannot deliver such a blow."

He said no nation on earth could be ready to crush Communist aggression wherever it might break out in Asia and Europe.

POHANG, TAEGU THREATENED—Paced by tanks, a two-pronged enemy drive smashed 12½ miles south through Angang to the outskirts of Kyongju (A) on the northern end of the 120-mile battlefront, threatening to outflank both Taegu and Pohang. On the south-central front (B), United States Marines and Doughboys rolled back the Reds in the Naktong River bulge west of Yongsan. GIs of the First Cavalry Division retreated more than a mile (C) northwest of Taegu, but still held the town of Tabu. In the Masan area (D), the Reds were stopped by 25th Division GIs. U. S. Resolution On Korea May Get Red Veto

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Russia will use her Security Council veto Tuesday to block passage of a United Nations order to all countries to refrain from "assisting or encouraging" the North Koreans, informed sources predicted tonight.

Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik, executor of Russia's month-long filibuster that prevented any Council action on Korea during August, will cast Russia's 44th veto on the measure unless he succeeds in preventing it from reaching a vote, these sources said.

The measure was introduced by Ambassador Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, on July 31, the day before Malik broke Russia's 29-week boycott to assume the Council presidency. Using obstruction tactics, Malik prevented its consideration throughout the 14 meetings he presided over.

The resolution also states:

"The Security Council condemns the North Korean authorities for their continued defiance of the United Nations;

"Calls upon all states to use their influence to prevail upon the authorities of North Korea to cease this defiance."

Council President Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain, a strict parliamentarian, is expected to crack down on Malik if he swings far from rules of procedure.

If the Russian succeeds in filibustering long enough to prevent a vote on this measure, the United States is expected to demand a special meeting to get a quick vote on another of its resolutions which would have the Council appoint India and Sweden to investigate Communist China's charge that American planes flying for the U. N. have raided Manchuria.

Malik may insist, as he did unsuccessfully last week, that the Communist Chinese must be present while the Council discusses its charges against the United States.

Helicopters Rescue 18 Yanks in Day

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, Sept. 4 (AP).—United States helicopter rescue planes in their biggest day of the Korean war today saved at least 18 American lives, including two crashed fighter pilots snatched from behind enemy lines.

Marine Maj. Kenneth L. Reusser of Portland, Oreg., was plucked off Red territory after his Corsair fighter-bomber was downed by enemy ground fire west of Yongsan on the Naktong River front.

The name of the other pilot rescued from an enemy-held area was not immediately available.

The "flying windmills" evacuated seriously wounded infantrymen from the front to base hospitals on their other missions.

Cannon Like Shotguns In Fierce Masan Fight

WITH 25TH DIVISION, Korea, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The heroes of the Twenty-fifth Division's artillery batteries used cannon as though they were shotguns to halt the Red horde which sought to seize Masan.

Range-finders and panoramic sights were useless in the furious night battle. The enemy was so close that the cannoneers had only to sight down the barrels of their guns to flail the enemy ranks with steel.

Corpl. Cecil Maerer, Newport News, Va., thought up an improvement on the basic shotgun tactics. He purposely aimed short, "skip-shelling" the attacking Communists with a deadly rain of riocheting fragments.

Non-Com Twice Wins Commission in Field

TOKYO, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—It's Lieut. Herman S. Chanley of Wheatland, Ind., again.

Chanley, a sergeant first class, was commissioned the other day in Korea by Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, commander of the Twenty-fifth Infantry Division, for outstanding leadership in combat.

During the Admiralty Islands campaign in World War II, Chanley received a similar battlefield commission while with the First Cavalry Division. He gave up the commission when he returned home and in 1948 rejoined the Army as an enlisted man.

Soviet Reports Indicate Big, If Not Bumper, 1950 Harvest

MOSCOW, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The Soviet Union gathered in a good—if not a bumper—harvest this year, judging from official reports published to date.

The country's most important breadbasket, the Ukraine, announced Sunday that wheat deliveries to the state had exceeded both the quota and the schedule of the annual plan. Deliveries totaled 102.7 percent.

Ukrainian government and party leaders reported an increase in livestock to Premier Josef Stalin. Farm animals, which almost disappeared during the German wartime occupation and the Russians' "scorched earth" policy now exceeds the prewar level, with horned cattle 47 percent above 1940.

L. Melnikov, secretary of the Communist Party of the Ukraine, explained in an article in Pravda that the substantial progress of agriculture in the state was due to better organization, scientific management, mechanization, and the consolidation of small collective farms into larger ones.

Melnikov disclosed that individual farmers in West Ukraine districts had been collectivized. The districts included Transcarpathia, Ismail, Lvov, Volynia, Rovno and Czernowitz. Melnikov said that 97.4 percent of the peasants of West Ukraine are now collectivized.

Satisfactory harvests have been indicated in preliminary reports from other wheat-raising areas.

While trying to pull his wife from the path of the onrushing auto, John Day, 40, was also hit. He suffered severe lacerations to the right leg. The Days had been to a nearby restaurant to get food for their five children at home.

The driver of the auto, identified by police as Frank DeSales Emge, 39, a tax accountant, who gave his address as 4638 N. Pershing dr., rlngton, was charged with reckless driving, drunken driving, and was reelased under $1000 bond.

Two persons were injured in a four-car pileup on Shirley hwy. near Woodbridge, Va. Police said the first car made a sudden stop for a red light and three others telescoped behind it.

The driver of the fourth auto, Stewart Beatson, 26, of 1629 N. Oak st., Arlington, suffered lacerations to the face.

In the number three auto, a 70-year-old passenger, Mrs. G. A. Thrift of Burgess, Va., suffered scalp lacerations and shock.

Twenty-Fourth Division and South Korean troops.

Belted by heavy rains, the U. S. First Cavalry Division, defending Taegu from the north and northwest fought to improve mountainous positions less than 15 miles from the key base.

Correspondent Erickson reported a seesaw fight still short of the goal of ousting 800 Reds in a stone-walled collection of mud huts atop 3000-foot Mount Kasan. That is 12 miles due north of Taegu.

Reds on Denfensive Near Taegu

Twenty miles south of Taegu, the Reds were on the defense at the scene of a recent success. The first Marine brigade and the U. S. Second Infantry Division were reported by Associated Press Correspondent Don Huth today to be pushing west from recaptured Yongsan. The Americans were bent on throwing the Reds back across the Naktong River.

Last Friday, in the opening stages of an offense along a 55-mile front, the Communists thrust eight and one half miles east of the Naktong and captured Yongsan. Today Huth said the Reds were in retreat, some riding tanks to hasten their flight. An estimated 3000 Reds were digging in only a half mile east of the Naktong to stand against the Marines and infantrymen.

Huth said the Communists already have lost 40 percent of a brigehead which once threatened to separate the Second Infantry Division from the U. S. Twenty-fifth fighting at the south end of the 120-mile battle perimeter.

2000 Killed in One Sector

A Second Division spokesman estimated Red casualties in killed and wounded totaled 2000 yesterday in the Yongsan sector alone. Red casualties in the south sector against the U. S. Twenty-fifth Division have been estimated at 13,000 in the past four days.

At 6:30 a. m. today, the Reds hit a regiment on the right flank of the Twenty-fifth Division and "succeeded in displacing one company," the Eighth Army communique said. That position is near the confluence of the Nam and Naktong rivers, nine miles north of Haman. Reserves immediately opened counterattacks to restore the position, about 35 air miles west of Pusan.

United Nations planes, which flew a massive 545 sorties yesterday in close support of the ground fighting, were out early again today despite rainy weather.

Suggesting the overall ground situation has eased somewhat, B-29s, which had joined in the combat support efforts, resumed their distant strikes north of the thirty-eighth parallel which separates North and South Korea.

Underlining the intensity of the 'round-the-clock air efforts, an air force summary today said B-26 light bombers and night fighters during last night fired more than 31,000 rounds of matchinegun-bullets in strafing attacks. They also splattered jellied gasoline fire bombs on the Reds.

ECA Countries Sending Officials For Study of Rails

Eighty-five railroad officials and industrialists from 12 Marshall Plan countries will make a six-week study of American railroading beginning next week.

The group is the largest to come to this country so far under the Economic Cooperation Administration technical assistance program. They come from Belgium, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, Italy, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

The ECA approved the studies sponsored by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

Kerr Backs Boost In Armed Forces, Supports Truman

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 4 (AP).—Senator Kerr (D., Okla.) said today that the Nation must swiftly make itself the world's strongest military power as insurance for peace.

He backed up President Truman's call for doubling the size of American armed forces, now around 1,500,000 men, and for a vast increase in guns, tanks and other military equipment.

Bluntly condemning Russia as an aggressor and treaty violator who has attempted to sabotage the United Nations, Kerr said in an address prepared for the annual convention of the Oklahoma American Legion:

"We now know that if there is to be world peace, we and we alone have the power and the might and the confidence of others to lead the free people of the world into achieving that peace."

Kerr chided critics of the Administration's pre-Korean war policies, saying:

"I believe our country will be better served by determination to make her stronger today and tomorrow than by merely being critical as to any element of her weakness yesterday."

4 or 5 W. German Divisions, 6 From U. S., Urged by Russell

Senator Richard B. Russell, (D., Ga.), said yesterday western Germany should be allowed to raise an army of four or five divisions, and the United States should send six more of its own divisions to Europe.

Such a program, he said in an interview, is urgently needed to build up the defenses of western Europe against Soviet attack.

The questions of German rearmament and strengthing the one-division United States troop strength in Europe will come in for top-level discussion when the Foreign Ministers of the 12 Atlantic Pact powers meet in New York September 15.

Russell, a ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said hopes for making western Europe secure will prove "illusory" unless western Germany is permitted a limited rearmament.

He said there should be strict limits on the size of the German army and an outright ban on any German air force to forestall the danger that a rearmed Germany might itself become an aggressor.

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), made a similar proposal over the weekend. He said additional United States forces should be sent to Europe only on condition Atlantic Pact allies agree to the raising of some German ground forces.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.) of the Foreign Relations Committee, favored sending more United States troops on condition that Atlantic Pact partners step up their own defense efforts. He suggested a hypothetical ratio of one United States division for each 10 divisions raised in western Europe.

Navy Flier Knocks Out 2 Tanks With 1 Bomb

ABOARD U. S. CARRIER OFF KOREA, Sept. 4 (AP).—Ens. Edward V. Laney, jr., of San Diego, Calif., was credited by the Army with a remarkable double knockout of enemy tanks with a single bomb Sunday.

Flying low in a fighter, Laney spotted the two tanks close together and released his 500-pound bomb.

"Those tanks no longer exist," an army ground controller reported.

See Flashes

Allies Build Airfield While Fight Rages

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, Sept. 4 (AP).—American know-how and South Korean sweat are building a first-rate airstrip here for stepped-up assaults against Korean Reds.

The base itself is a graphic sign that United Nations forces do not hold the remotest thought of giving any more ground to the North Korean Reds. The flight strip is so close to the raging ground front you can at times hear battle sounds and see gun flashes.

Already U. N. planes daily are making more than 100 flights from the strip. Everything from speedy, hard-hitting fighters to massive four-engine transports operate from the base. Pilots say that even four-engine bombers could use the strip in an emergency.

There was a small airport here before the war, but it was far from par as a striking weapon to battle the Reds. So the Air Force called one of its top young colonels—who must not be identified for security reasons — from stateside leave to whip the base into offensive shape.

"I found him outside my tent one day with tears in his eyes," the air force officer said. "He asked me if we were going to evacuate the strip because the Communists were just on the other side of that second ridge."

"I told him we will never leave until this is over and he answered:

"We do not ever want you to leave until Korea is free again."

TOKYO (Tuesday), Sept. 5 (U.P.).—United Nations planes flew more than 600 sorties against the North Koreans yesterday in the fourth day of all-out aerial effort, and were off again at dawn today.

Jet fighters began thundering off Japanese bases shortly after 6:30 a. m. and Mustangs followed a few minutes later to lend all available support to the hard-pressed Allied forces in the East coast area.

Fighter-bombers from the Air Force, the Marines and the Australian air force poured rockets, shells and fire bombs in close support around the 120-mile U. N. defense perimeter. The Pohang area again had top priority.

Of yesterday's flights, 500 were combat missions, with Allied planes striking in the Pohang area 125 times alone.

Navy carrier planes from two big Essex-class carriers returned to the battle today after a day at other operations. B-26s and F-82s flew nightlong over the enemy lines.

United States Marine and Air Force planes claimed 11 tanks destroyed in the Yongsan sector of the Naktong River front alone. At least three tanks were knocked out in other sectors.

While fighter planes spent most of their day hitting the enemy front lines in close support of infantry, fighter-bombers struck the Red rear areas in attacks on air fields, bridges, warehouses and communications lines with fire bombs, rockets and machine guns.

No. 2 priority went to the Masan front at the southwest corner of the U. N. defense perimeter. There the planes helped the infantry rout out nests of enemy infiltrators who had got behind the Twenty-fifth Infantry Division lines in course of the big Red offensive which was smashed.

The planes also attacked enemy concentrations along both sides of the Nam River just below its junction with the Naktong.

Car Goes Up in Smoke as Owner Visits the Monument

FIREMEN TURN HOSE ON WEST VIRGINIAN'S AUTOMOBILE AT BASE OF THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT

A West Virginia teenage tourist—who thought that everything possible had happened to his ancient 1937 Dodge sedan—found he was mistaken yesterday.

Hugh Gilbert Caudill, 19, of St. Albans, was climbing the Washington Monument yesterday afternoon with three friends when he heard the shrill crescendo of a fire siren.

The quartet scampered up the several hundred remaining steps, hoping to get a good view of the flames. To their disappointment, they found barred windows and thick walls restricting their vision.

All they could make out was a cloud of smoke apparently drifting away from the base of the monument.

After about ten minutes they lost interest in the view, and started back to the car, parked near the entrance, to continue a day of sightseeing.

The first thing that Caudill saw there was firemen pouring water on the still-smoldering hulk of his car.

"I looked at the firemen, back to the car and finally began laughing," he said.

"I had nursed it for more than 500 miles from West Virginia here. It kept breaking down, and the trip took me over two days. I thought that everything that could happen to it had.

"But what struck me as particularly funny was about the only worthwhile thing left was the right front tire. It was my father's unused spare which I borrowed for the trip, and promised to return."

Caudill was in Washington visiting his college roommate, William Quigley Bennett, 18, of 1600 East-West hwy., Silver Spring. Two other friends, John Harmon, 18, and Pete Harris, 18, both of Silver Spring, accompanied him.

Caudill described his car as "two-toned blue with a $4 paint job, no fenders or bumpers and with a leaky gas tank."

"They bet me in St. Albans I'd never make it back," he said. "But I bet they'd never believe I was halted this way."

Caudill said he would try to sell the car for scrap, minus the tire, which would go back to his father.

GIs in Korea Have Less Humor Than World War II Brothers

By Hal Boyle

WITH U. S. TROOPS IN KOREA (AP)—The war in Korea hasn't produced much humor.

The tomfoolery and practical jokes that brightened the gloom of World War II have been notably absent from this campaign. Just why no one seems to know—but everyone comments on it.

It may be because even the lightest heart can't find anything funny after fighting a two-month action of tragic retreats and defensive stands.

It may be the mood of the troops. They didn't come to Korea resigned to a long, tough series of battles as did the soldiers of the last war. They thought they would only have to make a brief show of force, the North Koreans would retreat or give up, and they could sail back to the soft life in Japan.

Unfortunately it didn't work out that way. And many a soldier felt about as happy as if he had been given the task of digging an endless latrine.

However, in recent days there has been a noticeable lifting of spirits, and morale is high along the battleline now. Fresh reinforcements of men and armor have convinced the veterans here they no longer are just part of a sacrifical holding force. They feel they have turned the corner, The arrival of two British battalions—tokens of more to come—sent a jubilant thrill along the Korean front.

"The more help we get the quicker we will get it over with," said Pfc. John L. Van Deylen of Napoleon, Ohio. And his buddy, Corpl. Dominic Joseph Cantillo of Roxbury, Mass., added:

"We've been waiting for that bag-pipe music—the more the merrier."

With the improvement of the battle prospects, the American Army is losing its dourness of mind. The soldier who six weeks ago was grim, tense and voluble with self-pity has become more relaxed and self-confident. His attitude has changed from one of "why did they have to send me here" to "when can we start an offensive rolling and kick the hell out of them so we can all get out of here?"

And the GI is getting over the biggest blow to his pride—the weeks in which he had to fall back from scrawny North Korean troops he under-estimated and contemptuously called "gooks." He has given this enemy a few bloody noses lately, and he is looking forward to full revenge.

So he is beginning to act more like his GI brothers of 1941-45—scrappy, cocky and high spirited.

He no longer feels so sorry for himself, and he can look at his mission with a kind of wry, impersonal humor. His gripes now are the traditional gripes of all armies—too much hash, too little mail from home and not enough promotion this side of the ocean.

He is taking his hardships with more quips and fewer complaints. The other day a soldier who had thrown away his shoes during a trek across the hills through enemy lines walked into his headquarters on bare and blistered feet.

"Just call me Lightfoot, boys," he said breezily. "Just call me Old Lightfoot."

When the Army starts going northward there will be more jokes—more laughter to liven the sad waste of war. It is always easier to make a wise crack when it is the other guy who is running away.

British Experts Discuss Asia Rice Problem

SINGAPORE, Sept. 4 (AP).—British Commonwealth experts opened a conference here today aimed at trying to solve one of Asia's biggest political problems—the distribution of rice. General MacArthur's plan to buy a huge amount of rice for Japan came under immediate discussion.

Rice, Asia's staple food, is one of the West's most powerful assets in the fight against Communism, but there is not enough available to feed this part of the world's overpopulated countries.

William R. Langdon, United States consul general at Singapore, is here as a United States observer. But conference officials did not hide their disappointment over failure of General MacArthur to send a representative from Japan. He had been invited to do so.

A thorny problem for the experts is MacArthur's proposed purchase of a huge quantity of rice for the Japanese. They spent considerable time discussing it. The experts said that if his plan is carried out it would seriously jeopardize Commonwealth efforts to stem the spread of Communism to other parts of Asia.

The meeting is attended by officials from Pakastan, India, Ceylon, Hongkong, Sarawak, North Borneo, Singapore and Malaya.

Southern Outlay For Building High

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4 (AP).—Contract awards for building in the 16 States south of the Mason-Dixon Line for eight months this year amounted to $2,726,408,000.

The total is the second highest for the first two thirds of a year in Southern construction history, the Manufacturers Record reported today. It is 39 percent more than awards during the same 1949 period.

Awards during August totaled $361,424,000, down 41 percent from July but 13 percent ahead of August in 1949.

The August awards included $104,763,000 for private building, $94,666,000 for industrial construction, $72,711,00 for public buildings, $44,660,000 for heavy engineering, and $48,624,000 for highways, streets and bridges.

East Germans Charge Spying, Ban Jehovah's Witness Sect

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The East German Communist government banned the Jehovah's Witnesses religious sect in the Soviet zone today, charging its estimated 25,000 members with "espionage for a foreign, imperialistic power."

A Communist press release, issued after the radio announcement of the ban, said Jehovah's Witnesses "carried out systematic atrocities against the existing democratic order and the laws in the (Russian) zone and in greater Berlin, camouflaged as religious meetings."

The "foreign, imperialistic power" was not named. The sect originated in the United States.

The formal ban warned that "any activity" by the sect will be punished, although it did not indicate how the Communists intend to carry out the ban. It was broadcast by the Russian-run Radio Berlin and said the Minister of the Interior had "prohibited" the organization "for illegal activities in the territory of the German democratic republic."

The East German Information Office said the organization "continuously imported and distributed illegal literature . . . directed against the constitution and against efforts to maintain peace."

It was the first formal action against the sect by the Communist government, although it has carried on a propaganda campaign against Jehovah's Witnesses in recent weeks.

80-Year-Old Weds

SOUTH NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 4 (AP).—Nathan H. Dowdy, 80, and Mrs. Lilly May Boyd, 70, were married here Saturday night. The Rev. Frank Hughes, jr., pastor of the South Norfolk Baptist Church, said this was the oldest couple he had ever married. The couple plans to reside here.

Thousands Dying of Thirst In Washington, D. C.

An unofficial survey of the city of Washington, D. C., has disclosed an almost unbelievable scarcity of fresh, cool drinking water.

Every day thousands of thirsty shoppers trudge wearily from store to store, their enthusiasm dimmed by burning thirst. Thirsty employees find only unpalatable lukewarm tap water and become victims of water starvation.

Yet this problem can be quickly, inexpensively and easily solved by the installation of a modern water cooler in your store or office.

Thirst is not restricted to summer alone. People suffer from thirst the year around and require seven glasses of water a day for health and efficiency.

These coolers furnish an abundant supply of delicious cool water. They can be placed in any convenient location.

You'll find a variety of models — including a special small-size cooler for children, on display at John G. Webster & Sons, Inc., at 627 F Street, N.W. You may buy or rent the water cooler you select. Rental rates are as low as $5.00 a month.

John G. Webster will also install your cooler for you. So why let your employees or your customers die of thirst? Why not call John G. Webster, STerling 6100 and remedy the situation?

Plebes' Parents Get a Firsthand Look at Annapolis Life

HOW IT'S DONE—The painful details of the obstacle course at the Naval Academy are explained to his family by Midshipman Fourth Class John W. Boyd, jr., of Jacksonville, Fla. Looking on are his brother, David, 9; his sister, Constance, 12, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Boyd. The Boyd family was among 1360 parents, relatives and friends of Midshipmen of the Class of 1954 at a Labor Day weekend program at Annapolis designed to acquaint them with Academy life and traditions. High Navy officials welcomed the guests.

Pensions Paid 52 Formerly In Congress

By the United Press

Fifty-two former members of Congress, including one behind bars, are now drawing an average of $3087 a year from the 4-year-old congressional pension system, it was disclosed yesterday.

But the program isn't anywhere near the bankruptcy predicted by some pessimists when it was created under the La Follette-Monroney Congressional Reorganization Act in 1946.

Warren Irons, chief of the Civil Service Commission's retirement division which administers the plan, said it is paying out only about $164,545 a year compared with income of $357,000.

The difference represents contributions for Congressmen who still haven't retired.

The payments range from $184 a month for a former legislator who wasn't successful in pleasing the voters for very long to $6562 for a colleague who was elected again and again and again.

While the names of the pensioners are carefully hidden behind Civil Service regulations. They include former Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.) now serving a bribery sentence stemming from the investigation of the Henry and Murray Garrson war contracting firms.

May's pension of $3342 a year, based on his 16 years' service, is slightly higher than the average. It started February 1, 1947, and he should have collected about $11,676 by now.

Former Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) who is serving a payroll-padding sentence in the Danbury, Conn., Federal prison, will be eligible for a pension slightly smaller than May's when he reaches age 62 in 1957.

While no one is yet receiving the maximum pension of $9375 which is possible after 30 years' service, several Congressmen are at or near that mark if they should decide to quit or are defeated.

Irons said only six Congressmen were added to the pension rolls during the last year. The next jump will come in November when some members will retire and others will be defeated.

To be eligible, Congressmen must serve at least six years although it does not have to be continuous.

Their pension is figured by taking 2½ percent of their basic salary and multiplying it by the number of years service up to a limit of three fourths of the member's last salary.

Tribesmen Revolt Near Iraq Border; Battle Reported

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 4 (U.P.). Tribesmen near the Iraq border, possibly incited by Russian broadcasts, revolted yesterday and the Army high command announced that a battle was in progress today.

Government troops captured the fortress stronghold of the rebel Javanrudi tribe, an army spokesman said, and Air Froce planes carried out half a dozen raids, bombing mud huts and tents. Reinforcements were on their way from Tehran.

The uprising started when the Javanrudi tribe, comprising about 4000 familes in the province of Kermanshah, spurned a Tehran ultimatum to surrender arms and ammunition under the policy disarming all tribes. The Javanrudi are an offshoot of Kurdish tribes, who long have wanted to create a separate Kurdish state.

"Secessionist" sentiment has been whipped up recently by broadcasts from a secret radio station on the Soviet side of the Azerbaijan border.

D. C. Unprepared for Attack, Medical Society Points Out

point of view," said Wiprud.

The medical society, comprising 1500 practicing doctors, concluded its letter to Hill with "the hope that your committee will recommend appropriations for an adequate civil defense program for Washington."

Hill Comments

After receiving the Medical Society letter, Hill told a reporter: "The defense of the Capital is the very definite and direct responsibility of Congress. It would be awful if we do not meet that responsibility by providing sufficient money for an adequate and efficient preparedness program."

With only $30,000, General Young has indicated to Congress the District could appoint a full-time civil defense director but that he would not have much activity to supervise.

The larger amount, $290,000, would be used to set up an air raid warning net, a command post, an operations staff and to start training auxiliary police and firemen.

The demand for more civil defense funds by the local doctors follows closely published statements by Representative Bates that he found no public support for a civil defense program here at this time. Bates led the House drive for the smaller $30,000 fund.

Wiprud sought to spike that contention in his letter to Hill by recalling that the society established a Committee on Emergency Medical Services three years ago.

The principal task of the committee, Wiprud said, was to develop an emergency medical program which would be adequate should a disaster befall Washington.

Early last month the medical society announced a course for physicians and members of related professions in treatment of A-bomb injuries.

Baltimore Woman Dies, Husband Hurt in Crash

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Sept. 4 (AP).—A young Baltimore, Md., woman died and her husband was seriously injured today when the small private plane in which they were flying crashed a mile and a half north of the Broward County airport.

Mrs. Karl Joseph Zeuch, jr., about 20, died on the way to the hospital after being pulled from the wreckage of an Aeronica aircraft. Her husband suffered severe lacerations, bruises and possible internal injuries. Zeuch said they had left Stuart, Fla., this morning.

Beauties Preen for Cameras Only

MISS SANDRA STAHL,

"Miss Washington of 1950," beams confidently at National Airport yesterday as she boards plane for Atlantic City with high hopes she'll be "Miss America" after Saturday night.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4 (AP).—Fifty-four of the country's most beautiful girls parade in their bathing suits today—for cameras only.

The young ladies entered in the Miss America contest meet one another for the first time at the registration desk and then adjourn for the first of many picture-taking sessions during the week-long beauty spree.

The contestants pose in street clothes and evening gowns as well as bathing suits today. More pictures are scheduled for Tuesday morning, a big boardwalk parade in the afternoon and the contest begins in earnest Wednesday night.

Blondes, brunettes and redheads from 46 States, four cities, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico have been arriving in this resort city over the weekend, adding beauty to the holiday crowds.

They will be judged on figure, face, poise, talent and personality in three preliminary sessions Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Each night a third of the girls will appear in bathing suits, a third in evening gowns and a third in the talent division.

Fifteen will be selected as finalists Saturday and judges will choose one as Miss America by midnight.

third of the human race works in virtual bondage. In the totalitarian countries, the individual has no right the state is bound to respect.

"His occupation is selected by his masters.

"His livelihood is fixed by decree, at the minimum which will give him strength to work another day . . ."

In illustrating the Communist propaganda system and one reason it is No. 1 target of the Crusade for Freedom, Eisenhower said:

"Americans are dying in Korea tonight.

Dying for Ideals

"They are dying for ideals they have been taught to cherish more than life itself; but it will be written and said tonight in Warsaw, in Prague, in Moscow, that they died for American imperialism.

"Unfortunately millions of people will believe this devilish libel against American soldiers who have taken up arms in defense of liberty, a second time in a tormented decade.

"Those millions will hear no other version but a hissing, hating tirade against America . . .

"This slander against our purposes and our men in Korea is merely one example of the campaign of hatred that is being waged against America and freedom around the globe . . .

"We need powerful radio stations abroad, operated without government restrictions, to tell in vivid and convincing form about the decency and essential fairness of democracy.

"These stations must tell of our aspirations for peace . . . and of our constant readiness to cooperate with any and all who have these same desires.

"Only then can we counteract the Communist deceit."

Eisenhower said that Americans will be given a chance to contribute donations with which the necessary equipment can be bought for the crusade.

Pravda Cites British Air 'Violations'

MOSCOW, Sept. 4 (AP).—Pravda, Communist Party newspaper, today charged British planes with 50 violations of the Chinese Communist border of Hongkong.

A dispatch by Tass, official Soviet news agency, from the Chinese Communist capital of Peiping said British armed forces at Hongkong were carrying on violations of the border "for purposes of provocation." More than 100 British planes flew over Chinese territory in 50 different instances from June through August, the dispatch said.

The Tass dispatch said a British ship entered Chinese waters on August 17 and fired repeatedly on Chinese armed forces. It charged that "workers' movements" were being suppressed in Hongkong.

British police, Tass declared, "were persecuting Chinese citizens in the British crown colony. More than 30 Chinese societies have been forbidden, Tass said.

Atlantic Pact Rearmament Program Falls Far Short of Defense Needs, Deputies Admit

LONDON, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The Council of Deputies for the North Atlantic Treaty States admitted today its new combined rearmament program falls far short of that necessary to defend Western Europe against Communist aggression.

More manpower, more military material, more money are needed and at once.

"Much remains to be done," the deputies said in a communique issued at conclusion of their present series of meetings here, "and further effort and sacrifices will be required."

The deputies, who met under the chairmanship of Charles M. Spofford, United States delegate, recommended the "immediate placing of orders" for planes, tanks and guns. This short-term, high-priority program will use up all existing production capacity, they admitted.

The long-term armament program will have to await the meetings of the Atlantic Pact foreign ministers themselves in New York September 15.

The deputies announced the start of "urgent" studies for:

1. Strengthening the military organization of the treaty, including creation of a supreme commander of combined Atlantic forces.

2. Fair distribution of the ultimate cost of the program as well as division of U. S. aid.

The short-term program will be carried out on a "cash-and-carry" basis. For example, if France wants British planes she will have to pay for them with her own money, or with money received from the U. S.

The high-priority program covers between 50 and 60 items needed by modern armies in two general categories—production in countries for their own use and production in excess of home requirements for other pact members.

The deputies did not consider the possibility of either German manpower or production. Spofford said that was a problem for the Big Three governments to decide.

One of the major problems before the deputies was the examination of the promises by individual countries to increase their defense efforts. The study disclosed none of the 12 Nations had pledged enough men, money or material.

Each of the deputies, therefore, will return to his country with proposals for increasing effort and report back at the next meeting in New York.

French Claim New Tank Is Superior to Ours

PARIS, Sept. 4 (NYHT).—French planners hope that a newly developed French tank, described as superior to American models now in production, will be adopted as a basic type not only for the French Army but for the entire Atlantic Pact defense force.

Standardization of equipment by the 12 Atlantic Pact powers has been accepted in principle by the Atlantic Pact Council. France wants the creation of a combined production board with the authority to see that this kind of co-ordination becomes a reality.

Moslem eLader Dies

CAIRO, Sept. 4 (AP).—Sheikh Mohammed Mamoun Al Shinawi, 74, rector of the 1000-year-old Alazhar University and spiritual leader of millions of Moslems, died yesterday at Ismailia.

At the start of the Palestine fighting in May of 1948 he called for a holy war against the Jews. He was a graduate of Alazhar and had been rector of that center of Islamic learning since January, 1948. He had been religious adviser to Kng Fouad, father of the present King Farouk, and a member of the crown council which consults with the throne on affairs of the royal family.

Dewey Agrees To Run Again

come the party's choice for Senator.

The Democrats will meet in Rochester Wednesday to name candidates for Governor and United States Senator. Senator Herbert H. Lehman, former Governor of New York, is almost certain of renomination for the Senate, but the Democratic nomination for Governor is still wide open.

Dewey said Hanley's candidacy for the Senate was a "condition," which he attached to his own decision to run again for Governor.

Hanley told reporters he had not decided whether to become a candidate for the Senate, but would announce his decision today.

Dewey emphasized the international crisis and the Korean war as a major reason in reversing his decision.

The twice-defeated presidential nominee said:

"Since my statement last June, our Nation has become embroiled in a conflict which threatens to become world-wide and our country is in great danger . . .

"Today the people of New York are being asked to make sacrifices for our defense in the face of deadly peril. . . ."

"In good conscience I cannot ask others to serve unless I am equally willing to serve."

He added in his letter to Hanley:

"We will not survive this crisis unless we have a strong and constructive opposition party to force correction of the errors and incompetence of the National Administration and to compel it to take a larger view of our dangers and more effective action to meet them."

U. S. Court to Hear Swanson Petition

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 4 (AP).—A three-judge tribunal will convene here Tuesday to hear a petition of Gregory Hayes Swanson, Martinsville Negro attorney denied admission to the University of Virginia Law School for graduate study.

Swanson's application was rejected by the University's board of visitors on July 14 because of his race. He petitioned the Federal court to enjoin the board from such action against him or others similarly situated.

The petition asking temporary and permanent injunctions against university officials was filed here August 8. Since all papers have been filed, the court is expected to consider only the permanent restraining order asked by Swanson.

2 Candidates Urge Maryland Tax Repeal

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4 (AP).—Governor Lane is the only one of six candidates for chief executive of Maryland flatly to favor retention of the sales tax he instituted.

Two candidates are for repeal and the other three declined a definite answer to a direct question by the Maryland State Teachers Association, Inc.

The questions and answers are published in the September issue of the Maryland Teacher, monthly publication of the association.

"Does your platform, as candidate for Governor, include the repeal of the sales tax or a reduction of other forms of taxation?" the association asked.

Harry Kemper and Stephen B. Peddicord, two of the five Democratic candidates, said they are for repeal.

"My platform does not include repeal of the sales tax," Governor Lane replied, "because without its revenues many State services, including the public school program would have to be curtailed."

Mahoney, the principal contender to get the Democratic nomination from Lane, refrained from a direct reply. But he stated that "the public school system could have been improved years ago, without the imposition of a sales tax."

Both Lane and Mahoney have promised in recent campaign talks to seek modification of the sales tax if elected. Each has said he favors raising the exemption from its present 14 cents and taking the tax off some restaurant meals.

Herbert Larrabee, the fifth Democratic candidate, said "the question of the sales tax—its continuance, repeal or modification—is too big for a mere cursory opinion."

Theodore R. McKeldin, the lone Republican candidate, skipped the issue. Generally, he offered the teachers his record as Mayor of Baltimore.

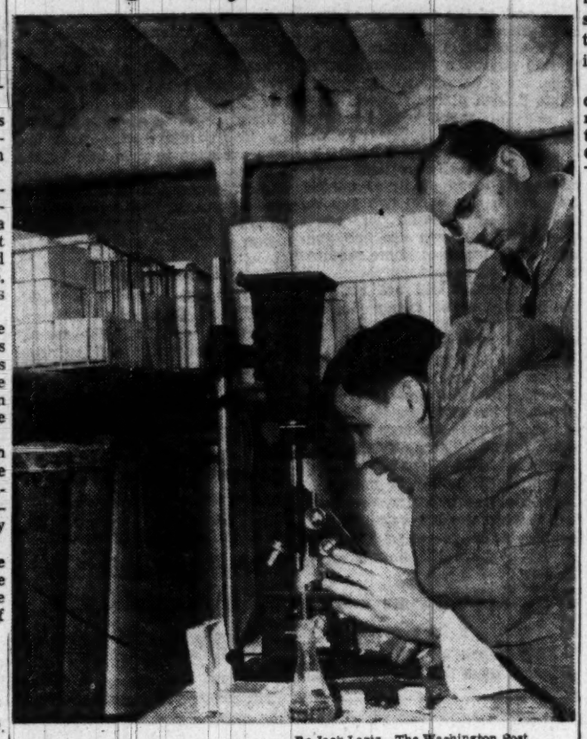
Gambling King Plans Playing Tour of Europe

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Silver-haired gambling king Wilbur Clark today said he is leaving this month for an extended tour of Europe, during which he hopes to "break the bank at Monte Carlo."

The head man at the fashionable Desert Inn is scheduled to leave September 21 on the Queen Elizabeth for a tour of all Europe's major gaming houses and an extended stay at Monte Carlo.

"I'm going to play at least $2000 in every house I visit," Clark said. "I feel lucky."

U. of Maryland Experiment Tests Quality of Ice Cream



By Jack Laris—The Washington Post

NICE WORK IF YOU CAN GET IT—Bundled up in cold-weather gear supplied by the football squad, Dr. W. S. Arbuckle and his assistant, Robert F. Drawbridge (right), examine ice cream sample to discover what makes it smooth and creamy

No one can question the contention that the present Washington heat constitutes "ice cream" weather.

And out at the University of Maryland they are not just talking about the weather—they are doing something about the ice cream.

For the past six months, Dr. W. S. Arbuckle, professor of dairy manufacture, has been conducting laboratory experiments to determine what factors most effect the smoothness, or melt-in-your-mouth qualities, of the frozen dessert.

One of the most pleasing circumstances of this work, according to Doctor Arbuckle, is that much of it is done in a cold room at temperatures of around 20 degrees below zero.

Bundled in heavy clothing, Dr. Arbuckle and his assistant, Robert F. Drawbridge, have examined hundreds of samples of ice cream under microscopes to ascertain their composition. This composition to a large extent determines whether the product will be smooth.

Actually, ice cream, when magnified 1000 times, appears to be composed of chunks of ice and pockets of air held in suspension by smaller particles of a semi-liquid sirup.

It is the relative size and number of these ice particles and their relation to the air pockets which determines the texture, Doctor Arbuckle said.

The best quality ice cream is composed of many small ice crystals and a like quantity of air pockets. As the crystals become larger in size and smaller in number, and the air pockets larger, the product loses its smoothness, he said.

Judge May Set November 7 For Referendum in Fairfax

A public referendum November 7 on a proposed change in Fairfax County government is slated to be set today by Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown.

The jurist has called a hearing at 10 a. m. on petitions calling for the vote, and indicated he will set the November date if he finds the papers in order. Purpose of the hearing is to establish validity of the petitions, signed by some 1500 county residents.

At the same time, the court will be asked by the county board of supervisors to order a ballot which will offer voters three alternatives in selecting the county's form of government. Under their proposal the voters would be asked if they favor a change from the existing executive secretary system, and if so, whether they prefer the county executive or the county manager plan.

The joint ballot was recommended by a 21-member commission set up by the supervisors last April to investigate all forms of government available to the country. While urging that the voters be given a choice, the commission strongly recommended the county executive plan as the most suitable for the county.

The commission's findings, released Sunday, brought mixed reactions from both proponents and opponents of the existing form of government.

Manning Gasch, a real estate man who first suggested that the study commission be established, said its report "refuted" accusations that he had "hand-picked" the group.

A vigorous foe of any change in the existing government, Gasch commented: "They certainly didn't recommend what I wanted. Their report seems to answer the many people who consistently have charged that I was permitted to hand pick the commission."

Although it has campaigned solely for the county manager form of government, the county's League of Women Voters accepted the recommendations favorably.

"We naturally would have preferred a simple ballot involving only the existing form and the county manager form of government," said Mrs. Edward Macy, president of the league. "However, if the supervisors feel the voters should be given another choice, we are agreeable as long as the ballot is worded in accordance with the State's optional forms act."

Commission spokesmen previously had stated their recommendation conformed to the optional forms act.

Another advocate of the county manager form, the Federation of Fairfax County Citizens Association, also expressed satisfaction with the report, despite its advocacy of the county executive system. Its president, Guy Bayes, said the report represented a "major victory" since the commission had recognized the need for a governmental change.

Not so satisfied was the Committee for Better Government in Fairfax County, a strong supporter of the county manager plan. The proposal to inject a third form of government into the issue, it asserted, was a "confusion tactic designed to split the vote of those seeking a change from the present system."

Gray Stallion Leads Timonium Fair Percheron Field

TIMONIUM, Md., Sept. 4 (AP).—Ura Degas, a gray stallion owned by William Page of Buckeystown, squared things today with Briletude, another Percheron competing at the Timonium Fair.

Ura Degas was judged grand champion of the class after winning two preliminary events. Briletude, shown by Frank Palmer of Olney, trailed Ura Degas all the way through to take the reserve championship.

At last year's fair, the judges placed the two horses exactly the opposite.

Ura Degas also took first place ribbons in classes for stallions four years old and over and senior champion. Another Percheron exhibited by age, Norvin Degas, was crowned junior champion stallion.

Two out-ofState exhibitors took away top honors in the Holstein dairy-cattle class. The Tull Brothers Farm of Seaford, Del., got the purple ribbon for its grand champion bull, Carnation Robinhood, which also was selected senior champion bull.

The junior champion bull in the class was Freidel Imperial Sensation Jos owned by Freidel Dairy Farm of Viola, Del.

D. C. Dispersal Move Part of Master Plan

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The President's plan for Government dispersal here is only one part of a three-part plan to provide the Nation with adequate civil defense in case of A-bomb attack.

The Washington part of the plan is designed to keep the Federal Government going despite an A-blitz here.

The other parts, due to be revealed in detail this month, are designed to keep intact the operating mechanism of the 48 State and countless local governments, even if bombs burst on Detroit, Dubuque, Dahlonega or anywhere else in the United States. Congress soon will be asked to vote millions for these programs.

Only the Federal and the Washington municipal plans have so far been revealed by the National Securities Resources Board.

Congressmen Protest

This has led numerous Congressmen to ask "What about my home town? It's vitally important to the Nation. Why bother about bureaucrats first?"

The result is that the plan for partial Federal dispersal into Maryland and Virginia has already drawn considerable opposition on the Hill. And prior to that the House hacked down the city's civil defense budget from what city officials consider a bare minimum of $290,000 to only $30,000.

Jess Larson, General Services Administrator, W. E. Reynolds, Public Buildings Commissioner, and others will testify this morning on the $139,800,000 Federal Government dispersal plan before the Senate Appropriations Committee.

It appeared yesterday that the success or failure of the plan at this session may well depend on the impression they make today.

Young Gets Friendly Reception

Last Friday the same committee considered the District's request for restoration of the $290,000 item. Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young received a friendly reception when he made the request. Committee voting on the bill probably will begin Thursday. The District money is in the supplemental appropriation bill and the Administration hopes the Federal plan money will be added to the same measure.

Although the NSRB has enforced a strict "no comment" on discussion of any civil defense plans, here are some facts about the master plan for the Nation.

The plan assumes that the worst thing a bomb could do would be to paralyze the Nation's leadership. If a next war is to be the blitz war it has so often been pictured, then this Nation cannot afford to be without leadership—executive, legislative and judicial—for even the shortest period of time.

Hence NSRB has rushed through first the plan for partial dispersal of the Federal Government. The idea is not to save "bureaucrats' hides" but to disperse the key men of the key agencies so they would not all be killed at one blow.

Second Level of Command

Next, in the American system, the 48 State governments must continue to operate in case of attack within their areas. They also form a second level of command should the Federal Government be knocked out.

Finally, the city governments (and their associated suburban political agencies such as country governments) must be kept intact to prevent chaos in any bombed city.

Because Washington as a municipality is so interlocked with Washington as the National Capital, NSRB has looked upon the District's civil defense plan as a model for all the Nation's cities.

Yet because NSRB is not ready with the plan for States and cities elsewhere, its officials hesitate to go before Congress at this time on behalf of the District—or even of the Federal Government dispersal plan.

Plan Must Be Cleared

NSRB had hoped to have the master plan ready for a meeting of the Council of State Governments in Chicago this coming Friday. But it has yet to be cleared by NSRB Chairman W. Stuart Symington and, finally, by President Truman. Presidential approval is expected because Mr. Truman has adopted the bulk of the NSRB plan for dispersal of the Government into Maryland and Virginia, indicative of his agreement with the basic concept.

Now it appears that the plan won't be ready for Congress until the end of the month. And Congress is expected to have adjourned before then.

NSRB's plan is not concerned only with what the White House last week called "the continuity of essential functions of Government in event of emergency." It is very much concerned with both mass and individual shelters for the Nation's population.

The master civil defense plan will propose that in those States where no plan has been adopted as yet the Governor should call the State legislature into session at once to do so. These State plans, NSRB hopes, will be similar to the District plan adopted by Congress.

Needed: Money

But like the District plan, the State plans will cost money—not piddling amounts like the $30,000 the House voted for the District but millions of dollars in the bigger States.

The master plan stakes out the areas of financial responsibility—who shall pay for the costly stockpiles of medical supplies, the extensive new air-raid alarm systems, the vast new shelters and the reinforcement of building basements for use as shelters.

The principle of the plan—as of today, at least—is that the Federal Government should pay for those costs which are beyond the normal State or municipal functions. Hence an alternate communications system for police or fire departments might be a city charge. But an air-raid alarm system or concrete shelters would be Federal charges.

A new communications and alarm system, for example, might cost $100,000 or more in a big city. Such systems must be linked to all the suburban areas, of course.

Medical Dumps Required

Medical supply dumps, especially of blood plasma, probably will be on a regional basis and wholly a Federal charge. They then could be rushed into any area struck by bombs.

A Senate Armed Services Subcommittee consisting of Senators Kefauver (D., Tenn.), Russell (D., Ga.) and Cain (R., Wash), is waiting for the NSRB bills. Chairman Kefauver said it will hold hearings as soon as the bills reach the Capitol.

Kefauver was luke warm on the Federal disposal plan, however. He suggested that something should be done at once to provide a means of choosing a new Congress quickly should the entire membership, or most of it, be wiped out by a single blow.

He suggested that perhaps the Governors should be given power to name House members to vacancies as they now do Senators. But that would require a constitutional amendment.

A suggestion for such a study was advanced months ago by Representative Holifield (D., Calif.), a member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee. Holifield's bill has been sent to NSRB for comment. None has been forthcoming so far.

163d Session

Presbyterian Synod to Sit In Virginia

WINCHESTER, Va., Sept. 4 (Spl.).—More than 300 delegates are expected to attend the 163d annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of Virginia which opens here Tuesday.

A number of committee sessions were held today in preparation for the first session of the synod at 2 p. m. Wednesday in the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. John Allen MacLean, pastor of Richmond's Ginter Park Presbyterian Church, moderator, will preside at the opening session. Principal business Tuesday will be election of a moderator.

Doctor MacLean will preach the sermon at a service Wednesday night. His subject will be "Faith in The Future." On Wednesday, devotional services and business sessions will occupy the lay and clerical delegates. The synod will adjourn Thursday.

A special historical service is planned for Wednesday night at the Old Stone Church here, where the synod met in 1790, the year after its organization. The speaker will be Dr. Ben R. Lacy, jr., president of Union Theological Seminary and moderator of the Presbyterian Church, United States General Assembly.

The synod comprises 457 churches in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

Pastor of the host church is Dr. Ronald S. Wilson.

Fire House Plan Grants Given D. C.

The Housing and Home Finance Agency has granted the District $16,500 to assist with the preparation of plans and blueprints for two fire engine houses.

Estimated cost of the projects is $550,500. The HHFA announcement said each fire house will house a two-company unit, will have dormitory, kitchen, living room and storage space, and showers.

Fire Department officials yesterday said the projected site for the houses are 24th st. and Alabama ave. se., and 49th and E. Capitol sts.

HHFA "planning advances" are to be returned when construction is started.

Model Mental Law Sent to All States

The Federal Security Agency yesterday sent to all State Governors a "model law" designed to insure that mentally ill persons are properly hospitalized instead of being jailed like criminals.

Prepared by the National Institute of Mental Health, with the advice of 40 prominent lawyers and psychiatrists, the report is intended to guide State legislatures in reforming harsh and obsolete statutes. It grew out of discussions at the 1949 and 1950 conferences of Governors.

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing said in a letter to Governors the model law seeks to assure these things:

"First, maximum opportunity for prompt medical care; second, protection against emotionally harmful or degrading treatment, and third, protection against wrongful confinement and deprivation of rights."

He said some States already have hospitalization laws that are "both medically and legally sound." But others still have statutes drafted in the days when it was believed there was nothing to do for the "insane" but to lock them up in a mad house.

Under many existing laws, Ewing said, "days and even weeks of formalities must be undergone before a disturbed patient can gain admission to a mental hospital.

The model law provides speedy procedures for voluntary admission to mental hospitals. But in cases where a patient is either unwilling or unable to give his consent for needed treatment, provision is made for involuntary hospitalization on the certification of medical authorities.

Such commitals, however, would be temporary and the patient would be released promptly at his request unless formal action was instituted to authorize the confinement.

Fewer Accidents

Ninth Year Of Driving Called Safest

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Sept. 4 (AP).—You'd better be particularly wary of accidents six to eight years after learning to drive an automobile.

This was indicated today in a report of a Federal Government study of driving records of a group of chauffeurs and truck drivers seeking Government jobs.

The report said "The accident frequency rate rises very sharply during the sixth, seventh and eighth years of experience, then drops again, so that those of our eligibles who had nine years of experience seem to be the safest of all.

The report was made to the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association at the Pennsylvania State College by Dr. John F. Scott and two colleagues.

They said that some of the tests used by other psychologists—such as intelligence and verbal-ability tests—as a means of detecting accident proneness, were of no value to them. In the Federal service, they said, "past performance" and "road performance" studies provide the basis for selecting drivers.

In another report, Professor Paul Witty of Northwestern University said this Nation is neglecting its "greatest resourse"—gifted and talented children.

Professor Witty said that only a few States provide special educational facilities designed to allow proper development of the talents of the superior child.

"Although a small number of administrators and some teachers recognize the desirability of devising curricula sufficiently comprehensive to challenge these pupils, many others fail to understand and appreciate the role of gifted persons in social welfare."

Declaring that this Nation needs men and women of superior ability as leaders in business, education, journalism, labor and government, Prof. Witty continued:

"Not only to do the gifted require appropriate educational opportunities, but they need also guidance and encouragement in order to enter challenging and individually suitable occupations."

D. C.-Baltimore Quartet Wins Bridge Title

The team of Fred Karpin, Washington; Ralph Spritzer, Arlington; Miss Margaret Hamilton, Baltimore, and Arthur Schlessinger, Baltimore, last night won the team-of-four championship of the Mid-Atlantic Regional Bridge Tournament.

The event concluded the tournament at the Shoreham Hotel.

The winning team, all of whom except Spritzer are life masters, won 37½ out of the 56 boards played. This was a half board better than the second place team of Lewis G. Tubbs, W. A. Poissant, J. M. McDermott, all of Arlington, and J. G. Stone, of Washington.

Third place went to a quartet of life masters, Mrs. Edith Seligman, Ambrose Kasner, both of New York, Alvin Roth, Washington, and Dr. Arthur Halasky, Newport News, Va. Leaders at the midpoint of the match, this team ended up with 36½ boards. A total of 33 teams were entered.

In a match that lasted well past midnight Sunday, R. A. Miller, York, Pa., and H. J. Bonney, New York City, won the open pair championships with the enormous score of 390½ master points.

The winning score was 29½ points better than that of Miss Margaret Hamilton and Arthur Schlessinger, who finished in second place.

W. F. Million and W. M. Lingley of Arlington, took third place with 358 points, and Dr. W. S. Benedict and J. R. Moore of Washington, finished fourth with 351 points.

Ban on Hunting Rifles Is Lifted in Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The Allied military security board today lifted restrictions on hunting rifles and shotguns for Germans.

It informed the German Ministry of Economics that it would permit the use of up to 25,000 rifles and 50,000 shotguns for the present hunting season.

Pistols, revolvers and semi-automatic weapons are still forbidden by the Allied High Commission.

Jan Clayton Bears Son

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Robert Lerner, heir to the Lerner Women's shop chain fortune, today announced the birth of a 6-pound son to his wife, singer Jan Clayton, who was the leading lady of the Broadway hit "Carousel." The child was born yesterday. The Lerners have three daughters.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Firemen Put Out Flames After Air Crash

Nehru Reaches Gauhati In Quake-Area Tour

CALCUTTA, India, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru arrived by plane at Gauhati today to inspect the devastation wrought by the August 15 earthquake, which touched off floods, landslides and after-shocks in Assam.

As Nehru reached Gauhati, superstitious villagers at Tangla, 50 miles to the north, claimed that small fish were dropping with rain from the sky. Natives said the phenomenon portended something "very ominous." Nehru will fly to Dibrugarh Tuesday.

British Boo AFL Speaker Scoring Reds

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 4 (AP).—Mixed boos and cheers greeted an American labor leader's denunciation of "Soviet imperialistic aggression" today at the opening of the British Trades Union Congress.

Alex Rose, representing the American Federation of Labor, told the trade union delegates the United States wants no Communist exports.

"American labor will have no truck with the phony Stockholm 'peace' appeal," Rose said. "To American labor, Moscow's self-styled partisans of peace are only the partisans of war. That is why we want none of these Communists' exports—whether they be Stockholm petitions, crab meat, furs, skins, or skinners of any kind."

Rose, vice president of the Liberal Party of New York, said "the time for swagger-stick diplomacy and imperialistic politics in Asia is over."

"In Korea," he added, "for the first time it is America which fights first instead of coming in later. This dispels the cynical notion of some people that we are ready to fight Soviet imperialist aggression and totalitarian Communist subversion to the last European."

At the end of Rose's speech, the volume of booing about equalled that of applause from the 915 delegates, representing almost 8,000,000 British workers.

H. L. Bullock, TUC president, demanded Communist "troglodytes (cave men)" behind the iron curtain and their "stooges" on this side. He called for wholehearted support of the United Nations action in Korea. He said the world faced the "tragic possibilities of a general war."

HOW TELEVISION BENEFITS YOUR CHILDREN

OWN A Motorola AND YOU KNOW YOU OWN THE BEST

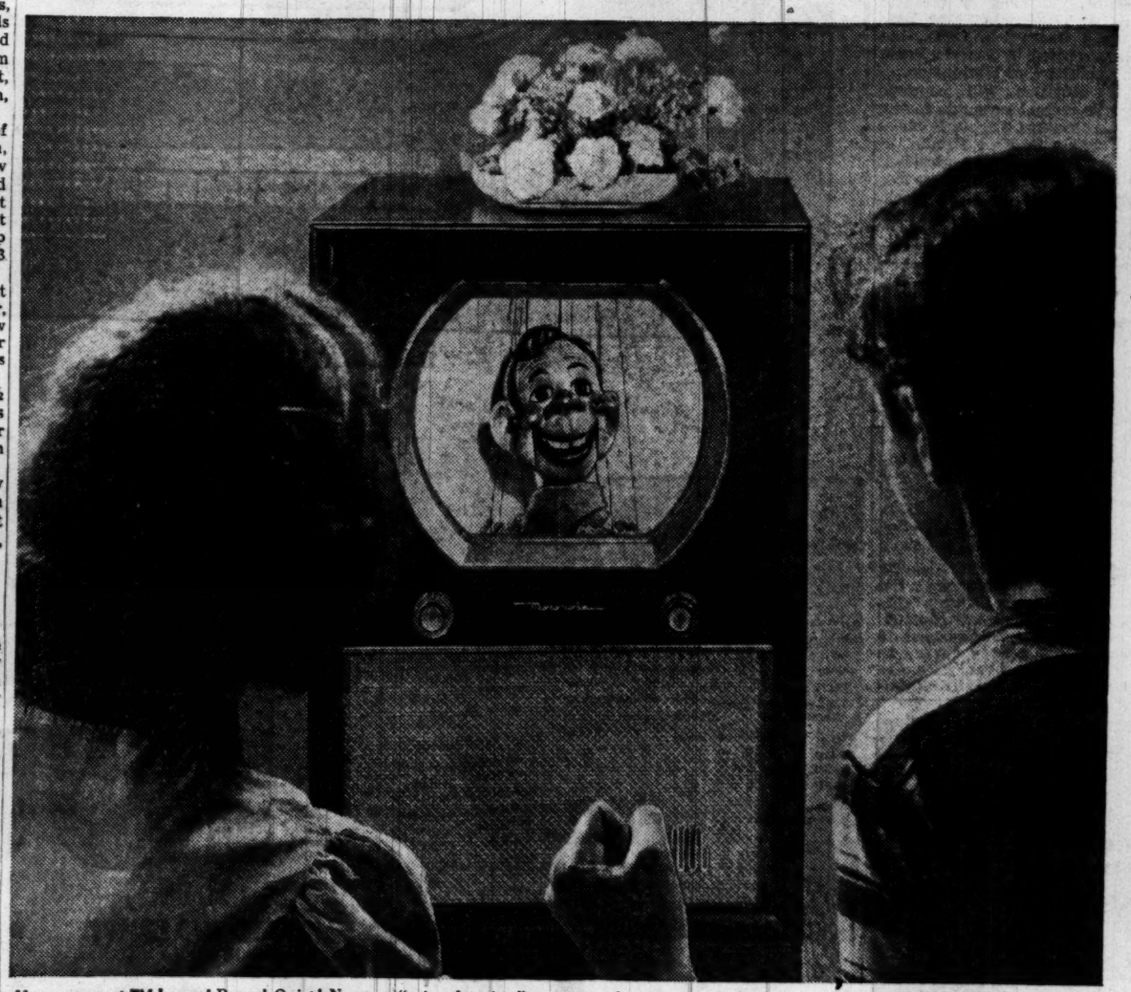
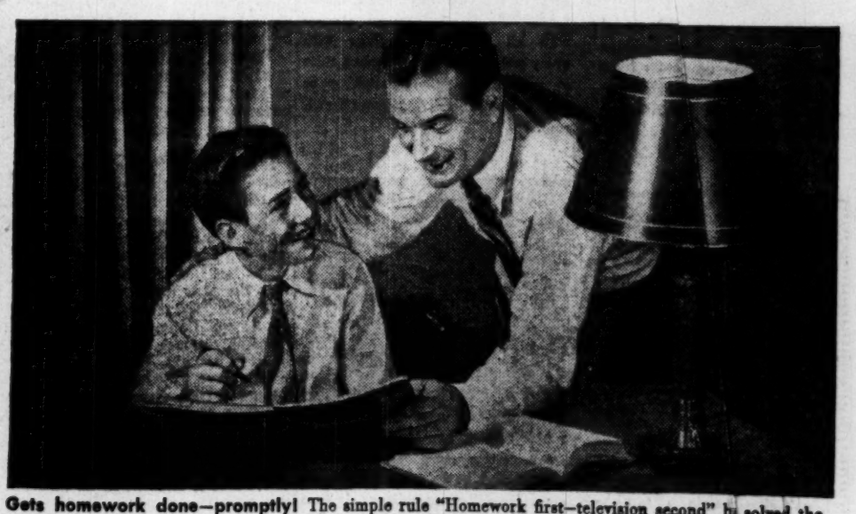
Motorola, leader in television, shows how TV can mean better behavior at home and better marks in school!



Home, sweet TV home! Peace! Quiet! No more "rainy day riots"... with television keeping small fry out of mischief . . . and out of mother's hair. And that's just one of many TV blessings. "Taking away television from children who 'act up' is a punishment that really works," writes an authority on child psychology. "The very thought of missing some pet program turns little lions into lambs. And, incidentally, those favorite programs in the late afternoon are the world's finest magnet for getting tardy youngsters home on time for dinner."



Gets homework done—promptly! The simple rule "Homework first—television second" has solved the homework problem in thousands of homes . . . has actually made children more interested in school work. "Television," says the New York Times, "can be enjoyed in healthy moderation in the same ways sports or movie-going, but only the mother and father can make certain this will be the case."

Strengthens family ties! Educators, religious and social workers all agree that TV is a strong force for bringing parents and children together to enjoy clean, wholesome entertainment right in the home.

No eyestrain! The Journal of the American Medical Association states, "Television in itself does not produce eyestrain." If television seems to tire a child's eyes, probable answer is—he needs an eye examination.

Motorola's leadership in cabinet design as well as performance is recognized with the 1950 Fashion Academy Gold Medal Award. Typical example of Motorola supremacy is this Table Model 17T3. Clear, steady 16" picture, only 2 simple controls, Built-in-Antenna, price only $229.95. View it at your dealer's along with other beautiful Motorola models from $189.95 to $650. Then let a Motorola demonstration in your home show you how much TV enjoyment can benefit your own children.

Target Dispersal

Wherever there is a concentration of vital defense facilities, there is an inviting target for an atomic bomb. Washington is now such a target. It contains, within a small area, a high proportion of the country's resources in leadership, brains and governmental experience; it contains the sole meeting place of the people's elected representatives; it contains the documents and records essential to effective administration of public affairs. An atomic bomb dropped on the Capital today could have a temporarily paralyzing effect on American effectiveness in war. In view of the now known fact that a potential enemy possesses atomic bombs, it would be sheer folly to present such a target. Accordingly, the President has wisely proposed a dispersal plan which is to be submitted to the Senate Appropriations Committee today.

The President's plan, based on a painstaking study by the National Security Resources Board and other agencies, looks to the removal from metropolitan Washington of the most important defense activities. It would relocate them at scattered points within a 30-mile radius of the Capital. Its approach is, therefore, radically different from the small-scale dispersal undertaken during the last war; nonessential agencies were then sent away from the Capital to other urban centers in order to diminish congestion here—a reasonable course at a time when Washington could be considered almost wholly safe from air raids. But in a future war it cannot be taken for granted that this or any other American city will be immune. Removal of strategic functions from the Capital will serve two purposes: (1) by distributing those functions, it will make them individually less vulnerable and at any rate prevent any simultaneous disruption of war activities; (2) it will make the Capital itself a much less desirable target from an enemy's point of view and thus protect the civilian population here.

The last consideration seems to have been missed by congressional critics of the President's proposal. Those who suggest that vital defense activities be removed to Chicago, St. Louis or other large cities are simply asking that these places be made more tempting to hostile bombers. They need, instead, the same kind of protection by dispersal that the President has urged for Washington. They will require and should receive Federal aid in taking such precautions. In an atomic war, concentration is the gravest of all dangers.

Among the agencies consulted in drafting the President's plan for Washington was the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The dispersal program is in conformity with the commission's long-range recommendations for the development of Washington. It represents, therefore, no more than a push in the direction that ought to be taken by this community in any case. Urban concentration is now recognized to be a peacetime as well as a wartime hazard. Security considerations simply make more urgent a thoroughly desirable trend in city planning.

Transport Problems

A few days ago The Washington Post published a story by Marshall Andrews about the alarming shortage of freight cars which is steadily becoming more acute. The shortage had reached serious proportions before the Korean outbreak, and since then military requirements have added to the burden on the transportation system. The car shortage was preceded by car surpluses which were in evidence during 1949. The low earnings of the roads as well as those surpluses, which continued into 1950, resulted in a high rate of retirement of old cars, postponement of repairs, and very few orders for new cars. That was the situation when business began to improve and railway managements awoke to the fact that orders for new cars would have to be stepped up to meet a rapidly expanding demand for transportation facilities.

The present inadequacy of the car supply has been accentuated by heavy grain shipments that had been held under Government loans. Old grain is now competing for space with new crops that have to be moved at the same time. The five-day week has also reduced the carrying capacity of the roads. It is estimated that its effect is about the same as if 175,000 freight cars had been withdrawn from service.

Senator Morse thinks that the present transportation crisis would not have developed if the ICC had "been on the job and the railroads had been building box cars over the years." That, however, is hindsight, for until recently the roads have had more reason to fear loss of business than an increase in traffic. They could not have foreseen the sudden change in fortune that has turned car surpluses into shortages.

The roads are now trying to make up for lost time by stepping up car orders. The chairman of the ICC and the president of the Association of American Railroads say that more cars were ordered in July than in any single month in the past quarter of a century. Nevertheless, as Marshall Andrews notes, at current construction rates, cars now on order cannot all be delivered in less than 18 months. Moreover, new orders are not sufficient to offset the cars that are being scrapped. To prevent the situation from going from very bad to worse, car orders will not only have to be increased, but the rate at which they are being constructed will have to be accelerated.

Obviously, this construction program will entail heavy drains on steel supplies and emphasizes the need for a system of allocations that will enable the roads to meet the transportation requirements of the country—at a not too distant date.

Branding Russia

That the time is approaching when a spade will be called a spade is indicated by the issuance of an Army pamphlet on Why We Fight. In this document the enemy is named as "international communism," and this terminology was carried to Capitol Hill by Secretary Johnson in his plea for more military aid for Europe. "Everybody knows by that," says an Army spokesman, "that we mean Russia." Next time the Army sends out anything of the sort, he added, Russia will be spelled out, for the State Department has taken off the camouflage and allowed names to be called by way of identifying the enemy responsible for Western rearmament.

So the country is being prepared for the time when Russia will be named before the United Nations in any patent case that arises of an aggression by proxy which in fact is Russian. This is what Mr. Stassen has been pleading for. It is quite plain, however, that not all hypothetical cases could be so labeled, or that it would be strategically wise so to label them; and Mr. Stassen himself allowed for discretion, even in the kind of action to be taken in coping with any fresh aggression. He simply wanted the country not to pretend in all cases from now on, and his speech, which was rebroadcast throughout the country, carried conviction. What seems to have been in his mind is, say, a Bulgarian aggression on Greece which, it is perfectly obvious from the extension of Russia into Bulgaria, would, in fact, be Russian. The great mistake of the between-war years, according to Lord Vansittart's memoirs, was the unwillingness to call a spade a spade, and Mr. Stassen would not have this country repeat it. He, it seems to us, is basically right. Mr. Stassen ought, incidentally, to have included the kind of resolution which, in the event, he would sponsor before the United Nations.

Before the country gets into this danger zone, however, the Government might give a thought to the exact way the enemy is to be described in our propaganda so as to provide maximum value both to our cause and to our peace aims. "Know thine adversary!" warned Cromwell. Is it Russia? Is it communism? In the former case, we would stand guilty of indicting a nation, as we did in the cases of Germany and Japan, with disastrous results to the peace. If we call communism the enemy, then we virtually foreswear our own propaganda abroad, which is aimed at the conversion of "lost souls," in George F. Kennan's words.

Moreover, if the enemy be described as communism, then the issue is made to look like a war between economic systems, with capitalism in the role of adversary. Is this effective? We think not. For it is not true. It merely helps the Russian propagandists to show their people that the capitalists want to bring them under a system of capitalism which is coequal in the Russian propagandists' terminology with tyranny and which in fact no longer exists anywhere. There is something bloodless in the antithesis, something unreal; for men do not die for a system, especially when they know that the antithesis is inexact. Communists in Russia form a gang—a fraction of the population armed with the power to hold the people by the throat. And these are the terrorized victims of what has been called knouto-tyranny. It is this state of subjection to which our propaganda must be addressed so as to hold out the hope of liberation from a status as cannon fodder and serfdom.

It is thus a most important question that the Army has raised, and one that cannot be answered by simple minds. Perhaps a leaf from the copybook of the Kremlin may not be out of order. The oligarchs and warmongers there don't pillory America or the Americans. Oh, dear, no Americans are their friends, exploited by "Wall Street warmongers" or "cannibals" or "fascists." These mythical monsters become real as the tools of propaganda because they are personalized. The Soviet's chiefs seek to create the impression that they are liberators of American men and women oppressed by capitalistic exploiters. They pretend they are just as American as Americans. This, of course, doesn't come off, though a similar appeal does in some other countries, for it carries no connotation of strangeness or apartness, only of fellow-feeling.

The Russian moguls and their publicity agents strive in their propaganda to be fellow Asians in Asia and fellow-Europeans in Europe, even if they cannot quite identify themselves with particular nations. They use a rifle shot technique in their propaganda in the countries they wish to undermine. We must follow suit—at Soviet expense. The Kremlin warmongers are our enemies, not the Russian people, not even the Russian soldiers. It is a nice but extremely important problem to be resolved, this problem of how to call the propaganda shots, and it deserves much study and consideration before we start to repeat the propaganda mistakes of the last experience with an enemy.

Blunderbuss

The McCarran bill, which comes up for consideration in the Senate today, is as dangerous to the national security it pretends to protect as to the American tradition of personal freedom it utterly ignores. In the present crucial situation, the country needs tough, realistic measures to prevent spying and sabotage by professional foreign agents. The President has asked Congress to enact such measures; his recommendations are embodied in the Magnuson bill and are included also in the McCarran bill. But the McCarran bill provides, in addition, an elaborate, unworkable arrangement for registering and punishing everyone who may be designated a Communist or a Communist sympathizer. The effect of this is to make more difficult the real job of catching spies and saboteurs.

Counterespionage and countersabotage call for precision techniques. They demand a pinpoint selection of targets and sharpshooting accuracy in hitting them. The McCarran bill proposes to go at the task with a blunderbuss. It would hit loyal and disloyal persons almost indiscriminately on the off chance that there might be some spies or saboteurs among them. But the fact of the matter is that the Communist Party and the Communist front organizations at which this antiquated weapon is aimed are not likely to include actual foreign agents. Such agents are not interested in ideology or propaganda, and they do not advertise their dangerous missions by becoming members of suspect groups. The FBI can be counted on to isolate them and deal with them effectively—but not if its manpower and energies have to be devoted to rounding up large numbers of Communists and of loyal but misguided Americans who have been duped into associating with Communists.

The McCarran bill has a hyperpatriotic gloss that gives it a spurious appeal because it seems to hit the Communists hard. In point of fact, however, it would give the now virtually impotent Communist Party a tremendous lift. By striking at the "Communist fronts," it would strike at many innocent persons who have merely exercised traditional American rights of association. And it would force these persons into alliance with the Communists in championing American freedoms. There are clear indications that this is precisely what the Communist Party hopes for. The tactics with which it has opposed the McCarran bill are tactics deliberately designed to get it enacted.

There are momentous issues at stake in the Senate debate that will begin today. The House vote on the somewhat similar Wood bill last week reveals how rapidly hysteria has run. We hope that the Senate, in considering the protection of American security, will weigh the great values that have been the historic source of that security. It is human freedom that we are striving to make secure. The defense of freedom is surely not to be found in its destruction.

New York Scramble

With the announcement of Governor Dewey that he will accept the Republican nomination for Governor of New York, the Republicans have returned coup for coup to the New York Democrats. The Democrats scored in their trade of an ambassadorship to Mayor O'Dwyer for a resignation in time to compel an unexpected New York mayoralty election. The municipal election will give them all the advantage normally given to the Republicans in the nonpresidential election years, no matter what their choice of candidates. For New Yorkers always vote in large numbers in a mayoralty election and the city is heavily Democratic. The Republicans had counted on the luxury of the off-year balloting, when, with the city vote relatively light, upstate New York has usually a mathematical superiority. Elated, the Democrats set about choosing candidates in the apparent belief that it did not make too great a difference whom they chose, provided they observed the orthodox New York political rules for constructing a ticket representing geographical, nationality and religious group balance.

This Democratic threat to take over the governorship, as well as retain the New York mayoralty and the United States Senate seat of Senator Lehman accounts for the Republican draft of Governor Dewey for a try at a third term. Important Dewey associates joined the movement, which at first was the sole inspiration of the New York Herald Tribune. Now Governor Dewey's action has changed the whole political situation, shifting the scramble to the Democratic side. A Dewey campaign could make heavy inroads on Democratic strongholds in New York City, and, moreover, may have important bearing on the 1952 presidential campaign.

THE STAR

Whether to keep the star
Concealed within the hand,
Or now to fling it far
Along the darkened land . . .
That is the thing I ask
The answer none can know.

The light kept for my eyes
Would blind me as the snow
Blinds the rash traveler
Under the Arctic skies.
Yet if I let it go
I shall have lost
The pulse of mystery,
The heat like radiant frost
That beats within my hand . . .
While the cold star goes down
And leaves the darkened land.

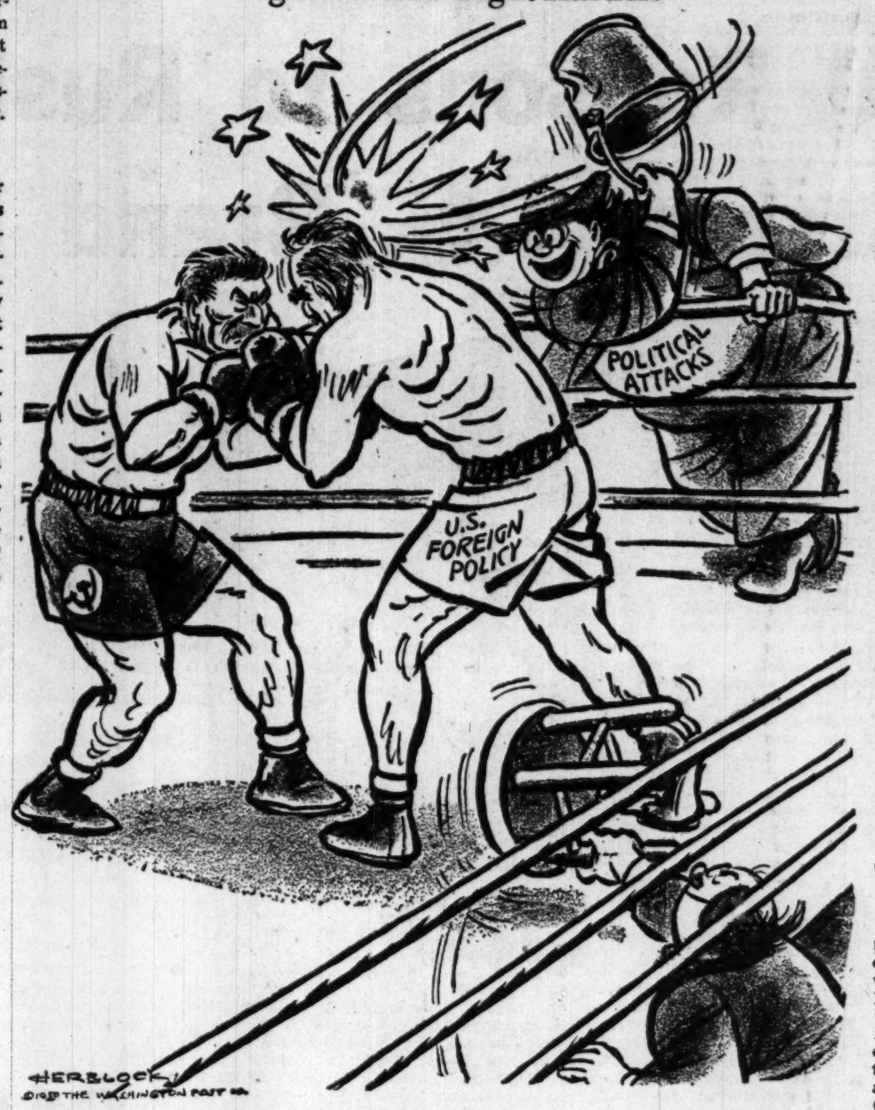
"Fight Harder! Fight Harder!"



Commies Hit Funny Bone

By Barrett McGurn

Comic Barrage In Italy

COMMUNISTS are opening a new front this month on their many-sided battle for Italy as they launch their first ideological comic book, Pioniere (The Pioneers). Publication of of the book has followed a year-long debate in Italian Communist circles about what to do about comics, a field in which the United States to date has won an almost total victory in Italy.

The debate about the comics started when Communists decided that Italy's children not only were passionately interested in comic books but that practically no other kind of printed material was finding any favor with them. Communist officials denounced the comics for being American in origin, largely American in design and in subject matter, and a disturbing source of "education in the myth of Americanism."

Communist-led children were urged to gather comic books for "peace bonfires" or for sale to paper dealers for funds to finance pro-Communist propaganda, but the appeals must have had little success. According to Dina Rinaldi, the Communist who is one of the leaders of the Communist-sponsored organization for pre-teen-age children, Italian children showed such a persistent devotion to the comics that they even set up little markets for swapping.

UNTIL now leaders of Communist organizations for children in Italy have kept in touch with children's organizations in Russia and the "popular democracies" of Poland, Hungary and Czechoslovakia for ideas on organizing children, but none of these countries has comic books, according to Miss Rinaldi. Many Communists passed a large part of the first half of this year ridiculing and attacking comic books as a debased form of literature, a poor form of art, and, at least in the form Italian children have known until now, an enemy of working class organizations.

L'Unita, the national Communist newspaper, gave space to Gianni Rodari for a long article which complained that good old-fahioned Italian words like "Ohi!" (Oh-hee) and "Ahime!" (Ah-hee-may) both meaning "Alas!" have now given way in the Italian child's vocabulary to "augh!" and "ough!" words taken untranslated from the American-drawn comics. A long list of other American words like bang, pow, sock, crack, zing, zip and conk also have edged in, pushing out the old Italian words "pam" and "bum" which once served to represent rifle fire in Italy and at one time dominated the field of sharp sounds.

The features Communists find objectionable in the great mass of non-Communist comics are clear. Many Italian comics describe the adventures of American cowboys like the Lone Ranger, Pecos Bill, Davy Crockett, Long Rifle (chief guide of the "Trans-quest Company"), "Boffalletto Bill," "Ted Furia" ("Ted Fury," a scout who is unterrorized by the fierce Cheyennes) and the Little Sheriff (a young man whose background is a banner which would be an American flag if it did not have 21 red and white stripes instead of 13). Another large share of the comics are endearing animal characters like Topolino (Mickey Mouse, literally "little rat"), Paperino (Donald Duck, literally "little goose"), Fratello Coniglietto (Br'er Rabbit "Little Brother Rabbit") and Bambi.

MR. RODARI and Miss Rinaldi have rounded up a talented group of artists and verse writers to give Italian children something in the line of comics with a "different educational content." Americans will be featured in the "Pioneers" comic, too, but, judging from the first issue, they will not be the fine, cleancut, valorous conquerors the other comics show. The first panel on the multi-colored cover of the first issue of Pioneers introduces "Jim Sullivan," an early nineteenth century slave trader at work in central Africa in quest of Negro natives to convert into "slaves for his country." Before the script is two pages old, Sullivan meets a setback. Bulanga, a native chief, crumples Sullivan's shirt front in his fist, smashes his liquor bottle and makes it clear that he will lead a fight against Sullivan in future episodes.

A popular "history" is another feature Pioneers will present. The first installment, done cleverly in colored sketches and rhyme, gives a revolutionary version of the founding of Rome. According to the story, Romulus and Remus, the mythical founders of Rome, escaped a royal persecutor through the fortuitous disobedience of the king's employes and the kindness of patch-clothed poor persons. Before the installment's end the king lies dead with two graphically illustrated daggers in his chest. Another of the regular features of the Pioneers will describe the adventures of a small Italian boy in spying on police in an effort to thwart anti-Fascist arrests.

Whether Italy's Communists will be able to convince the country's comic book enthusiasts that the slave trader is a more typical American than the Lone Ranger, and that the high-spirited American individualists are less attractive than the dagger-wielding assassins of the Romulus and Remus story remains to be seen. By the Communists' own count, however, the non-Communist comics still outnumber them 25 to 1 and enthusiasm for the non-Communist comics is unquestioned.

"Tergiversations"

Scarcely a day goes by without my gleaning from your editorials or from the column of some commentator grist for the Latin mill. Just recently you wrote editorially of the "tergiversations" of the Communist Party and of the fact that General MacArthur had "mistaken his proconsular role as that of first consul." It is unfortunate that the general public is not aware of two facts: (1) That Latin lives all about us and that, whether he is conscious of it or not, no one can go through a day without coming in contact with Latin in some guise; and (2) that Latin is taught very differently today from the way it used to be taught and that most students who elect to study it like Latin. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating."

Any language is a "live" language that is taught by a live teacher. The public schools of the District of Columbia are fortunate in having a group of Latin teachers who are "alive" not only to a knowledge of their subject but also a love for children and who know how to make the subject live for them. A knowledge of Latin is as valuable for "the man in the street" as for students preparing to go to college, since it greatly increases the ability to handle the English language effectively. That in itself is a great asset in getting almost any kind of a job. It is with the hope that these facts may become more generally known to the citizens of Washington that I write this letter.

MacArthur's Statement

The purely political features of our military set-up in the Far East are unfortunate. Opposedly, it is perhaps fortunate that the commanding general has emphasized the fact by a move which would not have been ventured without partisan political support.

In distinction from what may be the demands of immediate expediency, his attempt at being independent of his Government will be recorded in history as clear insubordination.

President Lincoln had an insubordinate Secretary of War. Also, in the period immediately preceding World War I, President Wilson was hampered by an insubordinate, but easily replaced, Secretary of State. And in the corresponding period before World War II, an honorary colonel staked his military title—and lost. Each of the wars in question was won by the United States Government, regardless of the mutineer.

We hear about "saving face" among Asiatics. The American people will hardly hesitate in deciding which is the more important:—"Saving the face" of a replaceable individual, or sustaining the United States Government and the United Nations.

Florida's Politics

The Washington Post of September 1 confronted me with the amazing news that "Pepper Will Be Reappointed If Smathers Enters Marines." In the face of the fact that Representative Smathers won the Democratic primary decisively, Governor Warren plans, if given the opportunity, to reverse the decision of the voters and give them Pepper in their soup. The people's choice indeed! It is this sort of political double-dealing that attempts to make a farce of democracy. I hope other Floridians will remember this incident when the next gubernatorial election comes up in 1952.

Volunteer Workers

There is another side of the picture to Washington's apathy which Mr. Paul W. Byers so ably described in a letter you published August 30.

True, many District residents seem indifferent to local suffrage. But at the Home Rule Headquarters there is a little book marked "Volunteers" containing the phone numbers of some 40 Washingtonians, mostly housewives, who are on call as office help. They do such jobs as keeping the headquarters' records, collecting and disseminating information, and typing many hundreds of press releases and letters to newspapers and interested persons and organizations. Naturally, it would be much easier to forget the vote and let Washington stay as it is. But these women often cancel bridge games or luncheon appointments to do a job. Others get up an hour or so earlier in order to finish housework before reporting in at 9:30 a. m. Some take work home. And a few have even turned up at Home Rule Headquarters with a child or dog in tow in answer to a rush call on a day they had no one to mind their household.

There are also numerous Washington lawyers, businessmen, and members of community organizations who follow the progress of home rule—some contributing as much as one or two hours of work a week.

Recently, several Congressmen stated that they would not sign the petition to bring the Home Rule bill up for a vote in the House because they had been so "bothered" by home rule proponents. It is agreed that the times are too serious for Congressmen to be bothered with running Washington's local affairs. Pass home rule and they won't be!

Meanwhile, perhaps all of us can take a bit of encouragement from the fact that, in contrast with many peoples of the world, our voteless citizens have a democratic tradition that leads them to "bother" the Congress that could grant them a vote.

Calling Reserves

I read and highly approve Defense Secretary Johnson's statement to the effect that, "in keeping with the fundamental concept of fair play", he was seeking legislation so that the services could avoid being forced to draw on the pool of 29,000 doctors and dentists who had been patriotic enough to sign up as reserve officers subsequent to their long services in World War II.

But why not include other reserve officers who had combat service in World War II? Have they not been equally as patriotic as the doctors and dentists he speaks of? Haven't they done their bit with the other exempt veterans? Many of these men have just got themselves established in their respective professions and are trying to build homes and raise families. I am sure they would voluntarily respond to a general mobilization call in a total war for our country; but they are being called up now, involuntarily, for the United Nations' action in Korea.

China's Troubles

I wish to congratulate you on two of your recent editorials bearing on this important segment of our foreign relations: "China's 'Friends,'" August 16, and "Formosan Blues," August 30. I was reminded, via the radio, the other day that one of the loudest current critics of the Administration's China policy has actually been in China, but regardless of this the clamor we have now to bear is domestic politics, pure and simple, when certainly the national interest should be paramount. It is all to the good that you so ably stress this point.

In the light of long experience, not disassociated with the disastrous repercussions to the Pitman Silver Act of 1934, I think there is no doubt that China's current ills stem far more directly, and much more fundamentally, from the policies of the wrecking crew described in your editorial of August 16 (and from earlier policies), than from the occasional, and indeed serious, mistakes of the patriotic Americans now under such fire. Recent trends, inevitably, have been the consequence of Chinese history, as we chose to permit its progress, 1923-1941; and while some of the 1941 to 1950 errors are highlightedly very obvious, we cannot escape the consequences of earlier basic policy.

Bureaucratic Privileges

One way to prevent communism is to develop faith in our own Government—not in the basic fundamentals of government, but in the men who run it and in their intelligent behavior. War or no war, while millions of American dollars have been distributed abroad, the standard of the American people has slowly but surely been lowered and lowered. May I, as an intelligent American citizen, ask the members of both the House and the Senate a few questions that are going to be answered by popular demand some day or else?

What right has Congress to expect the people not to strike for higher wages when between the high cost of living and the increased income taxes on the little man has made it impossible for him even to live?

Why does the President have part of his income tax-exempt and also members of Congress—the average American citizen who earns far less has no additional exemption such as these democratic leaders have?

Does Mr. Truman have to go without because of higher taxes, or do members of Congress?

"Mission To The Vatican"

I read with consternation the editorial which appeared in The Washington Post on Thursday, August 10, relative to the "Mission to the Vatican."

I do not believe it wise that any religious group should have official representation from our Government. It is my conviction that we should do everything in our power to maintain our historic position of separation of church and state. I do not believe we have the right to use public tax money to recognize a church official of any religious body whose main function must, in the nature of the case, be spiritual and not temporal: I think that if we were to send an official Ambassador to the Vatican that we would release more hatred and misunderstanding in America than you and I can possibly imagine.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Policy And The Parties

While it is impossible for the President to engage in an argument with a general, it might mean a lot to our bewildered and troubled people if the great underlying issues could be debated openly, thoroughly and, let us say, respectfully.

Lippmann

The issues are older, deeper, and broader than the men who at the moment reflect them. They arise from the fact that the United States is a continental island, facing Europe across the Atlantic Ocean, Asia across the Pacific. The question, which takes many forms, is always in the end how far this country can commit itself in one ocean without running grave dangers in the other. The Republicans, with notable exceptions, have favored the Pacific. The Democrats, with exceptions, have favored the Atlantic.

THE REPUBLICANS were in power during the period of American territorial expansion in the Pacific—the purchase of Alaska in 1867, the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands in 1893-1898, and finally the war with Spain in 1898 which brought Guam and the Philippines under the American flag. This extension of American power and responsibility 7000 miles west of California was ratified by the Senate with only one vote to spare, over the necessary two-thirds. In the next presidential election Bryan raised the issue of "imperialism." Ever since the Republicans have tended to take a special interest in the Pacific there has been an underlying controversy about it with the Democrats.

On the other hand, the Democrats happened to have been in power during the two World Wars. These wars began in Europe and were decided in Europe. That is how the Democrats happened to have become involved in and identified with European affairs.

BETWEEN THE end of the First World War and the beginning of the Second the issue was obscured by the popular revulsion against war and the general disillusionment with the result of the first war. This produced the strange, and in fact, novel, phenomenon of American isolationism. In the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover period the Republicans not only turned their backs on Europe but also on Asia. By agreement with Japan they withdrew American military power from the whole western Pacific, returning to Hawaii. The isolation of Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover was a departure from the historic Republican tradition which had always been one of westward expansion first to our continental limits, then into the Pacific, then across it.

General MacArthur, who wants Formosa, has revived the tradition of his party. One of his embarrassments is that the old guard Republican leaders in Congress are political survivors and heirs of the three isolationist Presidents who disarmed in the western Pacific and withdrew to Hawaii.

The issue of high policy is not now, as it was during the second war, because American military resources are not great enough to support simultaneously a major effort in Europe and in Asia. The problem is often argued as if American military resources were, or could readily be made, quite adequate for a "dynamic" policy in both directions at once. But few serious students of the problem think they are adequate. General Marshall, more than any other living man, faced the practical question daily of nourishing two wars simultaneously, and no one can speak with comparable experience or with greater authority on the critical question of allocating American military resources. It was General Marshall, as Secretary of State, who in 1947 made the crucial decisions to save Europe by proposing what became the Marshall Plan and to give up Chiang by rejecting the Wedemeyer Report.

These two historic decisions were made at the same time, and they were complementary, the two sides of the same coin. General Marshall, after a long, close, personal investigation of China, concluded that Chiang could not be saved except at the exorbitant price which General Wedemeyer's recommendation called for—namely American protectorate over China, an American underwriting of Chiang's government, and American military intervention in the Chinese civil war. General Marshall's judgment was fiercely disputed at the time and has been disputed since. But the Korean war, which is minute compared with the vast Chinese war, has vindicated beyond all possible dispute the accuracy of General Marshall's judgment. It was in substance that we could save Europe, that Chiang could be saved only at enormous and incalculable cost, and that we could not do both, and that if we tried both, we should probably fail in both.

THIS KIND of choice always confronts us. It is the price of living between two great oceans. The issue between the two directions of American foreign policy cannot be settled finally and absolutely. We have vital interests in both directions, and among reasonable and responsible men the question is not the one or the other, the Pacific or the Atlantic, but of priority and of more or less and of calculated risks.

We have to make difficult choices, and for my own part I would give first priority to the defense of the Atlantic community. For I believe that if Europe were lost, the loss in the things that mean the most to our civilization would be irreparable. On the other hand, I do not share General MacArthur's view that it is imperative that we should "dominate" all the ports of the Far East. I think it would be wiser not to claim domain up to the shores of Asia, and not to establish a rigid frontier right under the guns of Asia. I would prefer a less dynamic frontier in the Pacific, with a defense in depth by mobile American forces working from bases where our rights are undisputed, where there is no real doubt of our capacity to defend them and to supply them in case of war.

British Scientist Says Potato Makes Irish Hate the English

BIRMINGHAM, England, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Why do so many Americans of Irish descent still dislike the British?

What kept British workers from getting wage increases?

What inspired communism 2000 years before Stalin?

Why were many pre-Inca Peruvians slain for sacrifices?

The answer given the British Association for the Advancement of Science today by Dr. Redcliffe N. Salaman is—the potato! Salaman authority on nonedible aspects of solanum tuberosum.

Mashed, boiled, home fried or what, the potato looks just what it is: A wholesome, reliable food alive with minerals and vitamins. But that is exactly why it has come to influence history, Salaman said.

A Fundamental Influence

"From its earliest contact with man it has exercised a fundamental influence on his way of living," he continued, adding that pre-INCA settlements along the Pacific Coast used to grow and harvest it on a communistic basis.

In pre-Inca Peru, he continued, "a peculiar type of human sacrifice" was considered necessary to good crop.

Nowhere in the world, however, did the potato have the influence it had in Ireland where it probably was introduced in 1588 by Sir Walter Raliegh. Within a century it had become almost the sole source of food of practically the entire island. Farm laborers used to eat 14 pounds a day and their wives 7.

This "potato economy"—and Salaman blames the British for part of it—drove the Irish standard of living down to "the lowest yet attained in a Christian land," encouraged laziness because of the ease with which it could be grown and introxication because of the "poteen" that was distilled from it.

"The potato crop failed completely in 1845 and 1846. There ensued a disastrous famine because the people—not the country—had (by and large) no other food reserves. As a result, two million people either died of want or left the country within four years.

"Those who emigrated to the United States sowed the seeds of Anglophobia which, after 100 years, is still alive."

In England in the late Eighteenth and early Nineteenth Centuries, he added, the cost of living was controlled by the price of bread, meat and milk. These were subject to wild fluctuations but adoption by workers of a cheap food like the potato "automatically prevented a rise in wages."

Educators Hear Warren Blast 'Free Riders on Way of Life'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 4 (AP).—Gov. Fuller Warren put a heavy responsibility on the shoulders of Southern educators today.

But, he said, political leaders should help carry the burden.

Speaking before the opening session of the Board of Control for Southern Regional Education, attended by 200 educators and representatives of colleges from 14 States, he said:

"The South is in need of educational institutions with programs to turn out competent men and women who can become contributors to, not 'free riders' on, our way of life.

"Our physical resources can avail us little unless we develop human resources to guide us on the paths of progress and growth.

"But if bigness reflects only big populations, industries, welfare rolls, unemployment and prisons—it will be bigness without growth.

"Only proper development of our human resources can spare us from such a fate. And that is the job of education.

"The task is one that can be accomplished only through closest cooperation between political and educational leadership."

The discussions opening today end September 11 and are aimed primarily at raising the standard of Southern graduate education.

The first step was taken in 1947 looking to the cooperation of States whereby prospective students seeking instruction in certain fields may get it in another cooperating State if their own State doesn't have colleges offering such courses.

Dr. John E. Ivey, jr., director of the regional program, told the group, "the South is in desperate need not only of trained educators in the graduate field but of institutions where greater numbers of them may be turned out.

Adjustments In U. S. Needed By Point Four

A Foreign Policy Association economist said yesterday that the Point 4 program, if successful, would force American adjustments whose costs should be borne by the Nation as a whole.

Howard C. Gary, staff research assocate in economics, said agriculture and industry as well would be affected if the building program for assisting underdeveloped areas of the world caught on.

Increased agricultural efficiency of other nations might raise problems of retraining and relocating some American farm families, Gary suggested.

Likewise tariff adjustments would be necessary for Point 4 success, he said, affecting up to 7,500,000 farmers and industrial workers and requiring transfers of fixed capital.

The Government "should assert its readiness in the name of the entire population to accept the burden of the transition, rather than make only the individuals directly involved bear all the costs—and unhappiness—of the adjustment," Gary wrote.

Expenses involved would include training for alternative employment, transferring fixed investments to other fields, and relocation of workers who might have to move, he said.

Gary said the greatest danger to the program would be "overwhelming preponderance" of American funds in the project which is a joint effort with the United Nations. He said this would cause us to be branded imperialistic.

We haven't been fiddling...

In the past ten years, the Southern Railway System has spent more than $150 million for new locomotives and cars.

We bought 643 modern Diesel locomotive units, 17,609 freight cars of all kinds and 145 lightweight streamlined passenger cars. On top of that, additional thousands of cars have been built or rebuilt in our own shops.

But this is only part of the story. Other millions have been spent to improve roadway and track...to build new bridges and shops...to enlarge and modernize yards.

This betterment program will continue. Because we know that in the future, as in the past, a strong, progressive Southern Railway System will be an important factor in the growth, progress and strength of the Southland...and of all America.

Nobody Gains as Yankees, Tigers, Bosox Split

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

STEVE O'NEILL, stout of girth and conviction, was stubbornly insisting that the Yankees hadn't won the pennant yet and that his Red Sox haven't lost it yet, either. "I am not a Yankee fan," he inserted.

Sure, he conceded the Yanks a statistical edge with that three-game bulge they were taking into yesterday's games, "but I have to like my ball club, too. The way they've played ball for me, I can't quit on them."

Povich

The way they've played ball for O'Neill is, indeed, wonderful. From the day he took over from sick Joe McCarthy, O'Neill has watched his Boston hands win 48 games, lose only 20. They've swatted out and legged out most of their victories. A new kind of Red Sox hustle has counter-balanced their ragged pitching.

Everybody agrees that the Red Sox are the only club in the league that could stay in the pennant race with their kind of pitching. They have what it takes to win the badly pitched games—a team batting average of .307, with seven regulars hitting better than .300.

O'NEILL IS HANDING the Yankees nothing as long as they still have to play those six remaining games with the Red Sox. "That's when we could win it or blow it, but the chance to do either is still there."

Later in the week, the Red Sox are taking off on their last road trip, and normally that is enough to give Boston fans the shakes. Away from friendly Fenway Park, the Sox have blown pennants with regularity. But under O'Neill the last time there was no road-fever.

The remarkable fact has been, of course, that the Red Sox have been making their best pitch for the pennant since Ted Williams came down with his broken elbow and couldn't play. That they have been able to rise above that blow may be significant. There's more individual hustle since they stopped looking to Williams to get 'em home.

It hasn't affected their play, but there has been some grumbling among the Boston athletes at Williams' failure to stay with the club during his convalescence. They didn't see any need for that fishing trip in Maine.

"THERE ARE GUYS with the club who were in as foul shape as Williams, yet they sat on the bench and rooted," one of the Red Sox regulars is quoted. "Birdie Tebbetts was bent over with lumbago, but he didn't miss a day on the bench. Williams has all winter in which to fish, if he likes."

O'Neill keeps aloof from that sort of grumbling. He's not concerned about Williams' whereabouts if the guy can't play. "Ted is an honest guy," he was saying yesterday. "He doesn't have to prove to me that he wants to get back into the lineup quick as he can. He's itching to play, I know.

"I have to believe him when he says he'll suit up as soon as he honestly thinks he can help us and not hurt us. His trouble right now is that he can't reach for that pitch on the outside corner. He'd rather hit than eat, and if he says he isn't ready I won't quarrel with him."

Williams is going on the Sox's next road trip, and give it a whirl as a pinch-hitter, O'Neill said. "And with our kind of pitching, we need all the hits we can dig up."

MEANWHILE O'NEILL has been blessed with the most powerful substitute in the business. Little Billy Goodman has been hitting .400 since Williams' injury put him back in the Boston lineup. He has played first base and every other infield position, and both left and right field. And now he's threatening to win the league batting championship.

When the Tigers were in Washington, the crack was made by a Detroit coach that they weren't worried about the Red Sox as a pennant factor. "The Yankees will take care of them for us," he said. Advised of that bit of comment, O'Neill yesterday was quite unruffled. "The Yankees wish they could be sure," he said.

He was recalling that when the Indians moved into Boston last week, Lou Boudreau announced that his club would mop up the Red Sox, and go on to take the pennant. "They blew four games to us, and then went up to New York and knocked themselves out of it. Sometimes managers should keep nice and quiet."

Boston Noses Nats, 5-4, but KuzavaTakes 2d Game, 5-3

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Bob Kuzava labored and brought forth a draw for the Nats late yesterday in a Labor Day double header with the Red Sox who were threatening to take it all after beating Sid Hudson, 5-4, in the first game.

The blond left hander took charge in the second game, batted home the winning run for himself, personally, and stayed the pennant rush of the Red Sox with a 5-3 victory.

A holiday throng of 21,424 Griffith Stadium fans watched Kuzava rise above the annoying sequences in which four Washington errors presented the Red Sox with two unearned runs. He outpitched Rookie Willard Nixon, with each team getting nine hits.

The Nats pulled up short in the first game, leaving the tying run on base against Ellis Kinder in the eighth after a tremendous homer by Irv Noren off Chuck Stobbs cut the Boston lead to a run in the seventh.

Grab Three Runs in First

Boston jumped Hudson for three big runs in the first inning, banged him for two more in the fourth and the Nats never did catch up.

In that second game, though, Kuzava put no complete trust in his pals. With the score tied at 3-3 in the sixth, he dumped the game-winning single into left field after Nixon walked two hitters.

Irv Noren was no drawback to Kuzava, though. He singled in the first inning to help the Nats get a run, drove home two more in the fifth with another single and in the seventh his third hit figured in the Nats' fifth run.

The two clubs swapped unearned runs in the first inning. The Sox got theirs after Coan made a two-base muff of DiMaggio's fly ball, and the Nats got theirs on Stephens' wild throw to first.

Wildness Fatal

The Red Sox stepped into a 3-1 lead in the fifth on DiMag's triple to center, a single by Pesky and a pair of errors by Eddie Yost. The Nats matched that pair in the same inning. Infield hits by Grasso and Coan, and Yost's walk filled the bases with two out and set the stage for Noren's single to left.

Nixon's wildness got him in fatal trouble in the sixth. After he walked Mele and Dente, he got two out, but that was the spot that Kuzava picked for his game-winning blow.

All of a sudden with two out in the ninth, Pesky singled and Goodman walked but the next pitch took Kuzava out of all his trouble. Stephens popped it way high to Michaels.

Steve O'Neil hauled three of his starting pitchers into that first game to help the Sox tuck it safely away.

Joe Dobson lasted only part of the third inning, and when the Nats cut his early lead to 3-2, southpaw Chuck Stobbs got the job. After Irv Noren's homer left the Sox with a mere 5-4 edge in the seventh, O'Neill turned the situation to Ellis Kinder in the critical last two innings.

Sid Hudeson, meanwhile, got off to a ragged start, issuing his only two walks of the game to the first two hitters he faced. The Red Sox pressed that opening to a three-run inning. Their first run was cheapish and made Hudson look sheepish.

Billy Goodman laid a smart bunt down the first baseline and Grasso chased it down to throw him out. But with Hudson leaving the plate uncovered, Di Maggio was home free, scoring all the way from second. With one out, big Dropo plunked a fluke double to right scoring a second run, and Bobby Doerr singled Dropo home.

Dobson scraped past the first two innings by grace of a pair of line drives. With the bases full of Nats in the first inning and none out, he watched Stephens spear a liner off Vernon's bat for a double play. And in the second inning Pesky got him out of trouble with two on by grabbing Hudson's liner for another D. P.

Dropo and Zarilla banged Hudson for the game's two big runs in the fourth. Dropo singled to

Macks, Browns Win in Nightcaps

Detroit Still Trails by 2 Games

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers lost a great chance to pick up ground in the American League race today when they blew a three-run lead and dropped the nightcap of a doubleheader to the St. Louis Browns 5-4 after winning the opener 4-2.

Pitcher Paul (Dizzy) Trout, who was honored with a "day" between games, was coasting along with a 3-0 lead and a five-hitter when the Browns jumped all over him in a big eighth inning.

Ironically, the visitors' rally got underway just as the scoreboard showed the New York Yankees had split a odubleheader, giving the Tigers a chance to climb within one game of the American League lead by winning both games today.

The Browns banged four runs across in that eighth with Hal White and Hank Borowy being rushed in to halt the four-hit(two-walk attack.

The St. Louis club resumed its offensive in the ninth, driving Borowy to cover and bringing Paul Calvert in as the third Detroit relief pitcher. Ray Coleman tripled home what proved to be the winning run to make it 5-3.

The Tigers surged back with a ninth inning rally against Relief Pitcher Dick Starr that netted them a run. Singles by Hoot Evers and Johnny Groth and a walk to pinch hitter Pat Mullin loaded the bases with none out.

Catcher Joe Ginsberg then flied deep to Jim Delsing in center, Evers scoring after the catch to make it 5-4, but that was all.

The Tigers beat Ned Garver for the fifth time this year in the opener before 37,515 fans. Garver had a 2-0 lead going into the eighth when three Tiger hits and pair of walks sent all four Detroit runs across the plate.

Pitcher Hal White worked in relief in both games, winning the opener and losing the nightcap to bring his season's record to 5-6.

Mize Hits 2 Homers, A's Halt N. Y. Streak

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics ended a seven-game winning streak of the league-leading New York Yankees today by shading the Yanks, 4-3, in the second half of a Labor Day doubleheader. The Yanks won the opener, 2-1, behind Vic Raschi.

An error by Gerry Coleman permitted the A's to score the winning runs in the nightcap.

Yankees Hank Bauer and Billy Johnson gave the audience of 59,773 a last-minute thrill by hitting two homers in the bottom of the ninth but Alex Kellner weathered the late onslaught to come through with his eighth victory against 17 losses.

He allowed six hits, one earlier four-bagger by Johnny Mize getting the first New York run.

John Mize, who has hit six homers in the past seven games and 19 for the year, bomed one in the opener that helped Raschi gain his 18th victory. Vic permitted seven hits to nine yielded by Lou Brissie, who lost for the 18th time this year. Mize homered in the second for the first run of the day. Jerry Coleman tripled in the fourth and scored on a two-out single by Gene Woodling.

Kellner and Tommy Byrne matched five scoreless innings in the nightcap but the A's broke through in the sixth when Valo doubled home Ferris Fain and Sam Chapman, both of whom had walked. Byrne passed six altogether, making 142 free-riders for the season.

Keep It All Season

Page of College Football Schedules in Sunday Paper

The football season is almost here. College teams are practising, pros are playing exhibition games. In a few weeks, the first of the major college games will be played.

So that its readers will be fully informed on the major games each week throughout the season, The Washington Post again will publish the schedules of more than 100 leading college teams.

This annual full page of schedules will be carried in the editions of next Sunday, September 10.

The same issue will also contain the complete schedules of the big league pros, the National Football League.

Be sure to get your copy of next Sunday's paper and keep the schedules handy for reference throughout the 1950 football season.

Hearn, Maglie Halt Leaders, 2-0 and 9-0

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP).—The pennant aspiring Philadelphia Phillies were given their worse jolt of the year today when they were blanked twice by the New York Giants before 33,988 fans.

Jim Hearn shut them out 2-0 on five hits in the opener and Sal Maglie spaced nine hits for a 9-0 decision in the second.

The Phillies have been shut out only six times this season and three times the Giants applied the whitewash. Hearn accomplished two of the feats. They held to their seven-game lead, however, as the runner-up Dodgers bowed twice to the Boston Braves.

The first game was a pitching duel between Hearn (8-3) and Robin Roberts (18-7) with neither yielding a run until the seventh when Bill Nicholson dropped an easy fly ball off the bat of Monte Irvin, to set up an unearned run.

Singles by Whitey Lockman and Don Mueller and a long fly by Wes Westrum sent the other run across in the eighth. Jim Konstanty, making his sixtieth appearance, halted the Giants in the ninth.

The Giants backed up Maglie's fine hurling with a 13-hit attack off five Phil's hurlers. They drove Bob Miller from the slab in less

Braves Clip Dodgers Twice

BOSTON, Sept. 4.—The Boston Braves squeezed out a 3-2 nightcap win after an 11-4 opening game triumph to sweep a double header from the Brooklyn Dodgers today before a 25,340 crowd.

Vern Bickford supported by an 18-hit attack, chalked up his eighteenth pitching triumph in the opener and Warren Spahn won his seventeenth with a six-hit performance, despite homers by Bruce Edwards and Pee Wee Reese.

Browns Beat Steelers, 41-31

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP).—The Cleveland Browns mowed down the Pittsburgh Steelers today, 41-31, in a National Football League exhibition before a holiday crowd of 19,259 fans in Civic Stadium.

Cleveland piled up a 24-10 halftime margin as Otto Graham completed 18 of 23 passes in the first two periods for a 235-yard total. Then the Browns coasted on second stringers until the last five minutes, leaving the impression they might have doubled their margin.

The game was Cleveland's fourth win over National League rivals and their fifth exhibition success.

Billy Boedeker turned in the most sensational run of the game in the third period, racing 66 yards down the sidelines to score for the Browns.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP).—The fourth-place Cleveland Indians defeated the Chicago White Sox, 1-0, in the second game of a doubleheader after losing the opener, 7-1, before 33,489 persons today.

Lefty Sam Zoldak took over after a line drive felled starter Mike Garcia in the sixth inning of the second game to complete a four-hit shutout.

Du Pont, Hart Meet For Women's Title

Nancy Chaffee Fails Before Champion

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP).—Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., reached the finals of the National Women's Tennis championship today by scoring a decisive 6-4, 6-1 victory over Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif.

Defending Champion Margaret Osborne Dupont of Wilmington, Del., gained the other final bracket when she downed Nancy Craffee of Ventura, Calif., 6-1, 1-6, 6-0.

Miss Hart, who lost in last year's final to Mrs. DuPont, was too strong and too steady for little Beverly and was never seriously extended.

Lack of service with any sting in it cost Beverly any chance she might have had against her more experience opponent. She seldom kept her first serve in the court, and Miss Hart moved in to break her delivery three times in each game.

Also, the Coast girl seldom managed to hit two good shots in a row. If she won with her first hard drive she was okay, but if Miss Hart got it back Beverly was lost.

Mrs. Dupont whisked through the first set with no trouble, but when Miss Chaffee's long placements began to find their mark in the second, she could not handle them. However, she hit her stride later and Nancy could not keep up.

J. Gilbert Hall, of New York, won his seventh straight Veterans' title by whipping John Sisson, of Los Angeles, 6-1, 7-5.

Mulloy Blames Wind, Bad Calls for Defeat

FORREST HILLS, Sept. 4 (AP).—Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Art Larsen of San Francisco, two of the country's new "top crop" of tennis players thrust aside the last Eastern threats today as they stroked their way into the finals of the National Championships before more than 13,000 enthusiasts.

Flam, 21, and already holder of the National Clay Court and Intercollegiate titles proved too young and too skilled for Gardner Mulloy, the 36-year-old Miami veteran, in the first of the semi-finals, twice rallying from a set down to win by 2—6, 6—2, 9—11, 6—1, 6—3.

Mulloy, while giving Flam credit, contended after it was over that windy conditions and "blindness of the linesmen" also contributed to his loss. He appeared to get more than his normal share of bad "calls," at that.

Larsen, a slight little lefthander, clowned to a rather easy 6—2, 10—8, 7—9, 6—2 victory over Dick Savitt, the big Cornell student from South Orange, N. J. Larsen played only as well as he needed to, and left the crowd laughing at his antics. He is on the eccentric side.

Should Larsen win the final he will become the first southpaw champion since Johnny Doeg served and slugged his way to the title just 20 years ago. But Flam will be heavily favored.

The game probably has not seen a greater retriever than Flam proved himself against Mulloy. The veteran through much of the match was hitting sharply and accurately, but he found it next to impossible to put anything past Herbie.

Mulloy's only advantage was in the severity of service, and even that availed him little as Flam calmly blasted his bullets back at him, deep to the corners.

Much of the drama of the match was packed into the third set. It was a real hair-raiser and kept the big crowd roaring long after many points were completed. Mulloy knew he had to win it if he was to have a chance of final victory, and he drove his tiring legs to the limit to pull it out.

Three times he broke Flam's service to lead at 5—2, 6—5 and 8—7, only to have his scrapping young opponent break back and keep the struggle going. The veteran slipped and fell repeatedly trying to reach Flam's sharply angled volleys, and once, on the final point of the nineteenth game when Mulloy got his fourth and decisive break, both were flat on the grass at the finish.

In the end, after Herbie had raced at a quick win in the fourth set, Mulloy's temper probably helped cost him his last hope of the championship. An unusual number of very close decisions had gone against him. When, in the third game of the final set, one of Flam's sideline shots was called good, Mulloy dropped his racquet in obvious disgust and took a long time preparing to serve again.

The umpire, Harold Lebair, said "Come on Gar" over the loud speaker, and Gar didn't like that. He asked "Are you talking to me?" and strode angrily toward the chair.

Lebair thundered: "The linesman will not be removed—his call was right."

Peppy Pirates Sweep Cubs For 5 in Row

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 4 (AP).—The rejuvenated Pittsburgh Pirates won both ends of a doubleheader today from the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 3 and 3 to 0, giving them five consecutive victories. Bill McDonald pitched the three-hit shutout.

In the opener, Danny O'Connell's two-run homer in the seventh inning proved the Cubs downfall.

Francis (Red) Barrett, recalled from New Orleans last week, was credited with his first victory when he pitched but one ball to retire Hank Sauer in the seventh inning.

Francis Barrett won the opener for the Pirates although he pitched only one ball. He was called in to relieve Cliff Chambers in the seventh.

Tribe Chiefs Deny Talks With Chisox Involve Boudreau

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP).—General Managers Frank C. Lane of Chicago and Hank Greenberg of Cleveland today denied rumors today that Lou Boudreau would become the White Sox Skipper next season.

Bonth Lane and Greenberg admitted they talked before today's doubleheader, but definitely denied discussing the Boudreau question.

When asked about the Boudreau report Greenberg said:

"There is nothing to it. Yes I talked to Lane, but we merely discussed some players both the Indians and the White Sox have in their respective farm systems."

Kotz, Partner Reach Finals

Arnold Kotz and Ray Stocklinski, second-seeded doubles team, advanced to the finals in the Prince Georges Open tennis tournament at College Park yesterday by defeating the fourth-ranked tandem of Lindy Kehoe and Dave Rothenhofer, 6—2, 6—2.

In the singles quarter-finals, eighth-seeded John Shipman won over Dick Lane, 6—1, 6—2, while the unseeded Kehoe eliminated Maj. Fred Bruner, 8—6, 6—3.

Men's singles, quarterfinals—John Shipman defeated Dick Lane, 6—1, 6—2; Lindy Kehoe defeated Maj. Fred Bruner, 8—6, 6—3.

Men's doubles, quarterfinals—Jack McCarthy and Larry Middlekamp defeated Charles Sowers and Leith Potter, 6—4, 6—4; Warren Christianson and Keith Dentel defeated Al Wheeler and Shipman, 6—3, 6—3.

Semifinals—Arnold Kotz and Ray Stocklinski defeated Dave Rothenhofer and Kehoe, 6—2, 6—2.

Kovaleski, Dorfman Lose Istanbul Match

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 4 (AP). Jack Harper of Australia and Heraldo Weiss of Argentina defeated Irv Dorfman of New York and Fred Kovaleski of Detroit today in the men's doubles finals of the international tennis championships. The scores were 2—6, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

In the women's doubles, Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., and Maria Weiss of Argentina defeated Bative Musuoglu and Maulla Gorodetzky of Turkey, 6—3, 6—2.

Phils' 21-Year-Old Simmons Reports to Army Today

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP).—Curt Simmons, 21-year-old southpaw pitcher for the Philadelphia Phillies, will be inducted into the Federal service tomorrow as a member of the Twenty-eighth Infantry Division of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

The young hurler is the first major league player to be called up because of the Korean emergency. Sammy Calderone of the New York Giants, however, will not be far behind. The 25-year-old Giants' catcher has been ordered to report September 18 for Army induction.

Under present Army orders, the Twenty-eighth Division is scheduled to report at Camp Atterbury, Ind., on or before September 15.

Thus the Egypt, Pa., youth, who signed with the Phillies four years ago for $65,000, may still be able to hurl a few more games for the Phils in their drive for the National League pennant.

"We don't know anything," a spokesman for the club said today. "Curt hasn't received any orders yet. He may be around a week or he may have to leave tomorrow."

Slo-Mo-Shun, Miss Pepsi Set Speed Records

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP).—More speedboat records went overboard on the Detroit River today.

The Detroit owned Miss Pepsi turned in a new five mile lap mark of 107.654 miles an hour. This was only a couple of hours after Seattle's Slo-Mo-Shun had bettered her own five mile mark for a 106.175 miles an hour speed.

In winning the Harmsworth Trophy race on Saturday, Slo-Mo-Shun had set the five mile mark at 102.676 miles an hour. Miss Pepsi today also set a ten mile mark at 107.394 miles an hour.

Slo-Mo-Shun wasn't able to finish today's Silver Cup race, and Miss Pepsi, although she finished first in four of today's five ten mile heats, lost on points to Such Crust I, also Detroit owned.

The judges ruled that in one of the ten mile heats Miss Pepsi had cut inside one of the course markers. This cost her 400 points. On points the judges ruled Such Crust I had 1525, Miss Pepsi 1500, Such Crust II 1144, Tempo VI of Freeport, N. Y., 634, and Slo-Mo-Shun 400.

The decision brought an immediate protest from Miss Pepsi's owners, Walter and Roy Dossin of Detroit. They filed the protest after Chuck Thompson, driver of Miss Pepsi, claimed the buoy marker was a new one and had not been properly placed.

Stanley Sayres, owner of Slo-Mo-Shun, said today he did not plan to enter his boat in the President's Cup Race on the Potomac later this month. He plans to return to Seattle shortly and take with him the historic Harmsworth Trophy that has been in Detroit since Gar Wood won it in 1920.

An Error Beats Him

Diz Sutherland Pitches No-Hitter but Loses, 1-0

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—Howard (Dizzy) Sutherland, 27-year-old left-hander from Washington, D. C., who is in his second year of organized baseball, pitched a no-hit game today against Rock Hill, yet lost, 1-0. It was the first Charlotte no-hitter in the five-year history of the Tri-State League.

Only run scored in the nine-inning, first of a Labor Day home-and-home doubleheader, was the result of an error. Dusty Rhodes of Rock Hill was walked by Sutherland, took second on a sacrifice and scored when Tom O'Connell, Charlotte shortstop, threw wide of first base on an attempted double play.

An 18-game winner last season, Sutherland spent last spring with the Washington Senators. He was seeking his seventeenth victory this season. The loss was his fifteenth and his seventh in which his teammates haven't provided a run.

Charlotte, a Washington farm club in this Class B league, got nine hits off Bob Giddens, Rock Hill right-hander, but threatened only once. That came in the third when Sutherland singled, was sacrificed, and tried to make home on Outfielder Frank Campos' single.

Sutherland, the club's leading pitcher, has neved had good luck against Rock Hill. It was his fifth loss to the Chiefs in as many tries. Giddens, the winner, has yet to lose to Charlotte in four attemps.

Reds Thump Cards Twice, 5 to 4, 8 to 4

CINCINNATI, Sept. 4 (AP).—Johnny Wyrostek drove in a total of eight runs today as the Cincinnati Reds belted the sagging St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4, 8-4, in a doubleheader.

It marked the Cards' seventh straight defeat and threw the Reds into a virtual tie with the Chicago Cubs for sixth place.

The Reds bunched eight of their 11 hits in three innings of the opener.

right and Zarilla whaled a triple to center to score him. Tebbetts' single upped the Boston lead to 5-2.

The Nats got their two runs back in the third when Vernon singled home Yost and Coan, who had banged singles. Stobbs moved in for Dobson at that point.

Hudson and Mickey Harris took care of the Red Sox smartly after that, but the Nats never could catch up.

Coan was hit by a pitched ball and scored on Mele's single to left in the fifth. And in the seventh, Noren led off with an enormous homer over the cigarette sign in right center.

They got a break in the eighth when Grasso beat out a hit to Doerr, and Pinch Hitter Sherry Robertson drew a walk after Dropo oblingingly muffed his foul pop. But Yost fouled out and Coan popped out and the Nats were a gone gang.

IN SHORT . . . Julio Moreno, latest of the wonder-boy Cuban pitchers, will report to the Nats from Havana tomorrow. He'll get into action in the series with the A's starting tomorrow night . . . Thursday is a special Ladies' Night . . . Mickey Grasso sent Johnny Pesky sheepishly away in the first game by picking him off base in the seventh inning . . . The high wind was bothering the two teams yesterday. Pesky called for Grasso's high pop in the second game, and then chased it in front of home plate before missing it . . . The Red Sox went home after the twin bill to await the invasion of the Yankees tomorrow.

Rams Miss Seven

Colts Defense Good Against Extra Point

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 4.—Walking around in sports circles following Washington's Redskins:

Before departing for Shreveport, La., to scout the Baltimore Colts against the New York Yanks, Tommy Mont, assistant Redskins backfield coach, asked Head Coach Herman Ball what he should pay particular attention to.

Ball, remembering the Colts had been slaughtered, 70-21, by the Los Angeles Rams the other night, replied:

"Notice how the Colts defend against extra points. I see where the Rams missed seven against them the other night."

On the morning of their day games, the Redskins diet on a 16-ounce steak and eggs for breakfast, which brings to mind a story about Ted Collins and his Boston Yanks football team of a few seasons back.

Collins, who has dropped about $500,000 of his and Kate Smith's money in pro football, noticed his Boston team in a downtown Washington restaurant before a Redskins' game that afternoon.

"Why are you eating here and not at our hotel?" he asked his coach.

"The hotel doesn't have the 16-ounce steaks our trainer prescribes for our pregame breakfast," the coach replies. "The trainer says it makes us strong."

After the Redskins pasted the Yanks, 56-14, Collins trooped into the Yanks' dressing room and told his coach.

"Good thing your players had more than just eggs for breakfast today. Otherwise they would have been slaughtered."

Clyde McBridge, veteran sports editor of The Kansas City Star, was recalling the Pendergast days in Kansas City at a luncheon today.

"To give you an idea how much influence Pendergast had," he said, "he held a race meeting, pari-mutuels and all, in Kansas City, although the Missouri State laws absolutely forbid racing in the State.

"And to give you an idea that the races were honest, Pendergast himself lost $50,000 in the last two days of the four-day meeting. Then he closed the track."

In addition to their perfect exhibition game record of four victories and no defeats, the Redskins are unique in another respect. They're the only team in the National Football League to have a bartender and a credit manager on the traveling squad.

The bartender is Hekkel Lynn of Pasadena, Calif., and the credit manager is Lew Gersted of Washington. Neither is working at his trade, however. Lynn, who mixes drinks in a Pasadena tavern, is working his way east by helping Kelly Miller with the team's equipment. Gersted, credit manager for Mr. Tash in Washington, is a Redskins' fan of old and is spending his vacation following the team.

KANSAS CITY BLUES fans are petitioning the New York Yankees NOT to replace Joe Kuhel as manager of their American Association farm club here despite the fact the Blues finished in the cellar, 28 games out of first place.

Many of the fans, who remember Kuhel as a star player here before the Nats bought him, are mad at the Yankees for (A) taking players away for Kuhel to help the parent club and (B) NOT replacing the players.

"We didn't mind the Yankees taking Johnny Mize back because they announced they would recall him as soon as his arm improved," one fan wrote. "But when they took Ed Ford and a couple of others away from us, we got mad."

"Don't take it out on Joe Kuhel. He had nothing to work with in Washington last year and still less in Kansas City this year," the fans' letter added.

Bluefield Wins Flag

BRISTOL, Va.-Tenn., Sept. 3 (AP).—Bluefield, W. Va., is the 1950 champion of the class D Appalachian League. Bluefield won both halves of the split schedule.

Richmond Colt Wins by 31-4 Lengths

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP).—To Market, owned by S. A. Mason, Richmond, Va., contractor, romped to a three and a quarter lengths victory in the $68,525 Futurity at Washington Park today.

The triumph was worth $57,390 to Owner Mason, whose winning two-year-old also won the rich Arlington Park Futurity a month ago.

Bernwood finished second, with First Repeater third and Devination fourth in a field of 13.

Arcaro's Mount Fails

The Eastern invader, Battle Morn, fresh from impressive showings at Saratoga, went to the post a 9-to-5 favorite, but finished sixth under the guidance of Jockey Eddie Arcaro. Here Me, entry of Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky., was fifth.

To Market returned $11.20, $7.40 and $5.60. The place and show prices on Bernwood were $7.00 and $5.00, while First Repeater paid $6.40 to show.

To Market, a Virginia-bred son of Market Wise-Pretty Does, made amends for his poor showing, the Prairie State, in which he finished twelfth. He previously had won only other two starts, including the Arlington Futurity.

The Mason colt earned $57,390, making him the top money-winning 2-year-old in the Nation with $115,555. To Market went ahead of George D. Widener's Battlefield, undisputed Eastern champion, who has $113,712 to his credit.

It is possible that To Market and Battlefield will meet on the eastern seaboard later in the season to settle the 1950 juvenile title.

Hawthorne Next

The race climaxed a highly successful 31-day meeting at Washington Park. The racing scene shifts to historic Hawthorne tomorrow for a 35-day session.

Owner Mason and Mrs. Mason were presented with a big gold trophy in the winner's circle after the race.

Although breaking from post position 12, To Market did not tarry at the start, Rivera moved him to third early, behind Badger and Volt. Entering the home stretch, To Market found a hole on the rail. He went through, quickly passed Volt, and opened up a commanding lead.

Volt, another Headley racer, finished seventh with the others winding up in this order: Bugledrums, eighth; Pet Bully, ninth; Sir Bee Bum, tenth; Ruby's Son, eleventh; Andy B. W., twelfth, and Badger last.

Junior Golfers Tied

Engel and Sherwood Get Aces at Argyle

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Two holes-in-one at Argyle Country Club, half as many as have been scored there all season, highlighted yesterday's area golf parade.

Art Engel aced the 177-yard thirteenth, using a four iron. He was playing with George Woodell, Tom Keating and Ben Engel.

Sid Sherwood plopped a hole-in-one on the 130-yard sixth, also using a four iron. He was in a foursome with Bill Deal, Bud Hall and Jim Craglow.

Roger Martino leads qualifiers for the Argyle men's club championship with 72—71—143, and Doug Berry, 70—75—145, was second.

BETHESDA: A playoff between Dennis Bolster, Mary Worsham and Paul McMahon for the medal of the District Junior Open ended in nother tie between Bolster and McMahon.

Bolster had 38-39—77, McMahon 39-38—77, and Worsham came up with 41-37—78. Bolster and McMahon will have another playoff at Bethesda next Sunday.

In the semifinals of the President Cup Tournament, defending champ Al Sherier beat senior champ Art Rabuck, 4 and 3, and Ed Roell beat Tony Popolaski, 2 and 1. J. E. Williams won the flag tournament, finishing in the cup on the eighteenth hole.

FORT DUPONT: Defending Champion Louise Sayers, usually an 80 shooter on her home course, East Potomac, leads qualifiers for the Women's District Public Links with 48-53—101. Joan Craig, Fort Dupont, is runnerup with 53-52—105. Today is the deadline for qualifying. Other leading scores:

Joe DiBella, Rock Creek, 54, 52—106; Georgia McKeever, Rock Creek, 50, 57—107; Carol Hardy, Fort Dupont, 56, 52—108; Macy McAmis, Fort Dupont, 53, 56—109; Rachel Yap, Fort Dupont, 54, 56—110; Catherine Nealis, 60, 50—110.

Sigel, Kirk Lose on 36th To England

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP).—America's top amateur women golfers staged an afternoon rally today to win two of three foursomes in the International Curtis Cup matches with the British Isles.

"Bunty" Stephens and Elizabeth Price of England saved the invaders from a shut-out, beating Helen Sigel of Philadelphia and Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio., 1-up on the thirty-sixth green. They were 4-up after the morning 18 and 2-down after 31 before they staged a last-minute rally to win.

Porter, Hanson Win

In the No. 1 match, Mrs. Mark A. Porter of Westmont, N. J., the national women's champion, teamed with Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., to defeat Mrs. George Valentine and Jean Donald of Scotland, 3 and 2.

Dorothy Kielty of Los Angeles and Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta also solved the problem of wind on the country club of Buffalo's 6280-yard, Par 72 course, to rout Philomena Garvey of Eire and Jeanne Bisgood of England, 6 and 5.

Six singles matches tomorrow complete the play, with the British now seriously behind in their efforts for their first victory in the 18-year-old competition.

It Looked Like Romp

At that it was somewhat embarrassing for the heavily favored Americans who had figured to lead 3 to 0 after the day's two-ball affairs. And they very nearly turned an interesting morning into an afternoon romp until Miss Price and Miss Stephens, last year's British Women's titlist, pulled themselves together on the last five holes.

On the thirty-second, Miss Sigel booted a short putt and the British won it with a par 4. Miss Stephens evened it on the thirty-third, sinking a 10-foot putt for another par 4.

The Americans won the short thirty-fourth with a par 3 when Miss Stephens missed the green on her tee shot, but the English couple won it back on the thirty-fifth on the tsrength of Miss Price's beautiful eight-iron three feet from the pin for an easy par 4.

Miss Sigel shanked the American's second shot into the rough on the thirty-sixth and, after Miss Kirk's recovery, was short on a chip. The British won it with a one-over-par 5.

Negro Giant May Be First of Race As Irish Regular

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 4 (AP).—A yound Negro giant named Entee Shine may be the first of his race to play varsity football at the University of Notre Dame.

Athletic Director Edward (Moose) Krause says the freshman is "a fine boy and a great prospect."

Shine was an end on the Associated Press All-Indiana high schaal eleven last fall and made the AP All-Indiana prep basketball team two years ago.

Shine may grow to the size of Leon Hart, Notre Dame's huge All-American end last fall. Shine carried about 220 pounds on his 6-feet, 3-inch frame in high school. He has added an inch in height this summer and Krause says he appears to weigh about 235.

12 Rounds at Ball Park

Longer Distance May Favor Cooper Over Titone Tonight

When two guys fight each other five times they should be able to determine which is the better man—or forever hold their peace. That will be the case tonight when Charlie Titone, a featherweight niftie from Brooklyn, fights Jimmy Cooper, ambitious Washington Negro lad, at Griffith Stadium.

Four times Cooper and Titone have punched away at each other. The results: Cooper by a decision; Titone by a kayo in Round Two; Draw, Draw.

Titone

Cooper

This sort of thing could go on into extra innings, and Promoter Gabe Menendez apparently is eager for the boys to reach something approaching a decisive result.

For he has scheduled tonight's fight for 12 rounds. The other four Titone-Cooper bouts were 10-rounders.

In their fourth fight, Titone appeared to be well ahead on points going into the tenth round. Then Cooper, usually a slow starter, waded in with both fists flying, almost kayoed Titone, and the judges gave him a draw.

Menendez's policy of low prices and no television will continue tonight, with the tickets scaled at $1.15, $2 and $3, plus tax.

Backing up the main bout is an eight-round return match between Gene Smith, former national amateur champion who has won 12 pro starts, and Little Dynamite, hometown rival. Smith decisioned Dynamite in a seven-rounder at Turner's Arena last fall.

Pat Thomas and Eddie Gilchrist, also local hotshots, meet in one five-rounder while another five brings together Johnny Pratt and Holly Mims, middleweights. A four lists Connie Wilkinson and Willie Chapman, welters.

Alexander's 6-Birdie 66 Ties Laffoon

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 4 (AP).—Veteran Ky Laffoon and Skip Alexander shot a pair of subpar rounds today to tie for the $2600 first place money in the 72-hole, $15,000 Empire State Open golf tournament. They each scored 279.

They will meet in an 18-hole playoff tomorrow.

Alexander of Knoxville, Tenn., wielded the hottest putter on the 6665-yard Shaker Ridge Country Club links for today's 36 holes. He fired six birdies for a record-shattering 66 on the first 18, then covered the last in a one-under-par 70.

Ed Furgol of Royal Oak., Mich., finished third with 280 to earn $1,400. He missed a 15-foot putt on the last hole. That one stroke cost him a chance to tie for the big first place pot.

Furgol took the lead from Laffoon, Jim Ferrier and Alexander after 63 holes, going out in 33, three under par. But he faltered coming in.

Ferrier, of San Francisco, knocked out a 73 for 282, fourth spot, and $1,150. The Australian-born Ferrier, who took the Canadian Open, had been tied for first before today's play.

Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., added a 74 for fifth and a $900 prize.

The top scorers:

Ault Beaten At Fairacre

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Sept. 4 (AP).—John Rice, playing out of the Roanoke (Va.) Country Club, won a lopsided five-and-four victory over Eddie Ault of Washington, D. C., in the 36-hole finals of the Fairacre Golf Tournament here today.

Rice's triumph marked the second consecutive year that a Roanoke golfer has walked off with the title. Last year it went to George Fulton, jr., who was defeated by Ault in the quarterfinals of the 1950 tourney after shooting a record-tying 67 in the qualifying round.

Jenkins at 67 Goes 197 Miles in Hour

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Sept. 4 (AP).—Sixty-seven-year-old Ab Jenkins of Salt Lake City today established a new American record for one hour of automobile driving.

Jenkins, former mayor of Utah's capitol city, roared around a 12-mile circular track on this Saline course at approximately 197 miles per hour.

IF YOU WANT A CLEAN SCALP—HANDSOME-LOOKING HAIR!

Remember, water is no hair tonic. But, on the other hand, don't plaster your hair down with greasy, sticky products which cover hair and scalp with a dirt-catching scum. Healthy-looking hair must have a cleaner scalp. So use Kreml! It's never been duplicated to keep hair perfectly in place—it makes hair look naturally well-groomed. It never looks or feels greasy.

And you'll like the invigorating "wake-up" tingle Kreml gives your scalp. It always keeps hair and scalp feeling SO CLEAN. Also excellent to lubricate a dry scalp and remove dandruff flakes.

SAVE MONEY: Buy the new full pint-size Kreml; it saves you nearly 50%.

Civil Service Studies Plan for Restricting Promotions in Grade

The Civil Service Commission is working on a plan of its own to restrict grade promotions in Government, it was learned yesterday.

Its proposal is more or less of a counter proposition to the House-approved rider to the supplemental budget bill to make all grade promotions, reinstatements, and transfers temporary for the duration.

Actually, however, the commission had planned all along to apply a "brake" to grade promotions in event of full mobilization. A committee of the Federal Personnel Council is working with the commission on a general over-all personnel mobilization plan that calls for extending the temporary hiring system to other defense agencies, promotion restrictions, etc.

The House voted to place personnel actions on a temporary basis in the belief that grade promotions "ran wild" during World War II. Many people were necessarily promoted during that war when Federal employment leaped from 900,000 to 3,700,000 workers, and when employe turnover was from 30 to 40 percent annually.

But the fact remains that Civil Service moved in to put a "brake" on grade promotions, to curb the then new war agencies from offering higher grades and salaries than the old-line agencies. And the record shows that the Civil Service restriction was effective in holding down promotions.

As early as January, 1943, the commission refused to consider a promotion for an employe of less than six months' service which involved a pay increase between $300 and $600 annually. In addition, no employe who had less than a year's service could get a promotion of more than $600 annually.

The commission tightened its restriction in July, 1944, when it adopted a policy of refusing to okay any promotion of more than one grade if it would raise the salary of the employe more than $600 annually.

Something along the same line is being considered again by the commission, a restriction on both grade and dollars. Also being debated is a system of "temporary" grade promotions to those jobs which were held by employes who were called into the military service, or to jobs to which veterans would be appointed if they hadn't been called into the service.

Any all-out system of temporary promotions, transfers, etc., such as voted by the House would make it most difficult to fill many of the new and vital defense jobs.

An employe with full Civil Service status in a regular job would be most reluctant to take a temporary job in a defense program. As of today, he'd have no guarantee of a regular job after the defense program subsides and his temporary job is abolished. This is another matter—reemployment rights—which must be worked out by Civil Service.

SOCIAL SECURITY: The Civil Service Commission admitted that it will be to the advantage of temporary employes in the defense agencies to be covered by Social Security rather than under its retirement system. The reason, of course, is obvious enough, and this is it:

A Federal worker must serve at least five years to benefit under the Civil Service retirement system. Under Social Security, on the other hand, a worker could benefit after a few months of service, and at a far smaller cost to himself.

JOB NEWS: The Naval Gun Factory here has an exam opening for apprentices in its 22 skilled trades. It has one of the best apprentice schools in the country . . . An exam will be given soon for clinical psychologists, $5400 to $10,000, to fill openings at VA . . . Also to be announced are tests for research physicists, chemists, and meteorologists, $3825 to $10,000, to fill openings at the Air Force Research Laboratories, Cambridge, Mass. . . . Veterans now hold 49 percent of all jobs in the executive branch. Nonveterans in Government declined 106,100 and veterans only 1800 in the past year.

Anderson Phoned Tip On Slaying Of His Wife

Husband, Who Called About 'Sick' Woman In Auto, Arraigned On Murder Charge

William J. Anderson, 59, charged with murdering his estranged wife, called police himself to report she was lying in a car at 11th and C sts. ne. about an hour after he shot her Saturday, police said yesterday.

Anderson's report was that there was a sick woman in the car, police said. He made the report after returning to the scene and finding her still slumped over the wheel, they said.

His wife, Mrs. Laura Mae Anderson, 47, of 336 18th st. ne., was found dead, a bullet wound in her head, shortly before noon. Anderson was arrested about 12 hours later in a southeast park.

Case Continued

He was arraigned yesterday in Municipal Court. Judge George D. Neilson continued the case for two weeks at the request of the United States Attorney's office. He ordered Anderson held without bond.

At Anderson's side throughout the arraignment was his 23-year-old son, William J. Anderson, jr., of Decatur Heights, Md.

Anderson is scheduled to appear at a coroner's inquest later. The date has not yet been set.

Meanwhile, police said witnesses identified Anderson at a special lineup Sunday night as the man they saw near the car Saturday, shortly before Mrs. Anderson's body was found.

Signs Confession

Anderson, who has signed a confession, agreed they may have seen him, but pointed out they did not see him do the shooting, police said.

Anderson told them he took "special precautions" and waited until a moving van was passing by, an airplane was passing overhead and his wife's attention had been attracted by a fight nearby, before he fired, according to police.

Anderson told police he and his wife had arranged to meet so she could pick up some laundry he wanted her to do. He took with him three shirts and a .38-caliber revolver, later found on the car seat, police said.

Anderson told of several years of domestic trouble, adding he had been frantic because his wife was so much younger than he, according to police.

She nagged him into turning their home at 336 18th st. ne. over to her, then finally put him out, police said he told them.

He said she called him the night before the shooting and told him she was selling the house, they said.

Burglars Net $1108 in D. C. Over Weekend

Burglars netted $1108 from Washington stores and residences during the holiday weekend, police reported yesterday.

Largest haul was $754 from the Colonial Junk Co., 3212 Grace st. nw. John Sheinbein, proprietor, said the burglar broke in through the front door and ransacked the office, taking the money from a cash box.

Lawrence B. Whitley, proprietor of Whitley's Drugstore, told police $314 was taken from a cash drawer at the pharmacy early Monday.

Forty dollars was reported stolen from 2544 14th st. nw. Mary Head, of that address, said the house was entered via a window. The money was stolen from a bedroom dresser.

3 Held for Attack On Policeman at Labor Day Picnic

A free-for-all touched off yesterday when a Fairfax County policeman attempted to arrest one member of a picnic party at Great Falls resulted in the arrest of three others as well.

The fracas began when Pvt. William Haines attempted to take James H. Sullivan, jr., of 5530 Johnson ave., Bethesda, in custody on a disorderly conduct charge, Fairfax police said.

Jumped on by several others, Haines was having a bad time of it, police said, until three patrol cars and an ambulance summoned by an unidentified observer arrived.

Others arrested were James H. Sullivan, sr., 39, of Houston, Tex., father of the youth Hains sought to arrest; James G. Malas, 32, of 2127 9th st. nw., and James W. Gray, jr., 30, of 5720 Johnson ave., Betresda. They were charged with assault on an officer and are being held in Fairfax Jail in lieu of $1000 bond. The younger Sullivan was charged only with disorderly conduct and is held under $500 bond.

Victim of Purse-Snatcher

Irene Barrett, 26, of 735 4th st. ne., told police a man took her pocketbook containing $3 at 2 a. m. yesterday at a bus stop in front of 902 4th st. ne. The man, she said, fled down an alley.

Gun Eludes Police In Stambaugh Slaying

At Tidal Basin

Woman Saved After Rolling Into Water

Two Park Policemen rescued a 57-year-old Annapolis (Md.) woman from Tidal Basin early this morning after she literally rolled into the water at their approach.

Mrs. Emily B. Dreyer was detained at Gallinger Hospital for observation.

After the rescue Pvts. Howell C. Thomas, a rookie, and Myles M. Delano, found a note on a bench, they said.

Dated August 27, the writer said she was "tired of living." She thanked "all my friends . . . particularly my friends in Annapolis.

"I have lost something which cannot be replaced. I hope you will forgive me for this action," the note continued. "My rent has been paid, but I owe the paper boy and the gas bills. You will find my bankbook and checkbook and some cash in my pocketbook."

The policemen said they spotted the woman sitting on a bench on the Independence ave. side of the Basin, near Capper's Wharf, about 2:40 a. m.

Her hands, they said, were folded as in prayer.

When they flashed a light, she cried: "Leave me alone!"

Then she rolled into the water.

Thomas throwing off some of his clothes, went after her. He brought her to shore, where Delano lifted her out of the water.

The policemen said her purse contained $2 in change and a bankbook with a $2000 balance.

Police Work Overtime To Rescue 2 Sailors

Yesterday afternoon Harbor Precinct Privates Stephen J. McKimmie and Minor W. Hanger put in a little overtime fishing capsized sailboats and waterlogged sailors out of the Potomac.

The policemen, on their way to check out for the day at about 3 p. m., were diverted by Frank Greenman, 36, of 1411 S. 21st st., Arlington. Greenman was hanging to his overturned, 10-foot sailboat between Hains Point and the Naval Air Station.

They hauled Greenman and his boat to the Buzzard Point Boat Yard at the foot of I st. sw. Greenman owns the boat yard.

The policemen were about to head home again when another of Greenman's boats overturned, this time between Hains Point and Bolling Base.

Out they went again to bring in the boat and its lone occupant, Philip Braunstein, 20, of 1748 8th st. nw. Only loss in the two operations, besides the policemen's time, was Braunstein's wallet containing $16.

Romulo Arrives Here For Walter Reed Check

Charles E. Romulo, Philippine Foreign Minister and President of the United Nations General Assembly, arrived here yesterday for a brief visit.

He planned to enter Walter Reed Army Hospital for a throat examination before going on to New York, where he will preside at the forthcoming sessions of the General Assembly.

A dozen Montgomery County policemen vainly scoured a wooded section for about four hours yesterday seeking the gun used in the fatal shooting of a 21-year-old Washington man early Saturday.

The search was made in the vicinity of a deserted road near Piney Branch and Old Bladensburg rds., where the slaying occurred.

It was at this spot that police found Donald J. Stambaugh, of 409 4th st. nw., with fatal bullet wounds in his stomach and spinal cord. Stambaugh died within an hour in Washington Sanitarium, after giving police a description of his assailant.

Police later arrested Lee Edwards, 20, of 4911 14th st., at his home and charged him with murder. He is now in the Rockville jail awaiting preliminary hearing in Silver Spring Police Court on September 19.

Police found a quantity of 45-caliber bullets, similar to some found at the scene of the shooting, in Edwards' home at the time of his arrest.

Stambaugh told police before he died that he met his slayer, whose identity he did not know, Friday evening in Lafayette Park and they went for a drive.

Civic Groups Oppose Plan For Council

The Federation of Civic Associations, central organization of Negro civic groups, yesterday announced its "unalterable" opposition to the formation of a Citizens' Advisory Council as proposed by its white counterpart, the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

In a letter to the District Commissioners, the civic federation called the proposal a "self-aggrandizing scheme."

The letter urged the Commissioners to continue their present policy of conferring with representatives of all civic interests "without regard to race, creed or color."

As suggested by the citizens' federation, the council would formulate and present opinion with regard to sources of revenue, tax rates and budget matters.

The council would have 11 members with the president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations as its chairman, five other members to be selected by the federation, and the other five to be named by the District Commissoners.

'Walk-nic' Scheduled By Park Naturalists

National Capital Parks naturalists will conduct a "walk-nic" in Rock Creek Park Wednesday night.

The group will meet at 6:30 p. m. at Picnic Grove 6, near Miller Cabin, just north of Military rd. and Beach dr. After a one-hour walk through the park, the group will return to the grove, to eat their picnic suppers and participate in an informal campfire program — group singing, nature games and astronomy observations.

Gude Heads Florists' Telegraph Association

Granville Gude of Washington yesterday was elected president at the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association convention in San Francisco.

Gude is president of Gude Brothers, florists, which has its main offices at 1212 F st. nw.

The association selected Washington for its 1951 convention.

Hager Denies Making School Report Public

Teachers' College President Expresses Surprise at Release

Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College, last night stoutly denied he personally had made public his report urging a merger of the city's white and Negro teachers college here.

With the weekend release of Hager's report, addressed to School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, some members of the Board of Education and Corning have said Dr. Hager was remiss in advancing his proposal publicly before the board had a chance to study it.

Back in town from vacation, Dr. Hager expressed surprise that his report had been released and said: "I think my record of the past nine years shows I'm not a publicity seeker. I did not release it."

He explained a copy of his required report was sent to Corning and each Board of Education member—"a practice I think I have followed the last several years," he said.

Dr. Hager especifically recommended a merger of Wilson with Miner Teachers College for Negroes. The proposal has drawn mixed reaction from school officials—from "radical" to "no comment."

But yesterday Dr. Hager stuck to his position on the college-level segregation issue which his report again brought into the open.

"School officials," he said, "must face up to cold facts. First, we are not likely to secure enough money to run two first-class teachers' colleges. And second, some very powerful social and economic forces are at work which are bound to bring about some changes. We might just as well face this trend, and take the necessary steps, rather than wait for the changes to be forced upon us."

16,000 Ready For Arlington School Bells

School bells will ring for an estimated 16,000 Arlington pupils today.

First in the nearby Virginia area to start the fall term, the Arlington schools will find their enrollment swelled by about 1500 more pupils than attended classes at the close of the last session, according to registration estimates. Completion of one new school and additions to several others, however, will enable them to accomodate the increase.

Classes at the Washington-Lee High School will start at 8:40 a. m. —almost an hour earlier than was the case last year. Elementary school classes will start at 9 a. m.

Until the new Stratford Junior High School is completed, its pupils will share the Washington-Lee High School with students of the senior high school. Washington-Lee classes will be held from 8:40 a. m. until 12:30 p. m., while Stratford pupils will take over the building from 12:45 until 4:50 p. m.

White House Aides Guests of Bar Group

Plane Crash Injuries Fatal To Woman; Pilot Improves

Mrs. Margaret Cooksey Mowrer, 34, of 20 Old Glebe rd., Arlington, one of two occupants injured Sunday in the crash-landing of a private plane, died yesterday in Alexandria Hospital.

Mrs. Mowrer suffered a compound skull fracture and fractures of the right ankle and left foot, severe shock and multiple cuts and abrasions.

Her companion, Daniel E. Ragalie, 45, of 2502 S. Joyce st., Arlington, real estate operator, was reporting improving at the hospital. His injuries included a fractured skull, multiple lacerations and compound fractures of the legs.

They were flying in a plane owned by Ragalie when it crashed about 350 feet south of the runways of Beacon Field, south of Alexandria. Ragalie was piloting, police reported.

The plane—a three-seater Fairchild "24"—had taken off from the field shortly after 4 p. m. It is believed to have developed motor trouble several minutes later and crashed.

Annual Course for Firemen Opens at Maryland Today

The seventeenth annual short course for firemen sponsored by the Fire Service Extension of the University of Maryland will begin today at the university and run through Friday.

Today's activities will begin at 10 a. m. with an address or welcome by President H. C. Byrd, of the university. Also to be heard this morning is a discussion of "Twenty Years of Fire Training in Maryland" by Chief G. Mitchell Boulden, of Elkton, president of the State Firemen's Association.

Chief James W. Just, extension director, will start the instruction with a lecture on "Discipline and Its Relation to Training."

The afternoon session, for all four days, will be divided into four discussion groups. These groups, and their leaders, will be:

Pumping operations, Sergts. A. M. Peel and L. N. Balcom, Washington Fire Department Pump School; hose and ladder evolutions, Chiefs Karl A. Young, Mount Ranier, and T. Weston Scott, jr., Cottage City; fire inspections, Emmett T. Cox, field officer of the Western Actuarial Bureau, Chicago, and fire department administration, Warren Y. Kimball, editor of Firemen Magazine, National Fire Protection Association, Boston.

Other features include instruction in the use of automatic protection devices, a demonstration of fire retardant devices and a lecture on radio-activity.

The school banquet will be held Thursday evening at 6 p. m.

More Plentiful And More Costly Meat Is Predicted

The Agriculture Department predicted yesterday that meat will be more plentiful—and more expensive—this fall than last year.

It said increased consumer demand can be expected to offset the boost in supply and may prevent retail prices from dropping as much as they usually do in the fall.

A department report said the seasonal increase in meat production probably will provide 37.3 pounds of meat per person during October-December. That would be about one pound more than last fall. But consumer demand can be expected to rise also, as the result of Government spending for defense, the department said. Consumer demand for meat already is higher now than a year ago.

Perfect Day Caps Long Weekend of Relaxation

'Lazy Stay-at-Homes' Enjoy Fine Weather; Holiday Travelers Stream Into City

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

The weatherman gave the District a practically perfect Labor Day, but there seemed to be few Washingtonians around to enjoy it.

Until returning travelers began to roll in from the highways along about nightfall, the town was quieter than on a normal weekend and the biggest activity came from eager shoppers attending bargain sales at appliance stores.

Early in the evening Union Station came to life with "somewhat more than normal traffic" and National Airport became a "fairly busy beehive," transportation officials reported.

Steady Stream of Traffic

Returning motorists from nearby beaches and from three-day holiday trips further away made a steady stream of automobiles on the approach highways last night, but up to a late hour police reported no traffic jams.

During most of the day Washington's atmosphere was that of a southern town enjoying time-off from labor and business.

Rock Creek Park, Hains Point, the Washington Monument, Lincoln and Jefferson Memorials, and other points of interest, which usually draw heavy crowds on a holiday weekend, were little frequented.

"A very poor day," guards at these spots reported.

A warm sun, bringing a high of 84 degrees at 2:35 p. m., tempered by cool northwesterly breezes and low humidity—down to 40 percent at 6 p. m.—made things perfect for the comparatively few tan worshipers at "P Street Beach."

Not As Crowded

"We just figured it wouldn't be as crowded here as at a real beach," said Rita Stapleton, 24, of 1712 Rhode Island ave. nw. as she basked with a companion at the "beach," just off Rock Creek pkwy. below the P st. nw. bridge. She figured correctly.

Some sailed and paddled kayaks and canoes on the Potomac, others bicycled or picnicked at Hains Point, and still others spent the day fishing from the willow-shaded banks of Potomac Park.

At the Zoo, which is always pretty well attended, "only" about 45,000 people gaped at Dr. William M. Mann's charges, according to a police estimate. This is about 10,000 fewer visitors than are normally expected on Labor Day, regarded as "one of the biggest" holidays of the year for animal oglers.

Sightseeing company officials said yesterday was "very slow." Why? One declared:

"Sensible people don't travel over this holiday period!"

Plenty of Families

Sensible or not, plenty of families seemed to be coming in and going out of Union Station and National Airport by last evening, though neither terminal was really crowded at any part of the day.

While most of the weekenders were reported to have motored, the American Automobile Association here said calls for service and information yesterday were "just moderate."

Yes, most of the town was quiet—but the courts had a busy day.

Judge Milton J. Kronheim, jr., had to recess his Municipal Court session for lunch and continue into the afternoon to deal with 227 drunks, a near-record haul.

Last Independence Day brought only 10 more than this.

1500 See Hour-Long Gaithersburg Parade

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Gaithersburg yesterday celebrated its nineteenth-century birth with a pageant, a twentieth-century beauty contest, a high-stepping parade and finished the day with a blazing fireworks display.

The hour-long procession, watched by an estimated 1500, was a major feature of the day-long Gaithersburg Centennial celebration which ended last night with a pageant, fireworks and a ball.

The adjacent town of Washington Grove, which has shared much of Gaithersburg's history, also shared in the festivities.

Miss King Wins Contest

A slim, 17-year-old Gaithersburg girl walked away with the first prize in the beauty contest at the Gaithersburg High School grounds.

The new "Miss Gaithersburg-Washington Grove" is Miss Cecile Janet King, who nosed out 18 competitors. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mehrle King and just graduated from Gaithersburg High School. She plans to become a nurse.

Following the beauty contest, bewigged and hoop-skirted Gaithersburg young people acted out in pantomime the history of the town since it first was surveyed in 1722.

The pageant, which was narrated and held on a stage on the high school grounds, followed Gaithersburg from its background as a stopping point on the Georgetown-Frederick stage road. It brought in the names of several of the early Gaithers—Captain Henry, a Revolutionary War soldier; Ephraim, a county commissioner of Montgomery County, and Benjamin, who built the first house in 1802 and after whom the town is named.

The coming of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in 1873 and the town's incorporation in 1878 also were pantomimed as the pageant led the more than 1000 watchers down to the present day.

Both towns were decorated to the rooftops with flags and bunting. Perfect weather brought out area residents—and their city cousins—by the car- and truck-full.

An hour before the parade began, about 2:30 p. m., the 2-mile-long parade route was lined with spectators.

They sat sedately on chairs on the lawn of the Grace Methodist Church on Frederick ave., on their own cool house lawns and some youngsters even perched in trees.

And then came the parade. First past the reviewing stand at the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove Fire Department Building came Maryland State and Montgomery County motorcycle police.

Army Corps in March

Next, the Second Army Drum Corps thundered past, and then rank on rank of marching men and women, floats, novelty exhibits and fire equipment.

Among the paraders were sailors and marines from the Navy School of Music Band, who drew cheers with "Anchors Away." And the District Metropolitan Band got a good hand as it swung by.

The fire equipment included all the nearby fire companies and one from Annapolis.

Then Came Floats

Then there were the floats. One, which drew a third prize from the judges and a laught from the spectators, depicted commodes of the 1890 Chic Sale vintage and of the 1950 variety. It was sponsored by a Beltsville plumbing and heating concern.

As each unit passed the reviewing stand it was identified over the public address system by Brooke Johns, television and radio performer and Montgomery County's own "Grover Whalen."

The parade, which began in Washington Grove, wound up on the Gaithersburg High School grounds where judging of the parade elements took place.

The Silver Springs Elks Club Band was judged the best junior band. And the top adult band was from Potomac, Md.

In the fire-equipment judging, the first-place pumper was from College Park, the second from Glen Echo. The best, and only, truck was from Takoma Park. Kensington got a first and Rockville a second for their ambulances. Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Sandy Spring took top honors for rescue squads, and the Hyattstown and Damascus Ladies Fire Department Auxiliaries led in their classification.

The kids, who wheeled decorated bikes and wagons along the parade route, also were judged. The bicycle award for best decorated bicycle went to Norman Clark, 7, of Silver Spring, who was rigged out as Uncle Sam as he rode.

Becky Claggett, 3, of Gaithersburg, took the award for the best decorated wagon, and Helen Caulfield, 12, of Cloppers, won the masquerade in an old-fashioned dress.

Best commercial float was that of the Center Market, Gaithersburg, which depicted a garden quilting party beside an old well. Second prize went to Gude Brothers, Rockville florists, for their portrayal of a flower garden, complete with brick wall, and third went to Guy Roby, of Beltsville for the exhibit on the evolution of plumbing facilities.

The top organizational float was sponsored by the Maryland Game and inland Fish commission and depicted Daniel Boone, a stuffed raccoon and several live ducks. Second prize went to St. Martin's Catholic Church, Gaithersburg, for its float urging world Christianity. Third award was to the beauty-laden Lions Club float.

Etchison Wins 20th Term as BibleUnitHead

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 4 (Spl.).—Dr. Page McK. Etchison was reelected today to his 20th consecutive term as president of the Organized Bible Class Association of Washington.

His reelection — along with that of all other officers — came at the closing session of the three-day conference held on the campus of Western Maryland College.

Dr. Etchison

Dr. Etchison, of 3730 Appleton st. nw., was attending his 29th conference — every one since he helped found the organization. It was also the largest, with more than 500 delegates, representing 65 churches, attending.

Dr. Etchison was first elected president in 1931, succeeding the late Homer J. Councillor.

Other Officers Reelected

Other officers reelected were Howard M. Stackhouse of 6706 5th st. nw., executive vice president; Miss Louise Morrow, 1421½ E st. ne., recording secretary; George A. Watson, 4100 Oliver st., Chevy Chase, Md., treasurer, and Miss Alberta R. Cissel, AA15 Ord st. ne., assistant treasurer.

Stackhouse told the delegates that the 1950-51 budget would be in excess of $2000. The executive vice president also reported the association's membership as 18,000 members in 225 Bible classes.

George E. Harris, chairman of the group's Bible Fund, said that $2361.09 had been contributed to be used by the American Bible Association for distribution of Bibles throughout the world.

Bibles Given Anacostia Church

Bibles were awarded to the Golden Page Class of Anacostia Methodist Church; the Burrall Class, Calvary Baptist Church and the Philathea-Crusaders Class, National City Christian Church for their contributions.

An award for the Sunday school student who has the longest attendance record will be made at the next conference, it was announced.

Baptist—William E. Harward, Everett F. Haycraft, William S. Jones, Harold S. King, John G. Minor, Ralph Cole.

Congregational — Mrs. Etta Zaahn.

Disciples of Christ—Elton H. Brown, sr., Noah R. Robinson.

Evangelical and Reformed—Richard O. Herberger, Mrs. J. M. Smith.

Lutheran—Allen M. Laster.

Methodist—Marshall R. Baker, James L. Ewin, Alden W. Hoage, Wade H. Holmes.

Presbyterian — Miss Esther Dunkley, Mrs. J. E. Huddleston, James A. Williams.

Mrs. Daisy Bell and George E. Harris were named vice presidents at large. Clarence M. Cook, the only Baltimorean in attendance, was named honorary vice president.

The delegates voted to return to Western Maryland College for next year's conference September 1-3.

Burial Rites Scheduled Today for Mrs. McClellan

Funeral services for Mrs. Carrie May McClellan, 80, wife of Dr. William McClellan, formerly president of the Potomac Electric Power Co. here, from 1935-1940, will be held today at 2 p. m. at Old Christ Church, Alexandria.

Mrs. McClellan died Friday in the Brentwood Nursing home after several years of declining health. A native of Reading, Pa., she came here with her husband in 1933. Besides her husband, she is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Pallbearers will be Robert V. Fleming, Alfred G. Neal, Robert W. Wilson, George M. Thompson, H. L. Rust, jr., A. V. Hawkins, Charles Rollins, and R. M. McKelway.

Earl Steel Richey Dies

Services for Earl Steel Richey, 62, a Riggs National Bank employe, will be held at 8 p. m. today in Hysong funeral home, 1300 N st. nw. Burial will be at a later date in the family plot at Unity Cemetery, Latrobe, Pa.

Mr. Richey died Sunday at Emergency Hospital after a four weeks' illness. He suffered a stroke.

Born in Latrobe, Mr. Richey moved to Washington six years ago and joined Riggs bank. He lived at 5341 Broad Branch rd., nw.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Edith B. Richey; two daughters, Mrs. Domenic Taddonio, 2480 16th st. nw., and Miss Caroline F. Richey of the Branch rd. address, and two sons, William R. of Detroit, Mich., and John B. of Haddonfield, N. J.

Mrs. Lenore Howe, Eastern Teacher, Dies

Funeral services were held last night at Lee's funeral home for Mrs. Lenore Murray Howe, 54, teacher at Eastern High School for 25 years. Burial will be in clearfield, Pa.

Mrs. Howe, who lived with her husband, Chester Howe, at 120 C st. ne., died Saturday in Garfield Hospital following a brief illness.

She retired from teaching last year because of ill health. During her quarter-century teaching she taught business courses and English and history.

Surviving, in addition to her husband, are a sister, Miss Olive Murray of Clearfield, and a brother, William A. Murray of Washington.

T. L. Stokes, Columnist's Father, Dies

Thomas L. Stokes, sr., 79, of Atlanta, father of Washington Columnist Thomas L. Stokes, jr., died Sunday in Atlanta following an operation.

Born in Alabama, the elder Mr. Stokes was a founder of the firm of Davis, Paxon & Stokes, forerunner of the Davison-Paxon Co., Atlanta department store. He retired as vice president and general manager of the original firm 16 years ago. The company was purchased by the Macy Co.

Mr. Stokes had been active in civic organizations and Sunday School work.

Also surviving are another son, Morris L. Stokes of New York, and Mrs. Hinton Longino of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held in Atlanta.

William West, Retired Road Draftsman, Dies

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 4 (AP).—William Callis West, 80, who retired in July as service engineering draftsman with the State Highway Department, died in a Richmond hospital yesterday.

Mr. West took over the architectural business of his father, Albert Lawrence West, in 1892 and designed a number of churches and other buildings in Virginia. He had been with the Highway Department since 1929.

BLAME—In memory of our son, husband and father, who died September 5, 1949:
In our hearts the torch of memory
Burns unflickering, bright and true;
Its light is sweet, for it is fed
On love and tender thoughts of you.
MOTHER AND FATHER,
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

Have you ever seen
the miles of wires and the maze of complex equipment in a telephone central office?

We'd like you to meet the man whose job it is to keep it all working right, so that your calls
go through quickly and clearly.

We call him the Wire Chief.
He's a highly trained specialist who has earned and learned his job through years of telephone service.
He has the respect and friendship of the telephone people with whom he works because he came up through the ranks and he "knows his stuff."

His neighbors respect him, too.
For, like other telephone folks, he's always ready to do his part in youth work, welfare campaigns, in school or church or service club.

A good man where he works—
a good neighbor where he lives.

"COLLERETTE" is the name Christian Dior gives this black velvet afternoon dress from his newest American collection. Noteworthy details are the star-shaped neckline and short sleeves, sweeping double black taffeta draped panels on hip, and leather belt. Hat, also by Dior, is geranium red velour with carnations

Dior Designs For American Way of Life

By Peggy Preston

ITEMS from Christian Dior's third American collection are now arriving in stores across the country. And his devotees will find these latest fashion contributions of the great French designer as sophisticated and sure as ever.

Locally, Dior's American group is found at Julius Garfinckel & Co. It is quite separate and apart from his Paris collection which he showed in that city last month. These are the clothes he has designed and manufactured in this country, specifically for the women of America. They are typically USA—but with a French touch.

Less extreme than his Paris designed clothes, they are far better suited to our mode of life, as well as to our figures. For the feminine form on this side of the Atlantic tends to be taller, more rangy than it is in Europe. Hence, Dior has cut his costumes with broader shoulder lines, longer waistlines and roomier skirts.

THE FRENCH TOUCH is reflected largely in details. One sees it in the amusing cut of a neckline, in a double panel of taffeta or satin which gives width to an otherwise straight skirt, in arrangements of buttons, pockets, cuffs and costume jewelry.

One of his more novel, and useful, ideas this season comes to life in a basic coat that is transformed by seven different sets of accessories. Made of banker's gray flannel, it is shown first as a simple, flowing garment that may be worn over any type of suit or dress. With huge ruby red velvet sleeves and ascot added, it becomes a dressy, afternoon costume. Thereafter, Dior adds various sets of furs to create completely different effects. He concludes with a set of white ermine, paired with the flannel for evening wear.

There is practically no facet of fashion which Dior has not tampered with this season. His collection is quite complete, including blouses, hats, stockings, jewelry and furs, along with his coats, suits and dresses.

THIS MARKS his first foray into the realm of fur fashions, and although these styles are few in number, they carry a characteristic stamp of distinction. There is a mink jacket, for instance, made like a man's lounging jacket; a fitted coat in iridescent cafe-au-lait broadtail; a full length (he puts the hemline between 13 and 14 inches from the floor) mink coat, belted in the back. Most of them contain large, roomy pockets, well concealed, in which one may hide trinkets from an over-burdened handbag.

Accessories that American women are apt to enjoy include huge tulle stoles, trimmed with either lace or embroidery, sparkling little jeweled hearts to scatter on a sleeve, belt or lapel; and numerous strands of pearls.

DIOR'S FLAIR for unique lines is demonstrated in this beige wool topper. With full bodice and skirt, deep tucks at belted waistline create fitted effect. Uneven hemline, and vertical flap hip pockets are novel details

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man Makes Overtures to Woman Who Divorced Him Because His Parents Wouldn't Accept Her; She Favors Reconciliation, But Her Family Scorns Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am faced with a difficult decision which I must make shortly, and I need your disinterested guidance. Four years ago I married Joe, whom I met in the Capital City where I was then employed. We got along fine until we went to live with his family, called there by his father's illness.

Inasmuch as his family's religion differs from mine, I wasn't accepted as a daughter-in-law and his parents wouldn't speak to me. Being young, only 21, and far away from my family, I was miserable in the situation, and after much argument with Joe I packed and left. Two and a half years later I sued for divorce, which was granted without contest from Joe. He didn't want the divorce but he wouldn't see me to talk things over.

About a month ago Joe wrote to me, and also has called long distance. If he has changed and honestly wants me back, I am willing to meet him halfway. If things can be ironed out satisfactorily to both of us, I will gladly remarry him. I realize things aren't all one-sided; but my parents think I should refuse to speak to him. They say if I leave home to talk with him, I may as well stay with him, that I cannot return to them, not even for a visit.

Wife's Now Secure in Home Town

Joe no longer lives with his family, and as he is past the present draft age, that can't be his reason for wanting me back. Since we parted, I have secured a fine position in my town. I teach in our local church, my friends never refer to the divorce, and gradually I am regaining self-confidence, which I had lost for a while. Do you think it would be wrong of me to talk with Joe, in the hope of reaching a new understanding and perhaps having a rich future together? Or should I take my parents' advice to "let well enough alone?"

My mother has a very weak heart, and my father and sister say I shouldn't do anything to upset her. Thus the decision is doubly difficult to make. Please answer soon. P. S.: Joe and I have no children. E. B.

Man Is Unstable, Wife More Poised

DEAR E. B.: The trend of events suggests that you are worth a dozen of Joe; that you are a first-rate person—strong, generous and logical—and that he is a weakling. It was a manifestation of good common sense to pull out of the impossible situation with his family, who laid hold on Joe as their mainstay, meanwhile refusing to accept you.

The fact that your self-confidence was crushed by their clannish bigotry shows that you have an open loving nature. You were more or less defenseless against their primitive cruelty; that's why the ordeal hurt so deeply, and why your recovery has been slow. Also the fact that you had the grit to leave when your emotions were at ebb tide and succor couldn't be wrung from Joe, signifies a will-to-health. The senseless martyrdom of neurotic relationships finds no affinity in you. This rugged quality of character is further emphasized in your methodical application to "the good life" since you evacuated enemy territory.

Now, about Joe. It appears that he let you go ignominiously, then later refused you the courtesy of a hearing prior to divorce; and only now is courting your indulgence because he no longer lives at home. All of which indicates that he is woefully immature, ill-natured, shortsighted, self-centered and unstable. Very likely he is leaning toward you nowadays just because he is adrift uncertainly, on the outs with his folks for some reason or other. I doubt that he has changed for the better since he let you down.

If Man's Worthy, Let Him Prove It

You say things aren't all one-sided, meaning that you feel Joe wasn't entirely at fault in the separation; that you too bear a portion of blame, for being difficult about his parents' behavior, etc., I suppose. But considering the provocation, only a craven would swallow it. And even the saintly Ghandi, immortal exemplar of the power of meekness and love, instructed his disciples that if obliged to choose between violence and cowardice in dealing with injustice, he would elect violence as the higher reaction.

A man has failed as a husband if he takes his wife to live with his parents for one-sided reasons, then turns his face away while they trample her personality, and seems to expect she should pay that price for board-and-keep or forfeit his company. Isn't that what Joe did? If so, don't get blindly sentimental in retrospect, just because you're more comfortable now, or mate-hungry perhaps.

I think it's all right to talk with Joe, since he asks an audience. But don't exert yourself to meet him halfway. Let him come to you, right into the teeth of your family's scorn of him. If he's not man enough to do that, and win your family's approval on second thought, when they hear his story and look him over, then you'd better stay clear of him. M. H.

Athlete's Appetite No Good for Desk Job

By Ida Jean Kain

HOW'S your after-vacation appetite. . . ENORMOUS? After all that fresh air, sun, exercise and good food on the American plan, you probably find you have a mountain climber's appetite . . . on a desk job. .

You might reasonably suppose that once settled back into routine, appetite would diminish accordingly. Why doesn't it? Those big meals increased your food capacity. To get the general idea, think of the stomach as an elastic saclike cavity that can be expanded and contracted. Vacation expands it . . . you're actually hungrier, and since everything tastes so good you're tempted to overeat. In that holiday mood it's natural to disregard the satisfied feeling in order to continue just a little longer the pressure that comes with eating.

Naturally, bigger meals stretch the stomach and increases food capacity. It doesn't take long to get the stomach in the habit of expecting big meals three times a day. That satisfied, full feeling is delayed. This is physiological . . . a sense of fullness is caused by the tensions exerted with on the circular musele fibers of the stomach. The fact of the matter is, your stomach is a larger size and it actually takes more food to fill the larger space.

Now what do we do? The process will have to be reversed. It's the only way to shrink that appetite down to size. Better do it before there is a definite nip in the air, or all may be lost. The first couple of days on smaller meals, it will be nip and tuck between appetite and will power. By the third or fourth day, however, you'll begin to get the upper hand. Fortunately the stomach can be shrunk as well as stretched, and as it gets smaller you'll be satisfied on smaller meals. In the interim there will be hunger pangs to cope with, but they're only temporary.

To make things easier, fortify yourself with a good breakfast. Oh, not the whopping big one you ate on vacation. Have fruit, 2 eggs (not fried), a slice of toast and coffee. This will boost your energy and help keep you from wanting to go all-out at lunchtime. Don't make the mistake of taking only coffee at breakfast.

The technique for shrinking appetite down to normal size is to eat three good meals a day, starting with breakfast; to cut out all second helpings, and to exert self-control; and this week get up from the table before you have eaten quite all you want.

If You Follow This Recipe Crabby Husband Won't Crab About Your Crab Cakes

The crab may be a cross old party, but that doesn't hamper his popularity along the Chesapeake Bay! Marylanders love crabs and like to cook them just right. Here's a letter from a husband in the Great Free State:

DEAR ANNE:

I wonder if you could give my wife a good recipe for making crab cakes. All her cook books show how to make everything but crab cakes. Could also use menu including crab cakes, etc. J. H., Waldorf, Md.

Maybe your wife would like the favorite crab cake recipe of Mrs. William Preston Lane, jr., wife of the Maryland Governor. It appears as follows in "The Time Reader's Book of Recipes" (E. P. Dutton & Co.)

Maryland Crab Croquettes

1 pound fresh crab meat, or
2 8-ounce cans crab meat
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Juice of ½ lemon
Dash of cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup of milk
2 eggs, beaten
Bread crumbs

Flake crab meat. Remove hard membrane. Mix with onion, Worcestershire sauce, lemon, and cayenne pepper. Melt butter. Remove from heat. Blend in flour and salt. Gradually stir in milk, mixing until well blended. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and smooth. Cool. Beat in one of the eggs. Add to crab mixture. Blend well.

Place in greased shallow pan to depth of two inches. Chill in refrigerator several hours or until stiff. Form into croquettes or cakes. Dip into the remaining egg. Roll in bread crumbs. Fry in deep lard or other fat (370 degrees) until browned on all sides. Drain on brown paper. Serve very hot. Makes six to eight croquettes, depending on size.

A tasty sauce to serve with the croquettes is made by mixing 1 cup mayonnaise with ½ cup chopped, well-drained cucumbers.

A good, though not very unusual, menu to go with crabcakes will include French fried potatoes, sliced tomatoes, coleslaw, and hot rolls. For dessert, you might have watermelon, when in season, or layer cake a la mode.

Another combination would be crab cakes, corn on the cob, potatoes au gratin, tossed salad with Roquefort dressing and toasted French bread. For dessert, sliced peaches or a short cake if your appetite is hearty.

DEAR ANNE:

What is the age limit for the hobby show for older people to be held here this fall? How can you enter your work?

C. K., Washington

To make the grade for this show, you must be over three score (60) years of age. Entry blanks can be obtained at the District of Columbia Recreation Department, 3149 16th st. nw., Washington 10, D. C. The show will be held November 17-20 in the lobby of the Department of Commerce Building.

DEAR ANNE:

Sometime ago, someone asked you if seats to use in bathtubs were available. You answered in the affirmative, but said the one you found could not be used in built-in tub as the arms would have to hook over the sides.

Now in the August number of the American Magazine in their "Now They've Done It" page, they tell of a "lounge" which is held in place on the bottom by suction cups. Society's at the Sea Or in the Hunt Country; Diplomats on the Move

By Elizabeth Magutre

IF EVER SOCIETY was decentralized, it was yesterday. Newport, Cape Cod, The Islands, the sea, the mountains. Everyone who could, left Washington for the holiday.

Warrenton still held countless numbers who had gone down Friday evening to attend the many parties before and after Saturday's horse show. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chrysler, jr., entertained guests over the weekend at North Wales, and yesterday afternoon the Chryslers gave a large luncheon.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Chrysler were guests at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thomas in honor of their weekend house guests, Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred M. Vinson. Another dinner party in Warrenton was given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Scruton.

Diplomatic Notes

THE NEW Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. van Royen arrived in Washington Saturday evening and are stopping at the Shoreham Hotel for a short time before moving into the embassy. Their four children, two sons and two daughters, are with them.

THE AMBASSADOR of Uruguay to OAS and Senora de Mora are going to New York tomorrow to say farewell to the Uruguayan Ambassador to Washington, Alberto Dominguez-Campora, and Senora de Dominguez-Campora, who are sailing for home Thursday on the S.S. Argentina. In the absence of the latter Ambassador Mora will be Charge d'Affaires at the Embassy.

MR. AND MRS. CECIL LYON have returned to Washington and will move into their home at 3000 Woodland Drive, where the Ambassador and Senora de Mora have been living. Mrs. Mora has found another house just one door away and will move into her new house on her return to Washington. Mrs. Lyon is the former Elsie Grew, and Mr. Lyon has been serving as Counselor at the embassy in Poland.

JOHN E. PEURIFOY, newly appointed United States Ambassador to Greece, and Mrs. Peurifoy are leaving tomorrow by plane for New York, where they will sail on the Vulcania for Naples. From Naples they will go to Rome for a few days, and then to Athens by plane.

Wedding Bells

Miss Anne Elizabeth Davis and Charles A. Camalier, jr., are to be married today, and yesterday the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Davis, gave a dinner party following rehearsal. The dinner was at the Congressional Country Club for members of the wedding party.

Additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. Allen A. Wales of Detroit, parents of Mrs. Floyd E. Davis, jr., who is to be matron of honor today; Mr. and Mrs. George Moffett, jr., of Huntington, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Norris, and Mrs. Charles A. Camalier, sr.

MRS. ALISON GRUBB LANDIN of Mount Vernon, Ohio, and Washington was married August 31 to Marcus L. Bell, jr., of New York. The wedding took place at the New York apartment of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Marcus Bell, sr.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Grubb of Columbus and Mount Vernon, Ohio, and attended Denison University and Ohio State University. Mr. Bell was graduated from Harvard, and served in the last war as a lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve. He is an official of the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York.

MISS SUSAN BASSETT, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Bassett, will enter Sweet Briar College this month. She was graduated in June from Madeira School, and she has spent the summer swimming and riding in Washington or visiting at Cape Cod. She will be presented to society on Thanksgiving Day, the traditional day for members of her family to be presented. Her sister, Elizabeth, made her debut two years ago on Thanksgiving Day, and her great aunt was a Thanksgiving debutante, when Susan's grandfather, William J. Stone, was a Senator in Washington.

Congratulations To:

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Fletcher McCluney, who announce the birth of their first child, Barbara Ann, September 3 at the George Washington University Hospital. Mr. McCluney is former Deputy Special Assistant Secretary of State for Research and Intelligence, and he was recently appointed European Director of Radio Free Europe, privately financed radio station similar to the State Department's "Voice of America."

Backed by the National Committee for Free Europe, the radio station is headed by former Ambassador Joseph Grew, and Gen. Lucius B. Clay is in charge of fund raising.

Mr. McCluney has taken over his new post in Munich, Germany, where Mrs. McCluney and the baby will join him in November. For the past year the McCluneys have lived in Frankfurt, Germany, where Mr. McCluney served as special intelligence adviser to High Commissioner John J. McCloy.

Back from a weekend at Warrenton, where he attended the horseshow, Comdr. Richard C. Drum Hunt, jr., USN, entertained last evening at a dinner party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Drum Hunt of the State Department, and the latter's brother, The Rev. Edwin Conly of Dallas, Tex.

More Sponsors For Theater Wing Benefit

When Brian Aherne appears in the special performance of "Dear Brutus" at the Olney Theater on Monday, September 11, a representative audience will welcome him and members of his cast, all of whom are donating their talent for the benefit of the Washington Hospital Committee of the American Theater Wing.

Added to the list of sponsors already announced by Mrs. George R. Holmes and Mrs. Blake Clark, chairman and vice-chairman of the benefit, are the Ambassador of the Dominican Republic and Senora De Thomen; Mme. Koo, wife of the Ambassador of China; Justice and Mrs. Sherman Minton; the Postmaster General and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson; the Delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington; General of the Army and Mrs. George C. Marshall; the Commanding General of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Clifton B. Cates; the Charge d'Affaires of Ecuador and Senora De Moscoso, the Secretary of the Senate and Mrs. Leslie L. Biffle and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Clark H. Woodward.

Men in military, naval and veterans' hospitals in the area between Washington and Quantico depend on the hospital committee, of which May Redmond Smith is director, for entertainment, and with funds raised from the forthcoming benefit more will be available. In the past four years 2895 units of entertainment comprising 12,824 individual entertainers have been furnished by the committee which is an active and healthy offspring of the Stage Door Canteen.

Tickets for the benefit performance are available by calling DU 0381.

Skin Lubrication Ranks Next to Cleanliness

Margaret, 17, starts the third day of her two-weeks' beauty program.

By Ann Lawrence

IN THE luxurious atmosphere of a famous Fifth ave. beauty salon, Margaret was treated to her first facial. And it was here that she learned the second step in the "ounce of prevention" program.

Lubrication is next to cleanliness in this three-point program, and it goes hand in hand with the third step, whch is stimulation.

Today, Margaret's skin is smooth as silk, except for the occasional pimple. But in the wintertime, she reported, it frequently gets rough and chapped, indicating a tendency to dryness.

She does not need to worry about lines and crepey tissues now. But, now is the time to prevent them from forming.

Hence, a once-a-week facial was included in her beauty curriculum. She'll start with a cream cleansing and follow up with a conditioning cream made of oils closely resembling the natural oils of the human body. This rich emollient will guard against dryness and chapping and will help her retain a smooth, fine-textured skin.

She'll only need about 15 minutes a week to follow the how-to-do she learned in the salon. First, she will spread a film of cream over her entire face and neck. Starting at the base of her neck, she will work upward, alternating strokes, until the entire area is covered. Then, with the lightest pressure of her fingertips, she'll start at her chin (as illustrated) and make little spiral movements from her chin to her mouth and up the sides of her nose. Then, she'll move gently under her eyes, curving from eyes to temples, circling up over the lids and under her eyes again, ending at the temples.

As she massages, she will also be stimulating her skin, sending new blood to the surface—all of which helps to keep the skin clear and refined.

Margaret protested. Did she really need such a treatment at her age? She does. Once a week is often enough. But once a week is a "must" to guard against over-exposure to wind and cold during the coming winter months and to compensate for the drying effects of steam-heat.

Margaret begins her 15 minutes a week massage program

If she follows this program, she will find that her skin will not chap, that its texture stays fine, its color clear.

Unaccustomed to any sort of beauty treatment, Margaret thought it was all too complicated. Then she realized that only three things had been added: a cleansing cream, a freshener which is also a mild bleach, and a softening lubricant—certainly a simple life of beauty care.

One on the Aisle—

Marine on Leave Is Stopping the Show

By Richard L. Coe

MEET TOMMY ALLEN, the Marine on leave from Quantico whose mimicry is stopping the show for the Capitol's "Going Native."

For the next 11 months, the Commander-in-Chief being willing, Tommy will be driving his truck at the Marine base, but at 22 he's sweating out his discharge for a stab at the theater world. He expects he'll be an old man in his '30s by the time he begins to hit the big jackpot, but I hope he gives it a good try because it looks as though he's got a chance to make it.

You get that impression from the way Capitol audiences have been receiving Tommy. While the supply of mimics would seem to exceed the demand, Allen's not counting on mimicry for a career. He wants to sing and to be an actor; mimicry just seems, for him, one of the easiest ways in.

Part of his ease comes from the fact that his pop was in show bi; he was with a medicine show and till the time he was 10 or 11, Tommy used to pal around with his dad alot. One of the hard-to-get qualities Tommy either inherited or picked up was the easy manner which always sets in a chain reaction in an audience. He has good poise and switches his voices (Jimmy Stewart, Gable, Bogart, Cooper, Grant and Walter Brennan) smoothly.

He prefers doing singing impressions best—Godfrey, Vaughn Monroe and Jimmy Cagney—and you may have heard him in some of the town's night spots, Matt Windsor's, Cross Roads and Kavakos. He's had his shots—and invitations to return—on Godfrey's show and at Leon and Eddies' in New York.

Times Square Shoe Shine

Brought up on New York's West Side, he's pretty savvy about the harder shells of show biz. He may even have shined your shoes in front of Toffinetti's on Times Square. Getting into the Marines before he was 17, he hitched up for two years, then took eight months to try to find a spot in the entertainment world. No soap. So back into three quares a da" with the Leathernecks for the three years and one stripe which end next summer.

His week at the Capitol and his spare time spots at Matt's have done something to cheer the bleak depression he had when he was 20 and now Tommy's vowing that if he does get out of uniform he'll remember the way audiences have been applauding him this week.

If you've seen him, you may agree with this corner that Allen has promise. He's got some of Godfrey's natural quality and, at six-feet-two, doesn't look unlike him. But he's smart enough to realize you don't get far by being someone else. "Getting good material is the toughest part," says Tommy. "I've worked out my own act, but it's still got lots of other people in it."

Okay, Tommy, here's to the future and don't forget your "Going Native" days.

THEATER GUILD — American Theater Society subscription renewal deadline has been moved up a week to accommodate those who've been out of town . . . The Guild's Washington office is now in Room 120 of the Raleigh Hotel, where Bess Davis Schreiner's office is open daily this week from noon until 5 . . . The new renewal deadline will be next Monday, but newcomers for the series of six plays would do well to get their names in the fast-filling pot . . . There are some 7000 subscribers so far and already Miss Schreiner is wondering how she's going to fill all specific requests; naturally, the renewals of oldtimers from two seasons ago will be placed, so far as possible, in comparable seats . . . The Guild's number is District 2433.

THE LATE D. W. Griffith is the subject of a biography being written by Barnet George Bravermann, who is seeking any information about the great director . . . Bravermann began his research 10 years ago with the blessing of Griffith and has found countless people, not connected with films in any way, who had dealings with him during his long, fabulous life . . . "I'm on the last lap of my long job," writes Bravermann, "and I'd like any material which sheds further light on his character and career" . . . You can write the author at University Station 42, Minneapolis 14, Minn.

RED-HEADS—but they must be females—are being admitted free tonight, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at Glen Echo's Spanish ballroom . . . For a definition of "how red?" Gen. Yugoslavs Would Call on U. N. If Invaded, Bebler Says

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 4 (AP).—Yugoslavia's chief delegate to the United Nations said tonight that if his country were invaded it would ask the United Nations for help and it would take whatever help was offered, no matter the source.

Ales Babler, former Yugoslav guerilla leader and now leading diplomat for his country, said that he refuses to be pessimistic about threats of military action by Russian-led countries against Yugoslavia.

He said the Cominform economic blockade against his country is more serious because it has disarranged Marshal Tito's entire program for industrializing the country.

Yugoslavs Sending Top Diplomats to U. N.

BELGRADE, Sept. 4 (AP).—Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj left Belgrade tonight at the head of the strongest delegation Yugoslavia has ever sent to the United Nations General Assembly.

In addition to Kardelj, who is also vice premier and ranking Yugoslav Communist after Marshal Tito, the three top deputy foreign ministers are members of the delegation. They are Srdjan Prica, Joze Vilfan and Mario Barisul. Milan Bartosh, minister counsellor in the Foreign Ministry, also is a member of the group.

The delegation will be joined in New York by Dr. Ales Bebler, permanent Yugoslav delegate to the U. N., and Vlada Simic, speaker of the Yugloslav Parliament, both now in the United States.

'Wreckage' in Delaware Bay Spotted by Plane Seekers

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP).—A radio message from Dover (Del.) Air Force Base was received here late today reporting "wreckage" had been spotted in Delaware Bay about 15 flying minutes from Frederick, Del.

The report was received by Lieut. Alexander S. Sherry, of the Sixth Rescue Squadron, Military Air Transport Service. Sherry arrived here yesterday from the Air Force base at Westover, Mass., to coordinate forces searching for a four-passenger aircraft last seen Saturday night at Salisbury, Md. The missing plane was en route to Teterboro, N. J.

Sherry immediately took off in an amphibious plane in an effort to determine if the reported wreckage was the missing plane.

The missing plane was piloted by B. J. Holloman, 53, president of the Jacksonville (N.C.) Airport, Inc., and was believed to have been carrying three Marines on leave, although there was no passenger list.

Approximately 200 Civil Air Patrol and military planes took part in the search for the missing plane today.

Sherry spent most of the day in the air after setting up headquarters at the North Philadelphia airport. He requested that anyone spotting the plane or wreckage communicate with the CAP at the airport.

The missing plane, a Silver Navion, bears the designation NC-91721.

Final Week — Closes Sun.

One on the Aisle—

Marine on Leave Is Stopping the Show

By Richard L. Coe

MEET TOMMY ALLEN, the Marine on leave from Quantico whose mimicry is stopping the show for the Capitol's "Going Native."

For the next 11 months, the Commander-in-Chief being willing, Tommy will be driving his truck at the Marine base, but at 22 he's sweating out his discharge for a stab at the theater world. He expects he'll be an old man in his '30s by the time he begins to hit the big jackpot, but I hope he gives it a good try because it looks as though he's got a chance to make it.

You get that impression from the way Capitol audiences have been receiving Tommy. While the supply of mimics would seem to exceed the demand, Allen's not counting on mimicry for a career. He wants to sing and to be an actor; mimicry just seems, for him, one of the easiest ways in.

Part of his ease comes from the fact that his pop was in show bi; he was with a medicine show and till the time he was 10 or 11. Tommy used to pal around with his dad alot. One of the hard-to-get qualities Tommy either inherited or picked up was the easy manner which always sets in a chain reaction in an audience. He has good poise and switches his voices (Jimmy Stewart, Gable, Bogart, Cooper, Grant and Walter Brennan) smoothly.

He prefers doing singing impressions best— Godfrey, Vaughn Monroe and Jimmy Cagney—and you may have heard him in some of the town's night spots, Matt Windsor's, Cross Roads and Kavakos. He's had his shots—and invitations to return—on Godfrey's show and at Leon and Eddies' in New York.

Times Square Shoe Shine

Brought up on New York's West Side, he's pretty savvy about the harder shells of show biz. He may even have shined your shoes in front of Toffinetti's on Times Square. Getting into the Marines before he was 17, he hitched up for two years, then took eight months to try to find a spot in the entertainment world. No soap. So back into three quares a day with the Leathernecks for the three years and one stripe which end next summer.

His week at the Capitol and his spare time spots at Matt's have done something to cheer the bleak depression he had when he was 20 and now Tommy's vowing that if he does get out of uniform he'll remember the way audiences have been applauding him this week.

If you've seen him, you may agree with this corner that Allen has promise. He's got some of Godfrey's natural quality and, at six-feet-two, doesn't look unlike him. But he's smart enough to realize you don't get far by being someone else. "Getting good material is the toughest part," says Tommy. "I've worked out my own act, but it's still got lots of other people in it."

Okay, Tommy, here's to the future and don't forget your "Going Native" days.

THEATER GUILD — American Theater Society subscription renewal deadline has been moved up a week to accommodate those who've been out of town . . . The Guild's Washington office is now in Room 120 of the Raleigh Hotel, where Bess Davis Schreiner's office is open daily this week from noon until 5 . . . The new renewal deadline will be next Monday, but newcomers for the series of six plays would do well to get their names in the fast-filling pot . . . There are some 7000 subscribers so far and already Miss Schreiner is wondering how she's going to fill all specific requests; naturally, the renewals of oldtimers from two seasons ago will be placed, so far as possible, in comparable seats . . . The Guild's number is District 2433.

THE LATE D. W. Griffith is the subject of a biography being written by Barnet George Bravermann, who is seeking any information about the great director . . . Bravermann began his research 10 years ago with the blessing of Griffith and has found countless people, not connected with films in any way, who had dealings with him during his long, fabulous life . . . "I'm on the last lap of my long job," writes Bravermann, "and I'd like any material which sheds further light on his character and career" . . . You can write the author at University Station 42, Minneapolis 14, Minn.

RED-HEADS—but they must be females—are being admitted free tonight, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights at Glen Echo's Spanish ballroom . . . For a definition of "how red?" Gen. Manager Gerald Price answers: "reasonably." . . . It's the last week for the big park, its pool and ballroom, so the "titian-tressed," as the burlesque queens are always described, had better get out thar.

ARENA STAGE is a busy spot these days . . . "She Stoops to Conquer" began its final week last night and during the day Zelda Fichandler and Edward Mangum are running the company through final run-throughs of next week's arrival, "Of Mice and Men."

Yugoslavs Would Call on U. N. If Invaded, Bebler Says

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 4 (AP).—Yugoslavia's chief delegate to the United Nations said tonight that if his country were invaded it would ask the United Nations for help and it would take whatever help was offered, no matter the source.

Ales Babler, former Yugoslav guerilla leader and now leading diplomat for his country, said that he refuses to be pessimistic about threats of military action by Russian-led countries against Yugoslavia.

He said the Cominform economic blockade against his country is more serious because it has disarranged Marshal Tito's entire program for industrializing the country.

Yugoslavs Sending Top Diplomats to U. N.

BELGRADE, Sept. 4 (AP).—Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj left Belgrade tonight at the head of the strongest delegation Yugoslavia has ever sent to the United Nations General Assembly.

In addition to Kardelj, who is also vice premier and ranking Yugoslav Communist after Marshal Tito, the three top deputy foreign ministers are members of the delegation. They are Srdjan Prica, Joze Vilfan and Mario Barisui. Milan Bartosh, minister counsellor in the Foreign Ministry, also is a member of the group.

The delegation will be joined in New York by Dr. Ales Bebler, permanent Yugoslav delegate to the U. N., and Vlada Simic, speaker of the Yugloslav Parliament, both now in the United States.

'Wreckage' in Delaware Bay Spotted by Plane Seekers

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP).—A radio message from Dover (Del.) Air Force Base was received here late today reporting "wreckage" had been spotted in Delaware Bay about 15 flying minutes from Frederick, Del.

The report was received by Lieut. Alexander S. Sherry, of the Sixth Rescue Squadron, Military Air Transport Service. Sherry arrived here yesterday from the Air Force base at Westover, Mass., to coordinate forces searching for a four-passenger aircraft last seen Saturday night at Salisbury, Md. The missing plane was en route to Teterboro, N. J.

Sherry immediately took off in an amphibious plane in an effort to determine if the reported wreckage was the missing plane.

The missing plane was piloted by B. J. Holloman, 53, president of the Jacksonville (N.C.) Airport, Inc., and was believed to have been carrying three Marines on leave, although there was no passenger list.

Approximately 200 Civil Air Patrol and military planes took part in the search for the missing plane today.

Sherry spent most of the day in the air after setting up headquarters at the North Philadelphia airport. He requested that anyone spotting the plane or wreckage communicate with the CAP at the airport.

The missing plane, a Silver Navion, bears the designation NC-91721.

Says Gen. Guderian

German Units Could Stop Red Invasion

By The Associated Press

The German soldier could halt a Russian invasion, according to the former chief of staff of the German army.

Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian puts it this way:

"If I had the four billion marks which are spent yearly (in Germany) for occupation costs, I would provide you a few German divisions which really could stop an invasion."

But "only all-armored mobile forces would have a chance" against a mobile attack from the east.

Guderian, whose Panzer divisions raced almost to Moscow in the last war, was interviewed at his Bavarian home by United States News and World Report. Germany's future in the Western European defense picture is under serious discussion by the Allies. In that connection, the magazine said it sought the views of the general.

Guderian attached this condition to Germany's sharing in the Allied defense of Europe: "equal rights in every respect" for her troops.

German divisions if used should operate under German command and Allied chief command, Guderian advised, with Germany having a commander in Atlantic Pact regional military headquarters.

"Also," he added, "every European country could be limited to manufacturing just one special kind of arms so that no nation needs to be afraid of another nation's strivng after control of Europe."

Guderian said that atom bombs and planes won't win a future war; "the decisive battle is still fought in the clay soil here below."

"The Russians are excellent, easily satisfied, enduring, tough and hard-fighting soldiers. Nothing but technical superiority is likely to defeat them."

Bus Upset Kills 23

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 4 (AP).—A bus overturned last night five miles north of Sparta, killing 23 persons and injuring seven others. The accident occurred on a mountain road. Press dispatches said the bus burst into flames.

Guerillas Reported Regrouping in Greece

By the United Press

Diplomatic officials fear new Communist trouble is brewing in Greece.

Reports received here indicate the Red guerilla force, which was defeated last year with United States aid, is regrouping in the mountain fastnesses near Greece's border.

While the Communist force is "not awesome," according to officials, it might start the civil war all over again if it received support from neighboring Communist satellite countries, Albania and Bulgaria.

An ominous sign is the reopening of Moscow's propaganda attacks on the Greek government. Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik tried to bring the Greek issue before the United Nations Security Council last week.

The clandestine "Free Greece" radio station is again spreading Communist war propaganda and exhorting party members to infiltrate the Greek army and labor unions.

United States officials have confidence in the ability of the well-trained Greek army to defeat the guerillas in any new battle. But John E. Peurifoy, new United States Ambassador to Greece, is expected to recommend greater internal security measures when he arrives in Athens late this month.

Russians Excluded As Britons Show Hush-Hush Planes

FARNBOROUGH EXPERIMENTAL AIR BASE, England, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Britain placed some of her hush-hush war planes on display today, but saw to it that the Russians did not attend the show.

Soviet Embassy representatives and officials from the other eastern European countries were not invited to this year's exhibit by the Society of British Aircraft Constructors.

Some 38 planes were on display, including 18 of Britain's newest and two that have just been taken off the secret list. Among them were the sleek, souped-up Meteor jet, the night fighter 11, tailor-made for western Europe's night air defenses.

Also on limited display before the public for the first time was a Meteor equipped with the sapphire jet engine that authorities estimate unofficially can drive a fighter through the air at 1000 miles an hour. Another was the twin jet Canberra bomber that climbs and maneuvers better than many standard British jet fighters.

British, Italian Ships Join in Maneuvers

LONDON, Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The Admiralty annuonced today that British and Italian naval units carried out a joint maneuver in the Mediterranean last month.

The exercise was desiged to familiarize the former enemy with British antisubmarine tactics. The maneuver comprised briefings ashore and exercises at sea, off Malta, the announcement said. Eight British vessels, including four submarines and four Italian vessels, took part in the maneuvers.

Ceylond Reds Suspend 8

COLOMBO, Ceylon, Sept. 4 (AP). Ceylon's communist party has suspended eight of its members on charges that they are "American spies." This charge also had been leveled against the party's former secretary general, Harry D. Abeyagunewardene, a member of Parliament, but later it was dropped.

'Helen of Crete'

New 'Kidnap' Threatens 'Trojan War'

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 4 (U.P.)—The father of beautiful "Helen of Crete" fumed today over the "second abduction" of his daughter, as the politico-personal family squabble threatened anew to flare into a modern "Trojan War."

George Petrakogeorgis led authories in a vain, day-long search for his daughter Tassoula, who was spirited away yesterday by relatives of her imprisoned husband, Costas Kefaloghianis.

Members of the Kofaloghianis family said Tassoula would remain in hiding until the government releases the husband who wooed and won her in a mountain cave on Crete. He was arrested when the couple arrived here Saturday.

Meanwhile, excited friends on Crete were flocking to one banner or the other and authorities were studying new measures to prevent the family feud from flaring into open conflict.

Political circles here feared the feud might also touch off a crisis in the national government. The trouble started when Petrakogeorgis, an ardent Liberal, refused to allow his daughter to marry Kefaloghianis, who is a Royalist.

Members of the Populist (Royalist) Party in Parliament were growling today that "the government must go!" unless handsome, moustached Costas is reunited with his bride.

The Royalists have five more seats in Parliament than the Liberal Party, which is the mainstay of Premier Sophocles Venizelos' rickety government, and a genuine parliamentary revolt by the Populists would be a genuine threat to the cabinet.

Ammunition Car Of South Serbia Train Blows Up

BELGRADE, Sept. 4 (NYHT).—A serious accident occurred on one of Yugoslavia's main railroad lines in the last few days owing to the explosion of a car carrying ammunition in southern Serbia, it was learned today.

The car is reported to have exploded between the village of Stalac and the town of Nis, about 125 miles south of Belgrade.

The incident has not been announced in the Belgrade press. However, Premier Marshal Tito's press office made a brief statement about it after inquiries by reporters.

The press office said 10 other cars in the train were damaged and two of the engineers in the locomotive were killed. It said the ammunition, "for hunting," was touched off by sparks from the locomotive.

McKenney Hills School Not Ready For Coming Term

Due to construction delays, a new elementary school at McKenney Hills in Montgomery County will not be ready for occupancy at the start of the new school year, school officials announced yesterday.

A temporary plan to provide for McKenney Hills pupils will be developed after enrollment is determined, it was announced. To establish this figure, pupils who later will attend the new school have been instructed to report to the Woodlin School in Silver Spring on September 11 at 1 p.m. Regular Woodlin pupils will attend classes only in the morning on that day.

Meanwhile, registration for McKenney Hills pupils who did not register last spring will be held at the Woodlin School on Friday from 9 a. m. to noon.

City Is Open to Reds Under $1-Million Bond

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 4 (U.P.). — A Communist wishing to tarry in Sevierville will have to put up one million dollar bond under a new city ordinance.

He must register with the city recorder. Then a police officer immediately would obtain a peace warrant against the registrant, who would be placed under a bond of not less than one million dollars as a guarantee that he would "keep the peace toward all the people of Tennessee for 12 months."

Flying Farmers Hold Three-Day Convention

BEMIDJI, Minn., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—The vanguard of 475 airplanes expected to land here today rolled down the runway of the city's new one million dollar airport as flying farmers began arriving for a three-day national convention.

Bemidji, population 9427, expected a total of about 600 airplanes carrying 1500 members of the Flying Farmer organization to land over a three-day period.

The flying farmers, from 38 States, will meet Tuesday to discuss aviation advancement in various States and the possiblity of expanding use of planes in farming.

Jewish Village Named In Honor of Truman

TEL AVIV, Sept. 4 (AP).—A new Jewish immigrant village named Kafaritruman, in honor of the American President, was established today near Lydda Airport.

Eighty families from Poland, Romania and Hungary comprise the first settlers. A scroll lauding President Truman's assistance to Israel was read at a dedication ceremony attended by 50 American Jewish leaders.

Those First Days in Class

School Harder on Parents Than Child

(This is the third of a series directed to parents whose children may be starting to school this fall. Dr. Hymes is professor of education at George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn. The articles are selected from Three to Six, just published by Public Affairs Committee, New York.)

By James L. Hymes, Jr.

CHAPTER THREE

Sometimes the start of school is harder on parents than it is on children. This is a big event in your life too. If you have an only child, or if you are sending your youngest off to school, it is hard to avoid a little sadness.

But never feel that this is the beginning of the end . . . now your child won't need you any more. This is really the beginning of the new. He still needs you and he always will. But now he needs you in a different way.

Your interest, your pride in his growing-up, your praise, your enthusiasm, your support, are all important. Exciting new tasks take the place of the physical things you had to do when he was a baby. A child's job is to grow. Your job is to make that growth easy . . . and it is a real job, don't fool yourself.

School Ages Them Fast

At the start of school youngsters often seem babyish. Sometimes school ages them very fast!

Whether it is nursery school or kindergarten or first grade, no matter what else they learn, children often pick up some choice expressions. Many a parent wonders if the teachers are giving lessons in swearing.

No one likes to hear children use toilet words or tough words. They are a lot easier to take, however, if you interpret them.

Often they only mean: "Look at me. I'm big!"

Starting to school is a step toward bigness. Everybody pounds this into a youngster: "My, you're a big boy now" and "Aren't you big! Going to school!" "Bad words" is the youngster's way of doing some pounding too.

Once he has made his point in his own way, the bad talk dies down. Even if you do nothing about it, it goes away as soon as he has proved that he is big—so big that he can even do some things he shouldn't.

Redirecting "Tough Talk"

If you reach the saturation point and have taken the "tough talk" all you can, try re-directing it. Make up some substitutes. Oshkosh! Rumpstikskin! Saskatchewan! Or even "Shoot!" These are wonderful swear words, and this often works with threes and fours.

With older children just talking helps: "That's enough now. Give us a rest."

The gentle joke will work better with fives and sixes than washing out the mouth with soap or anything severe. Rough talk at this age isn't sin raising its head. It is merely good healthy independence. Treat it lightly and it will find a better way to show itself.

Children swear and they often say "No" more than when they were at home alone. They may have less control for a while and fly off the handle more easily. You can't help but wonder. You send children to school to learn discipline. Sometimes they come back worse than when you sent them. But don't be alarmed. The school is not failing; all this simply means the youngster is growing.

Sympathize With the Cause

The "No's" aren't nice but you can be a little sympathetic with the cause. And your sympathy is important. It will ease you along until the boisterousness dies down.

There is a second cause, too. Even in the best schools there are a lot of rules. Being in a group imposes more demands on a child than playing at home. He has to share more, to wait more, to fit in more.

A youngster can take just so much of this and then he has to draw the line. He has to find some way of rebelling and blowing his top. This is for his own protection. He probaly doesn't feel free to explode at school but, thank heavens! he has a good home.

Home has to be a place where youngsters can be themselves and find themselves.

If your youngster's school is strict you may see more of this at home. But all children do it. You can help in two ways: (1) by understanding and tolerating a lot that your child does; (2) by talking with his teacher.

This talking-over sometimes softens what teachers do. Many a teacher is stricter than she wants to be because she thinks parents expect it of her. Your friendly visit may be enough to give her reassurance.

Just your saying, "Oh, I'm not too concerned about his bad language . . . or his learning to be quiet . . . or his learning to sit still."

The two of you—parent and teacher—both have to know: Good discipline grows best when there is not too much of it. A child can gag on it if he gets too big a dose.

(Copyright, 1950, by Public Affairs Committee, New York, N.Y. Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Wednesday: Too much "reform" can set back your child.

Ex-Mayor Kidnaped In Philippines Town

MANILA, Sept. 4 (AP).—A band of 50 men kidnaped Adolfo Frial, wealthy former mayor of Dumalag, from a street of that Panay Island town last night, a dispatch to the Daily Mirror said. The kidnaping occurred 300 yards from the City Hall.

Frial's brother, Arceno, who is mayor of Dumalag, appealed to provincial authorities for help. Relatives announced they were willing to negotiate for ransom, but heard nothing from the kidnapers.

Honor for Insp. Miller

Retired Metropolitan Police Inspector Arthur E. Miller, former head of the Traffic Division, will receive a scroll of appreciation from the D. C. Division of the American Automobile Association at a dinner tonight at 7 at the Mayflower Hotel.

Farouk Reaches Hotel Of American Admirer

BIARRITZ, France, Sept. 4 (U.P.). King Farouk of Egypt reached this Atlantic-coast resort late tonight and moved into the hotel where an American admirer is at least temporarily staying. He drove the leading car of a 13-Cadillac caravan to the doors of the Hotel du Palais.

Mimi Medart, 16-year-old blonde from St. Louis, Mo., is staying at the hotel with her parents, but she and her family were absent when Farouk arrived.

Aid Plane to Antigua

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Sept. 4 (AP).—In response to a plea for aid, the United States Navy sent a plane today to Antigua to assess the damage from Friday's hurricane. The message said residents of the Caribbean islands in the British West Indies were desperately in need of food and clothing.

Rearming as Bar To 'Total War' Urged by Cowles

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 4 (U.P.).—Gardner Cowles, only recently returned from a European tour, today said the United States must begin a great program of rearmament as insurance against "total war" with Russia.

The Des Moines newspaper and magazine publisher and his wife, Fleur, were guests of honor at a luncheon given by Tom C. Gooch, publisher of the Dallas Times Herald, and Mrs. Gooch. The Cowleses were in Dallas to receive awards at the Neiman Marcus midcentury fashion exposition tonight for a "new fashion in magazines—Flair," of which Mrs. Cowles is editor.

Responsible governmental authorities in Europe told him, Cowles said, that defenses are so weak in western Europe that Russia could go to the English Channel in a matter of a "few weeks" if the Soviets launched a war.

He said he found applause for the United States stand in Korea, but condemnation for this Nation's position on Formosa.

A Producer's View

Wide-Angle Lens Of Movies Needed

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK (AP).—Radio-Movie Producer William Keighley predicts that television will have to turn to film to achieve the scope the public will demand.

KEIGHLEY

Keighley, whose Lux Radio Theaters on CBS has the largest audience in radio, explains it this way:

"In radio, you're limited to sound. In the theater, you're limited to the walls. With film, there's no limit—so why not use it in television? Why ask your viewers to imagine something when you can show it to them?"

Keighley is preparing for a television counterpart of Radio Theater and at least the first production is expected to be a live performance.

But he does not believe that, in the long run, television audiences will be satisfied with live performances confined to studios, because "television is a motion picture—and you don't photograph a play."

In radio, he explains, your imagination provides unlimited scope, and, in this respect radio has a big advantage over television. But when you let the audience see, as in television, folks are going to want to be shown what they're being told about. If it's a crowd, they'll want to see a crowd; if it's a flood, they'll want to see a flood. That will be more and more the case as the novelty wears off, he foresees.

KEIGHLEY, who is also an independent movie producer, declares much of television so far is being written as if it were radio, in which you can do a lot more in a half hour than in television.

"My reaction to television today, he declares, "is that it's a race between a camera and an actor to see who can get to the end of the show first."

The one-time Philadelphian, who has a spacious apartment home on Fifth ave. overlooking Central Park, expects most television dramatic productions to gravitate to Hollywood.

Since that's where the greatest production facilities are located, he says, it's only natural to expect that video production will center there—"just as Detroit is the place to make automobiles."

As host on the Monday night Radio Theater program, Keighley's voice is heard week in and week out by some 30,000,000 persons. His voice is a mark of identification that provides continuity for the series. It's regarded as such an important part of the porgram that once, when he became ill, a microphone was taken to his hospital bedside for his part of the week's broadcast.

MORE AND MORE top industry authorities are expressing belief that, come television and high frequencies, radio nonetheless is here to stay.

W. A. Blees, vice president of Avco Manufacturing Corp. and general sales manager of its Crosley division, says there is room for radio to continue to grow despite video. He points out that railroads are bigger today than they were before they had the competition of buses and air lines.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

In yesterday's postscript, I told you that I ran into Capt. Billy Bryant at the Chicago Fair, where he's serving as official greeter on the "Deadwood Central Railroad."

The reunion brought back memories of the days when Captain Billy's showboat, the "Goldenrod," plied the Ohio and Mississippi and dished up some of the most atrocious ham acting the world has ever seen.

The audience would cheer the hero and hiss the villain with an enthusiasm which is duplicated today only among kids watching an ancient cowboy movie on television.

The "Goldenrod" company made no pretense of presenting straight melodrama. It specialized in a parody on melodrama, and one memorable summer a dozen years ago, I had a hand in a parody on the parody.

The Catholic Youth Organization had a special radio program that year, on a Nationwide network. Father Labodie came to me with an idea.

"We want something truly unusual for the program," he said, "so see what you think of this. The St. Louis Cardinals will be in town for a series with the Cincinnati Reds on the day of our program. If I can get some of the Cards to play the parts, could you write me a parody on the Billy Bryant version of 'Jack Dalton'?"

I leaped at the chance, of course, and if I do say so myself, our version of "Jack Dalton's Revenge" had some pretty funny lines.

I wrote a few of them; most were ad libbed by Pepper Martin, Lon Warneke, Jug Weiland, Frenchy Bordagaray and the other members of Martin's "Oklahoma Mudcats."

Martin was the villain, and when the audience hissed, he twirled his phony mustache and hissed right back.

At one point, Villain Martin exhulted at Hero Warneke: "I have you in my power, Jack Dalton. You belong to me, body and soul!"

Drawing himself up defiantly, and pointing one finger heavenward, Warneke niftied:

"Mah soul may belong to you, suh, but mah body belongs to Branch Rickey!"

Umpire George Magerkurth, in one of the upper boxes, doubled up in such a roar of laughter I remember worrying whether the showboat's venerable wooden planking would hold the big guy, or whether he was about to laugh himself right into the orchestra seats below.

As we talked about those wonderful days on the river, Captain Billy's eyes got downright misty. We saw the "Goldenrod" tied up at St. Louis just a few days ago, and I was going to ask Billy why he wasn't with the boat any more when Bernice's elbow in my ribs changed the subject.

I guess it wouldn't have been such a good question to ask, at that.

That wonderful suite at the Stevens I wrote you about is now just a memory. Assistant Manager Dudek suddenly announced we'd have to get out of it, because it was reserved for somebody else. "If the room clerk didn't tell you it was available for only one day, he should have, and we'll have to move you," was his ultimatum.

I stormed that I was staying only one more day, and I was in no mood to pack and then unpack and pack again.

For a while, I had visions of a sit-down strike, with Dudek getting a court order to evict me, and a squad of bellhops carrying me out bodily and depositing me in the middle of Michigan blvd.

But Miss Baratta, the floor clerk, spoiled everything. She was so sympathetic and helpful we finally agreed to be moved, and we are now in just another hotel room. If this turns out to be a dull letter, blame it on my uninspiring surroundings.

To one who hasn't been to Chicago for several years, many changes are visible. For one thing, they're tearing down a lot of buildings and ripping up a lot of streets to build a Milwaukee-Dearborn-Congress subway.

Scheduled to begin operation by the end of the year, the subway will be 4 miles long and cost 75-million-dollars. It dead ends at Congress st. and the river, with elevated trains descending into the north end of the subway near Evergreen 1325 North) and Milwaukee aves.

At 670 N. Michigan, they're putting up an office building for physicians. There won't be a window in the whole dog-gone building. All air conditioned and artificially lighted, and estimated to cost $750,000.

I hope they never have an electric power failure.

The rest of Chicago is pretty much the same. Along Outer drive you still see thousands of swimmers enjoying miles of beaches; you still pass the same swanky Gold Coast apartments (with new ones going up every day); you still have to drive for miles before you begin to see neighborhoods of individual homes—many attractively built of white stone.

State st., inside the Loop, is still bustling with some of the world's biggest stores, and outside the Loop it's still lined with saloons.

Every bartender doubles as a singer, and "continuous entertainment" is the order of the day. Even the "26 girls" contribute an occasional chorus of a popular ballad, doing about equal damage to the song as to the ever-present green silk handkerchief on which all female singers vent their emotions while working.

In case you don't remember, boss, "26 girls" are so called because of the games they operate. In practically every cafe you'll find a shallow 2-foot-square box padded with green felt, a dice cup, a handful of dice, and an evening-gowned female operator of the game. The customer picks his favorite number (aces, treys, sixes or what have you) and bets he can throw 26 or more in a given number of rolls of the dice. The games have operated openly for years.

The odds are decidedly against the player, and intrigue me not. I'm going down to the "Ham n' Egger," which features fried chicken and a sign in the window which reads:

"Emily Post says, 'Use Your Fingers.'"

Bill

P. S. I wish Congress would hurry up and restore those cuts in the Postal service. I keep worrying that I'll get back to Washington before my letters.

Shift of Earth's Magnetic Field Believed Solved

BIRMINGHAM, England, Sept. 4 (U.P.)—Science believes it has found "the essential clew" to the mystery of the shift of the earth's magnetic field, Dr. S. K. Runcorn reported to the British Association for the Advancement of Science today.

He said the discovery that the earth has a liquid core plus other factors leads to the belief that the magnetic shift is related to the motion of the fluid at the center of this planet.

"The remarkable westerly drift of the points of most rapid change, which may be detected back to 1500, seems hard to interpret except as connected with a fluid motion," he said.

Arlington Red Feather Chairmen Will Meet

Unit chairmen in Arlington County's 1951 Red Feather Campaign will attend a planning meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the home of State Senator Charles R. Fenwick, drive chairman, at 6733 Lee hwy.

Arlington County, whose campaign will open October 10, cooperates with the Community Chest Federation in the yearly Red Feather campaigns. Twelve of the 105 agencies helped by the Federation are located in Arlington.

Big Business Gets Tax Loopholes

By Drew Pearson

Congress is now close to final action on a tax bill which will affect the pocketbook of almost every American family. Yet this important legislation is so full of fancy, legal language that half the Congressmen—let alone the public—do not understand it.

Pearson

As a result, the big corporation lawyers and tax lobbyists, who helped backstage to write the tax bill, have been able to juggle the commas and slip in clauses that will save their clients millions in taxes. But every penny that the big taxpayers wriggle out of paying will have to be made up by the little taxpayers who can't afford high-priced lawyers to lobby for special tax privileges.

Passed by the Senate on Friday night, with but few changes made in the form in which it was reported by the Senate Finance Committee, the bill now is before a Senate-House conference committee.

It is no exaggeration to state that in the form recommended by the Senate Finance Committee, the tax bill would permit enough money to slip through loopholes to finance a large part of the Korean war.

The principal Senators, who as members of the Finance Committee were supposed to tighten the tax loopholes, but didn't, are Democrats Walter George of Georgia, Harry Byrd of Virginia, Ed Johnson of Colorado and Robert Kerr of Oklahoma; plus Republicans Eugene Miliken of Colorado, Robert Taft of Ohio, Hugh Butler of Nebraska, Owen Brewster of Maine and Ed Martin of Pennsylvania.

Independent Study Made

However, two upstart freshmen, Senators Paul Douglas of Illinois and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, decided to make a thorough study of the taxes on their own. With tax experts from the Treasury Department and private practice, they went over the Senate's tax bill with a fine-tooth comb, and exposed these glaring loopholes:

Dividend Withholding — Each year stockholders fail to report in their income tax returns one billion dollars in dividends. This represents a loss to Uncle Sam of 160 to 170 million tax dollars.

Family Partnerships—The Senate bill allows businessmen to make fictitious "partners" of their wives, children and other relatives in order to evade taxes. This practice was stopped by the Supreme Court after babes were listed as full-fledged "business partners." However, the present Senate bill now reverses the Supreme Court decision retroactively to 1938.

Life Insurance Companies—At a time when everyone else was overburdened with taxes, life insurance companies actually didn't pay a penny income tax for 1947, 1948, and 1949—all as a result of a technical error in the Revenue Act. The House adopted a provision to collect 50 million dollars of these back taxes, but believe it or not, the friends of big business on the Senate Finance Committee have now struck out this provision.

Percentage Depletion—The Senate bill does nothing to limit the excessive depletion allowances for oil, gas and other minerals which President Truman has described as the worst loophole in our tax laws. This windfall costs the Government 400 million dollars a year.

Oil Royalties—Oil royalties are subject to regular income tax rates. However, the Senate bill has a special loophole to let oilmen out of paying income taxes in full. All they need to do is "sell" their right to oil royalties, then the same income is subject to the lower capital gains rates.

Stock Option—Under the Senate bill, corporate executives could draw part of their salary in stock options, which would be taxed at the capital gains rate.

Corporate Spin-Offs—This provision would exempt new stocks from taxation. Thus a corporation could pay off its stockholders by setting up a separate firm and distributing the stock. Then the new firm could be dissolved and the stock sold. In this way the profits would be taxed at the capital gains rate instead of the higher rate on dividends.

Amortization—Though the finance committee rejected a tax on excess war profits, the committee allowed special tax benefits on war plants and war equipment. Instead of the usual 15- to 40-year depreciation for tax purposes, corporations can now write off the entire cost in five years.

Property Sales — Another tax loophole, which costs the Government about 70 million dollars a year, is a special provision favoring the taxpayer who sells business property. If the sale results in a profit it is taxed as a capital gain. It it results in a loss, it is allowed a full deduction.

Foreign Subsidiaries—the Senate bill allows domestic corporations to liquidate subsidiaries overseas (such as oil companies), and bring back tax-free profits that have never passed through the Federal income tax stream.

Tax-Free Redemption—The Senate bill also contains an extremely generous provision whereby corporation owners could draw down accumulated earnings and profits free of income tax to the extent used to pay estate and inheritance taxes.

LEES Luxurious Carpet With
The Twist You Can't Trample Out!

13.50 SQ. YD.
in 12 and 15-ft. widths

Is your household reasonably active? Would each person walk as much as the average woman-at-home . . . reputedly 100,000 steps each day? Pick up a pencil and figure for yourself how many steps your carpet must absorb in a week, or a year! Now you can readily see why resistance to foot-steps is so important in a carpet. Lees uses 3-ply, not ordinary 2-ply yarns. Twists each tuft so hard, it springs back as your foot lifts. The heavier yarn means longer wear, too, and thicker cushioning underfoot. Yet you pay only 13.50 per square yard for this superb carpet at The Hecht Co. Jot down your rooms' measurements and let us give you an estimate for room-size rugs or wall-to-wall luxury.
